Springs Chapter of NAACP Announces Demonstration

The Colorado Springs Chapter of the NAACP will hold a meeting on the steps of City Hall Monday in sympathy with the Civil Rights movement in Selma, Ala.

A spokesman for the organization said that Mayor Harry Hoth would be invited to join with religious leaders in the planned speaking program.

He said the meeting was called for 5 p.m. He said it would terminate with the ending of the speaking program.

He emphasized that it would be a peaceful sympathy meeting. No march or demonstration is planned.

At the same time, a memorial service will be conducted for the Rev. James J. Reeb, the minister killed by white racists.

The mayor, city councilmen and interested individuals will be invited to participate in Monday's meeting.

The spokesman said that members of the NAACP will participate in the Colorado College Selma sympathy march Tuesday. He emphasized though that the members would be marching as individuals, not as members of the NAACP.

March Would Be Dangerous, Alabama Governor Declares

Editor's Note — Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama flew Saturday to Washington for a conference with President Johnson about the Alabama racial crisis. Before the governor left Montgomery he talked with an Associated Press reporter in an exclusive interview.

By REX THOMAS

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace says he opposes a civil rights march from Selma, Ala., to the state capital here because it would be dangerous both to the marchers and to highway travelers.

Negroes and some white sympathizers have been seeking since last Sunday to make such a march to dramatize what they term discrimination against Negroes seeking to register to vote in Alabama's black belt.

Selma, the largest city in the soil-rich black belt, has been the focal point of a tension-filled civil rights drive for eight weeks. State troopers and sheriff's deputies broke up a proposed march at the Selma city limits last Sunday with tear gas and billy clubs.

In an interview Friday night, Wallace was asked why he opposed the 50-mile highway march.

His answer:

"Because, to obstruct the highway is unlawful, and it is impossible for a large group to march from Selma to Montgomery and stay off the highway because of embankments, guard rails, bridges and fast traffic.

"Any march such as requested would be dangerous to the health and safety of the marchers and also to those engaged in vehicular traffic. Any such march would have created a traffic jam, with curious motorists stopping or slowing down to see what was going on. . ."

The governor was asked if he felt that all qualified Negroes would have been allowed to register as voters without help and encouragement from civil rights leaders from outside the state.

"I have said many times," he replied, "that anybody who is qualified to vote is entitled to vote. Anybody who has a grievance has plenty of state and federal laws in existence, including the Civil Rights Act, to assure him any rights he has been denied."

Q. What about the contention of some Negro leaders that the literacy test should be abandoned?

A. Literacy tests to qualify people to vote have prevailed for centuries in and out of this country. New York, for instance, requires the passage of a literacy test or an eighth-grade certificate. We have registered many voters in Alabama with a fourth-grade education.

Q. What about the charges of police brutality during the civil rights campaign?

A. If you read in the papers you find the same charges of police brutality in the breaking up of almost every demonstra-

Alabama Paper Says State Must Give Negro Vote

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Alabama's biggest daily newspaper, the Birmingham News, said Saturday in an editorial that the state must act quickly to show that qualified Negroes will be accorded "a vote already constitutionally theirs."

The editorial condemned the violent dispersal of Negro marchers by state troopers at Selma last Sunday. It suggested new voter laws and full-time five-day-a-week registration. It was a page 1 editorial.

"We need statesmen!" the News said. "This may be the greatest crisis Alabama ever has faced. Alabama must respond."

The editorial said the time had come for straight talk. While expressing dislike for Negro demonstrations, the News said Alabama was in danger of being "blackballed" by responsible leaders throughout the nation.

This results, the newspaper said from repetitive violence and the registration practices in numerous instances.

The editorial said:

"Violence does occur, at the hands of ignorant and very brutal white men. And we especially suffer right now because violence only a week ago at Selma

WINDUP OF THREE HOUR CONFERENCE — With Alabama Gov. George Wallace looking over his shoulder, President Johnson talks to reporters Saturday outside the White House office wing. LBJ Pledges to Achieve Victory for Civil Rights

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson promised Saturday to use "all the resources of this great and powerful government"—even federal troops, if necessary—to achieve victory in what he termed the civil rights "battle of human dignity."

The President also announced he will send to Congress on Monday a special message proposing legislation which he said would strike down all "discriminatory restrictions used to deny people the right to vote."

Johnson voiced his pledge to achieve civil rights victory in an opening statement at a chilly rose garden news conference which, almost at the last minute, was opened to live television cameras and radio microphones.

The President, who had wound up a 3¼-hour conference with Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace shortly before, expressed support for peaceful demonstrations—in Selma, Ala., and in fact, on the street in front of the White House—by people who feel voting rights are being denied.

The chief executive began by terming this a time of "very deep and painful challenge to the unending search for American freedom."

He said that before the challenge is ended, "every resource of this government will be directed to insuring justice for all men of all races, in Alabama and everywhere in this land."

Asked if he had alerted federal troops for possible peacekeeping duty in Alabama, he said he knew that FBI agents, federal marshals and Army units all were ready to carry out any order he might find necessary to issue.

Johnson said that last Sunday Alabama Negroes tried to make a peaceful protest for their right to vote.

"They were attacked and brutally beaten," he said.

The President said the government had tried to protect the Negroes' constitutional rights wherever they were violated.

He said more than 70 U. S. officials were in Selma to enforce the law.

"At all times the force of the United States has been available to protect the peace of the citizens of Selma," he said.

Johnson referred to the constitutional amendment 95 years ago designed to assure voting rights to all, but said now many Americans are denied the right to vote because they are Negroes.

Johnson said he will send to Congress on Monday a bill to strike down all restrictions used to deny the right to vote. He said it would set up simple standards for voting. If citizens are denied the right to vote, he said they will be registered by federal officials.

This was in line with efforts of Republicans and Democrats in Congress to work out legislation which would supersede state laws used to discriminate against Negroes.

It is wrong to deny Americans their right to vote, Johnson said, adding it is wrong to deny any person full equality because of the color of his skin.

Nor shall the voter be judged by his religion, where he was

U.S. Marines Open Fire Against Red Guerrillas

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U. S. Marine guns blazed away in the predawn darkness Saturday at Communist guerrillas trying to feel out the defenses of the air base at Da Nang.

These were the first shots fired in action by any of the Marines since 3,500 swarmed ashore last Monday to guard Da Nang, the important air base from which U.S. planes take off for raids on Laos and Communist North Viet Nam.

Marine officers said 12 Viet Cong tried to feel out the Marine positions on Hill 327, which dominates the base 380 miles north of Saigon.

Three times the guerrillas approached but were driven back by a hail of machine-gun and mortar fire.

The guerrillas were located in the underbrush by a special radar that the Marines use to detect infiltrators. A Marine officer said the guerrillas appeared to be well-trained, judging from their actions as seen on the radar screen. No bodies were found when Marines went out to look for the intruders.

A dozen miles west of Saigon, Viet Cong guerrillas unleashed a mortar barrage on Duc Hoa, killing 5 and wounding 33. Two U.S. Army helicopters were called into action against the guerrillas, who dispersed.

Nguyen Phan, 38, a North Vietnamese said to be a Peking and Moscow-trained political commissar captured Friday, was displayed near Da Nang by Brig. Gen. Chanh Thi, 1st Army Corps commander. Phan is the highest ranking North Vietnamese ever captured, Thi said.

A slight man, Phan told reporters at an impromptu news conference he joined the Communists in North Viet Nam in 1953 during the war against the French.

Phan said he was given a year's indoctrination and training in Peking in 1959 and then was sent to the Soviet Union for six months.

He infiltrated into South Viet Nam Feb. 2 in a group of 300 political commissioners sent to oversee the Viet Cong, he added. He held the rank of sub-major.

North Viet Nam released two pictures of Lt. Hayden J. Lockhart, Springfield, Ohio, who the North Vietnamese say was captured after his plane was shot down March 2 in the U.S. air raid on Quang Khe.

Red Viets Not Willing To Stop War, LBJ Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said Saturday that the United States still has not had any indication from North Viet Nam that it is "prepared, is willing, or is ready" to stop operations against South Viet Nam.

This, he declared, is the missing element in all talk about negotiations to end the conflict.

The President told a news conference that in any negotiation there must be someone to negotiate with and someone willing to negotiate.

He described the situation in South Viet Nam as "very difficult" because of changes in the government there.

He said he did not think things had improved in the last weeks — roughly the period in which the United States has been making air strikes against bases in North Viet Nam.

Johnson was asked whether he would predict that the situation would be improved sufficiently in a year for American wives and children to return to Viet Nam.

"Anyone who makes a prophecy now as to the situation a year from now (in Viet Nam) would have to be a good guesser," the President replied.

He said basic United States policy in Southeast Asia is what it has been from the beginning, as developed by former Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy in the earlier years of the problem.

He said that strategy and tactics may change, and new incidents occur, but that the United States is seeking nothing for itself in Southeast Asia.

"Our one desire," he said, "is that the people of Southeast Asia be left in peace to work out their destinies in their own way."

China Steps Up Propaganda Against Soviets

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China Saturday stepped up its "brutality" charges against Soviet police who forcibly ended Asian students riots in front of the U.S. Embassy in Moscow two weeks ago.

The Peking regime charged that one Asian student who was hospitalized after the demonstration was severely beaten by police in a Moscow hospital.

"After the ruthless beating he suffered convulsions in the four limbs," the official New China News Agency claimed. The Chinese Reds named the student as Huang Chao-keng.

Red China said that 30 minutes after the alleged beating the student was forcibly taken to the hospital's mental ward, bound hand and foot for eight hours and locked in a "small and cold room."

In Moscow, informed sources said Saturday several Chinese Communist "provocateurs" of the March 4 embassy demonstration may be expelled from Russia.

The Russians Friday delivered a note to the Red Chinese Embassy accusing Peking of conducting a "slander campaign" and rejecting the Communist Chinese charges of police brutality in putting down the demonstration.

New China said the Russians were told the alleged beating of Huang "obviously was a premeditated political persecution" for which the Soviet Union would be held responsible.

Russians to Hear 'Commercials' for Free Enterprise

MOSCOW (UPI) —Radio commercials have come to Russia, the official Tass news agency reported Saturday.

They are to advertise farm products grown on private plots.

The agency said in a dispatch from Alma Ata that the government is financing construction of trade centers in big industrial cities of Kazakhstan for the sale of agricultural produce from individual farmers' plots.

"Roofed markets with central heating are under construction in Alma Ata and Karaganda for selling meat, vegetables and fruit," Tass said. "There are also four-story hotels and restaurants for the farmers and storage rooms.

"The farmers will be able to use the local radio for advertising their goods."

Commie China's Plotting Bared By Nigeria

BERLIN (UPI) — Visiting Nigerian President Diori Hamani charged Saturday Communist China is trying to subvert democracy in Nigeria and other African states.

He accused Peking of training African commandos and smuggling them into Nigeria by way of China.

He said Nigeria has bought weapons and can counter commando raids, but will seek outside aid through its alliances if the Communists launch a massive attack with foreign backing.

He thanked West Germany for what he described as its "generous" aid to Nigeria and told a news conference on the second day of the visit here that the majority of African states will not follow the United Arab Republic if it breaks relations with Bonn.

Few Demonstrators Break Through Selma Police Lines

By JOHN LYNCH
United Press International

SELMA, Ala. (UPI) —More than a thousand Negroes, nuns, and Northern clergymen pushed against police lines Saturday, taunting and chanting while other's tried to break through and end a three-day vigil in the street.

But only a handful of demonstrators got through the two-block-long police cordon to their goal, the Dallas County Courthouse.

Nearly 200 angry whites gathered there and Selma Public Safety Director Wilson Baker rushed in to lead the freightened demonstrators to safety to protect them.

The flare-up of thegrim confrontation which started Wednesday night died down as quickly as it started. Demonstrators and state troopers stood chest-to-chest in the darkness Saturday night, glaring at each other along a 50-yard line on Sylvan Street.

Baker came out of a meeting with Negro leaders Saturday and said he had asked them not to go into the downtown section because of the "explosive situation."

"They may go," said Baker, haggard from four days at the scene. "If they go, pray for us."

There were two demonstrations Saturday. The first came shortly after President Johnson and Gov. George Wallace ended their three-hour meeting in Washington. Johnson, calling last Sunday's bloody melee between Negroes and state troopers an "American tragedy," vowed to use every federal resource to uphold justice in Selma.

The first march Saturday

Legislature Considers More Annexation Bills

JOHN KUGLIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

The state legislature is considering additional bills to speed annexation of unincorporated areas by cities and towns.

Sometimes provisions in bills overlap. Often they contradict each other.

House Bill 1272 overlaps Senate Bill 122 by providing that "Any unincorporated territory which has been entirely surrounded by any municipality for at least three years. . .may be annexed. . ."

This would allow Colorado Springs to take in the surrounded enclave of Knob Hill.

Rep. John Mackie (R-Longmont) is sponsoring the bill. March 22 Mackie told forces meeting to oppose incorporation of Ivywild that new annexation legislation was needed.

At that meeting Mackie waved a copy of an unintroduced bill he termed "hot off the presses." The presses have rolled and House Bill 1321 has been introduced. It would prevent incorporation of areas with less than 50,000 population if within a mile of existing towns and cities.

Bill 1272, like Senate Bill 122, gives priority to annexation proceedings by cities and towns over attempts by citizens to form their own government by incorporation.

Bill 1272 says, "Proceedings for incorporation of territory that have commenced prior to filing a petition for annexation. . . shall in no way affect proceedings for the annexation. . ."

Bill 1272 provides that once a city or town passes an annexation ordinance it shall "apply all pertinent ordinances to the annexation area irrespective

Governor Vetoes Abolition of Death Penalty

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Gov. Roger D. Branigin vetoed Saturday a bill which would have ended the death penalty in Indiana.

The governor announced his action in a brief veto message, saying the people must have an opportunity to vote on the matter "in an election where this is an issue."

"Until the issue is decided, no man's life should be taken," the message added.

The veto means that the bill will be returned to the Indiana House of Representatives at the start of the 1967 legislative session for a vote on whether to sustain or override the governor's action.

The governor declined to elaborate on the phrase in his veto message that "until the issue is decided no man's life should be taken."

It appeared possible, however, to interpret the statement as indicating he would not let any of six men now in death row at the Indiana State Prison go to the electric chair until the matter has been voted upon at the 1967 session of the General Assembly.

One effect of the veto was that the matter seems certain to be a major campaign issue in 1966 legislative elections.

Branigin waited to within hours of a midnight deadline to act on the legislation passed by

Selma Council Sends Telegram Of 'Sympathy'

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — The City Council sent a telegram of sympathy Saturday to Mrs. James J. Reeb of Boston, widow of a Unitarian minister fatally beaten by a gang of white men on a Selma street Tuesday.

The telegram:

"Selma is deeply grieved over the tragedy which befell your husband in our city. As the members of the city governing body, we wish to express our sincere sympathy in your loss. We pray for God's comfort for you and your children during this period and for His guidance of our city in the days ahead."

Reeb died Thursday. Mrs. Reeb was at his bedside.

Emergency Planning to Be Discussed

Two-Man U.S. Space Flight Set March 22

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Astronauts Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom and John W. Young are scheduled to make America's first two-man space flight on March 22, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced.

Grissom, 38, an Air Force major, and Young, 34, a Navy lieutenant commander, are to whirl three times around the globe to thoroughly wring out the two-seat Gemini spacecraft.

Grissom is seeking to become the first man to rocket twice into space. He made a 16-minute suborbital flight in 1961 and, in a cliffhanger finish, swam for his life when his Liberty Bell 7 capsule filled with water and sank.

The 6,900-pound Gemini vehicle is the first manned spacecraft, American or Russian, designed for extensive maneuverability in space. Grissom and Young are to conduct numerous exercises to qualify the capsule for later Gemini launchings which call for long-duration flights up to two weeks and linking up with other orbiting satellites.

Included in the planned Grissom-Young maneuvers are the first attempts to change the orbit of a manned spaceship. Twice during the test, Grissom, as command pilot, is to shift the orbital path by as much as 50 miles.

The two-man Gemini flights are to perfect techniques for Project Apollo manned lunar landings scheduled late in this decade.

The flight plan calls for Grissom and Young to be launched aboard a Titan 2 rocket at 9 a.m. EST into an initial orbit ranging from 100 to 149 miles. Grissom is to handle the controls for all but about 20 minutes of the 4-hour, 52-minute journey.

Young's primary responsibility will be to check capsule systems and procedures such as oxygen supply, the space suit, temperature controls and food and waste evaluation.

Police Chief Roy Harper said the boy admitted stealing the car in Marshalltown.

Questions and Answers On Alcoholism

Editor's Note: As a public service, the Gazette Telegraph will answer questions on Alcoholism and Problem Drinking in our region. Send all inquiries to this newspaper. Answers will be supplied by G. L. McDougall, Director, Alcoholism Information Center, Out West Building, sponsored by the El Paso County Council on Alcoholism, Inc.

1. Q. My wife drinks only wine and insists she isn't an Alcoholic because she only has had 2 drinks, is this true?

A. Alcohol is Alcohol whether in wine, beer or whiskey. Her denial and statement does have an Alcoholic ring. Perhaps she's a "wine-o." Frenquency and quantity indicate possible addiction. Get facts and knowledge of the progressive illness, Alcoholism and try to motivate her now before it is too late.

2. Q. What can I do to get my husband to stop drinking and go to work?

A. Consult your doctor, spiritual adviser, A.A. member, local Alcoholism Information Center or State Agency about the illness, Alcoholism. Try to get him to a media of recovery; after which he can work or not eat. It is a disease and not a disgrace, but it is disgraceful not to do something about it. If he is supported, he has no reason to stop drinking; he's got it made and also, the supporter is contributing to the progression of his illness.

3. Q. Are you affected by an Alcoholic?

A. 20 million people in the United States are directly affected by a disease which many of them deny exists, says Dr. Marvin Block and in addition, it indirectly injures many times that number; wives, husbands, children, employers and friends.

4. Q. Is Alcoholism a Community Responsibility?

A. The prevalence of Alcoholism makes it obligatory that the community take an active interest in its alleviation, says Dr. Karl E. Voldeng in his book "Recovery from Alcoholism."

5. Q. Who should be interested in Alcoholism?

A. Since it seems evident that Alcoholism ranks near the top as a major health hazard, why shouldn't doctors be interested? realizing it reflects a great lack of spiritual growth, why shouldn't churches recognize the challenge?; Since the Alcoholic's family may, of necessity, require welfare support, why shouldn't the Government and local officials be anxious to lessen that part of their economic liability?; since a high percentage of jail sentences are due to chronic alcoholism, why shouldn't peace officers lend a helping hand. With an understanding that Alcoholism is a major cause of job absenteeism, why shouldn't industry take part in combatting it? Seeing the broken homes and life tragedies resulting from Alcoholism, why shouldn't society be spurred into connective action? Knowing there is some hope of prevention, why shouldn't our educational facilities lend support?

6. Q. Who is qualified to help the Alcoholic?

A. Dr. Frederick Lemere states in an article from the Quarterly Journal on Alcohol Studies, that people from many fields, professional training and experience can be acquired but the basic aptitude for treating Alcoholics comes only from interest, tolerance, common sense, dedication, understanding, patience and a natural ability to deal with these difficult cases. Some of the most effective Therapists encountered have been general practitioners. The ability to motivate patients toward sobriety is probably a gifted talent, more than something that can be taught.

Army Team to Hike To Bering Strait

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Twelve soldiers and a dog team will start a 150-mile hike Monday across treeless countryside, a frozen river and the ice of Bering Strait to a destination 35 miles from Soviet soil.

They are members of a U.S. Army intelligence patrol called Arctic Lemming. The men are volunteers from the infantry and Signal Corps.

This weekend they fly by helicopter to the tiny Eskimo village of Taylor on Seward Peninsula, about 400 miles west of here, to start the hike to the village of Wales. Wales is 35 miles from the Soviet island Big Diomede.

Science for You

* * *

PROBLEM: Fireworks from Flour.

NEEDED: Cheesecloth, flour and a lighted candle.

DO THIS: Make a bag by folding a double thickness of cheesecloth, put flour into it, and shake it over the candle flame. The flour will burn in sudden, sparkling flames.

HERE'S WHY: Flour does not burn readily unless the particles are so separated that oxygen of the air can reach every one. This condition is met as the fine flour dust comes down to the flame. The finer the flour the more surface is available for this rapid oxidation.

When the proportion of flour particles to air is just right in a large area, an explosion powerful enough to wreck a flour mill can result. The small explosions in this experiment are harmless, except that fire is always dangerous to some extent. Be careful.

More experiments in this series of "Science For You" experiments are included in the book Science Circus which is on sale in better bookstores. (T-M, WRR Gen. Fea. Corp.)

Charter Group Will Grill Office Seekers

The Colorado Springs Charter Association will invite candidates for the April 6 city election to speak March 22 on their qualifications and ideas. Candidates will also be questioned.

Present members of the City Council, whose terms do not expire this year, have also been invited to attend with City Manager John M. Biery and Utilities Director Raymond Nixon.

The Association has sent questionnaires to all candidates and expects to have results ready for distribution at the meeting.

Dinner will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the Alamo Hotel. The program will start at 7:15 p.m. Rev. Harold Knudsen, president of the group, invited persons not attending the dinner to participate in the program. Both events are public.

"The 'Candidates Meeting' has traditionally been one of the most important occasions in the work of the Charter Association," Knudsen commented. "It gives our members and all others an opportunity to size up the candidates and their qualifications. We consider it extremely important that highly qualified candidates be elected, so our rapidly growing city can have the best kind of leadership in the critical years ahead."

Civilian Task Force Works In Viet Nam

By HORST FAAS

SONG BE, Scouth Viet Nam (AP) — A government assault on this complex of hamlets 80 miles north of Saigon was different in one respect from most attacks on Communist-held positions—a civilian government task force came along.

The object was to reoccupy this area where Viet Cong guerrillas have roamed almost at will for the past three months, and to install a new province chief.

Communist occupation had left its mark.

Most of the villagers sat sullenly in their huts when the soldiers and government workers moved in Friday. Anti-American slogans were found written on walls.

A flock of helicopters brought the occupation force from Saigon and landed on a roadway near the village complex. Two waves of rangers stepped out and took up defensive and support positions.

Then came a force of government civilian employes carrying typewriters, papers, hand loudspeakers, propaganda leaflets, posters and weapons.

There was a flurry of light sniper fire but no government casualties. Two men were shot as they fled, one fatally.

Fourteen others were captured as they ran toward the woods. Under questioning, half of them admitted being Viet Cong.

This is Phuoc Long Province, a sparsely populated area that for a long period was relatively quiet.

Buck Rogers, Move Over, Planning Starting on New Sub-Airplane

A concept of a Navy seaplane which could fly in the air as an aircraft and submerge to cruise under water as a submarie was described in California by a eral Dynamics engineer.

The General Dynamics study shows that the submersible seaplane is "feasible, practical and well within the state of the art." General Dynamics engineer.

The Convair division of General Dynamics, Corp., in San Diego, with assistance from the corporation's Electric Boat division Groton, Conn., has been investigating the feasibility of a flying submersible under a six-month, $36,000 study contract awarded by the U. S. Navy Bureau of Naval Weapons, Washington, D. C.

The unique submersible seaplane, called Sub-Plane in the U. S. Navy study project, is a vehicle tht would approach its target area with the speed of a water-based aircraft, then dive underwater to pursue its target with the stealth of a submarine.

C. R. Tuttle, Convair development project engineer, discussed the Sub-Plane concept here at a classified session of the Marine Systems and ASW Conference sponsored by the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics and the U. S. Navy.

The preliminary Sub - Plane configuration recommended by Convair has a seaplane - style hull and conventional wing and tail.

It has three jet engines, two mounted on pylons above the wing and the third centered on top of the hull aft of the wing. Prior to submerging, the engines would be sealed.

The wing engines would be used for take-off only. Flight cruise thrust would be furnished by the hull engine. A retractable hydro-ski would aid take-off.

Sub - Plane is required to have a flight radius of 300 to 500 nautical miles at speeds between 150 and 225 knots. Its underwater range was set at 50 nautical miles at five knots and 75-foot depth. Payload was set at 500 to 1,500 pounds.

Tuttle discussed problems that will require detailed investigation to reconcile two different types of vehicles, the airplane and the submarine. These included "buoyancy control, stability and control in two media and on the interface, and emergency escape and survival in two media."

He recommended that if "controlled sinking" is to be realized, "a high density aircraft must be used and all excess volume must be flooded."

Structural components that would be flooded on both sides, such as wing, tail, and hull, preferably would be made of high-density material, such as stainless steel or titanium. Titanium or fiberglass would be considered as the materials for the pressure shell containing the two-man crew.

"The law of nature is that displacement must equal the weight of the vehicle in the air, therefore, to accomplish controlled sinking, we will have to keep the vehicle as small as possible," Tuttle said.

Underwater propulsion for Sub-Plane could be supplied by several methods, but "for early availability and minimum development the first choice appears to be between batteries and fuel cells," he said.

SUB-PLANE — This is an artist's conception of a submersible seaplane based on feasibility study results obtained by General Dynamics/Convair, San Diego, Calif. Sub-Plane is a vehicle that would be at home in the air and underwater. After a six-month study program on Sub-Plane, sponsored by the U. S. Navy Bureau of Naval Weapons, Convair division engineers have concluded that development of such a vehicle is feasible and practical. On an underwater mission, as depicted in the artist's conception, the vehicle would be powered by electric motors and batteries. The three flight engines, two mounted on struts above the wing and a third located aft of the wing on top of the hull, would be sealed for the underwater mission.

It's Not the Pants That Count--It's Cooperation

Eugene De Bellis, director of Family Counseling Service, pointed out that it's not too important "who wears the pants in the family" if a democratic partnership exists in marriage with the couple determining together how to rear their children and budget their income.

De Bellis, who addressed of the Family Living Series, said that the goal for modern marriage is for decisions to be made by two people who can talk and listen rationally and not feel threatened when making compromises.

"This point of view has been expressed by so many enlightened people that you'd think there would be more people doing it," he said.

The Family Living Series is sponsored by three United Fund agencies; Family Counseling Service, YWCA and Mental Health Association. The speaker during next Thursday's session at 1:30 p.m., at the YWCA will be Dr. Van Shaw, sociology professor of Colorado College whose topic will be "Togetherness — Goal or Problem." Registration continues to be open to the public.

"A husband and wife must be strong enough and big enough to make a democratic partnership work. We are operating below the ideal, both as families and as a nation," he said.

Problems in family decision making which cause long range difficulties were described by De Bellis. He criticized fathers who delegate all phases of child rearing, particularly sons, to the mother.

"Boys need the companionship of a father who will serve as a model for their own adult behavior," he pointed out.

De Bellis added that many fatherless families are successful proving that there are ways for mothers to be the head of a household and even hold a full time job and still rear well adjusted children.

"There is no father in one out of ten American households. The fact that there are so many successful families in this category calls into question the folklore that a man must be running the show," he said.

De Bellis criticized women who become adept at manipulating their husbands. Creating the illusion of weakness they have an iron will underneath, and an ability to get their own way.

He cited the writing of Phillip Wylie whose theory of "momism" has been much discussed in recent years. Wylie insists that women are usurping the roll of men and that man is permitting his responsiblities to be usurped.

De Bellis explained that Family Counseling Service is an agency which attemps to prevent marriage breakdowns through counseling.

"Immaturity is the greatest barrier to a happy marriage," he said.

"When trained counselors work with mature people, they have a good chance for success," he concluded.

Florence Lions Set St. Pat's Day Dinner

Florence Lions club members will stage their annual St. Patrick's Day dinner Tuesday at the school cafeteria from 5 to 8 p.m.

Dr. John Buglewicz, who is in charge of the dinner, announced that the women's organization of the Presbyterian church will cook the dinner and help the Lions club with the serving.

Money raised from the dinner will be used for community projects and may be earmarked to build new park benches for a mountain picnic area now under consideration by the city of Florence.

At a recent meeting of the club, Lynn Wilcox was appointed by the club to represent the Lions club on the proposed mountain park project.

It was also announced that the current Lions project to collect used eye glasses will be wrapped up March 11 and all glasses collected by that time will be sent overseas.

The local club agreed to pay expenses for two delegates to attend the state Lions convention to be held at Pueblo April 23-25. It was also agreed to send a contribution to help the annual Handicamp program backed by state Lions clubs.

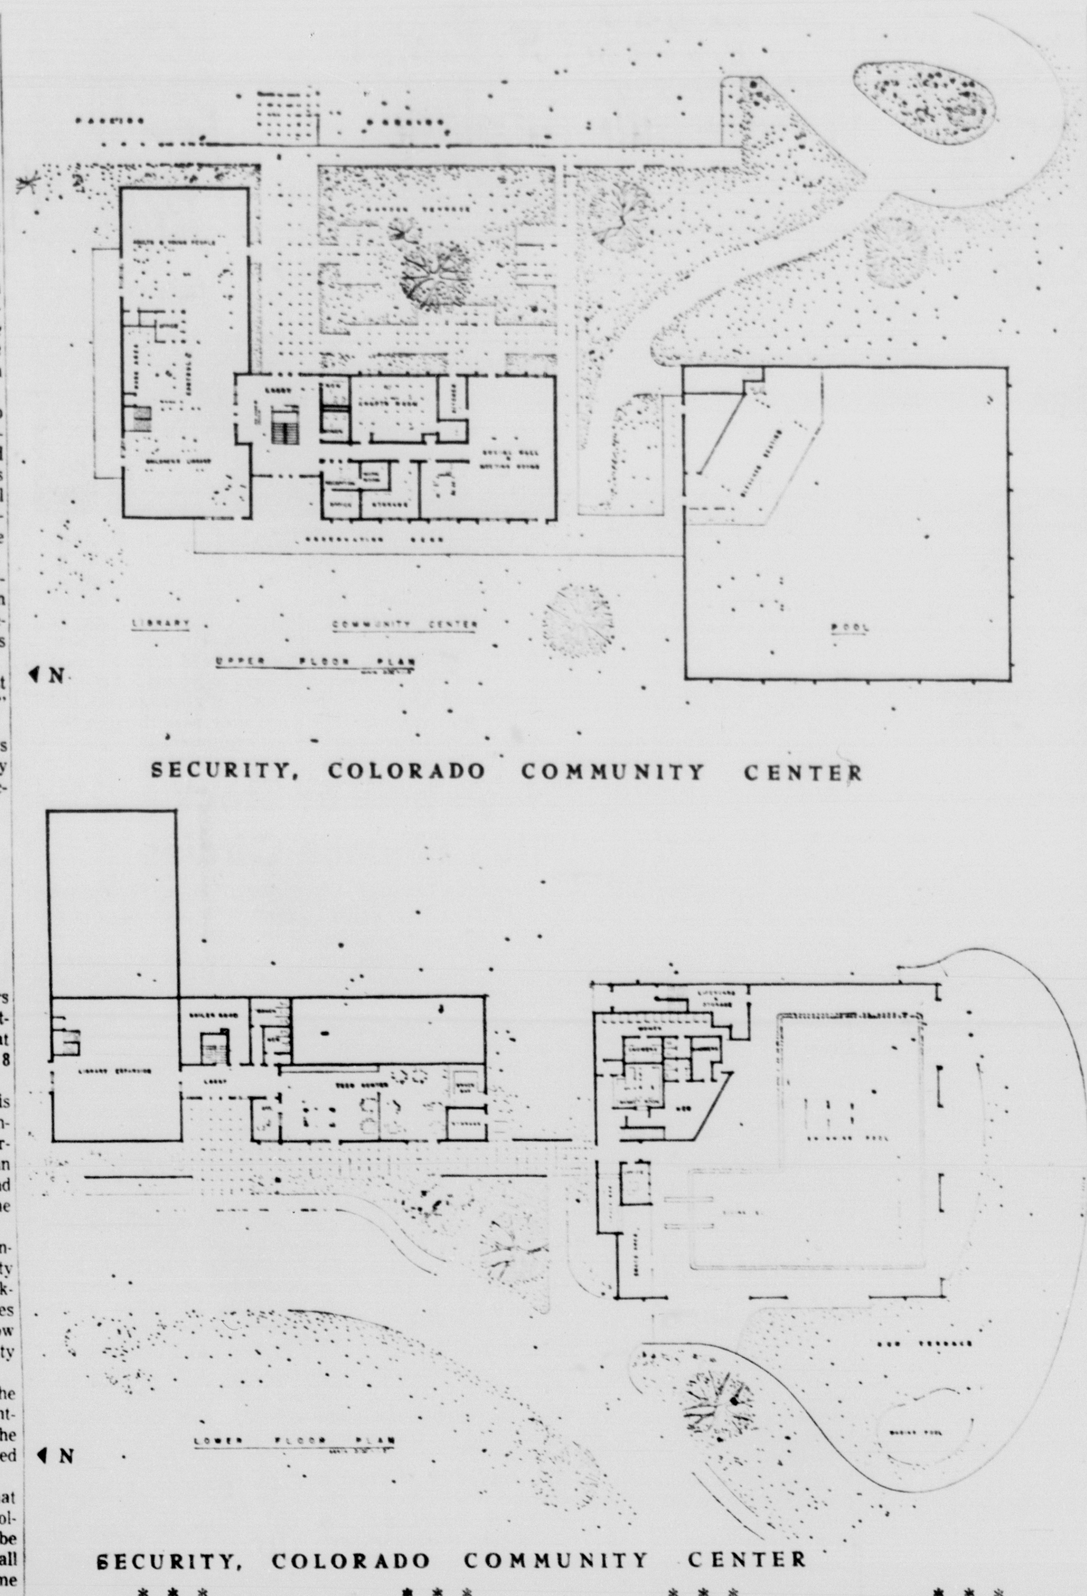
Bob Deppe, club historian reported that work is progressing on the local Lions club history and will be completed before the end of the current meeting season.

R. W. Morris, who left Florence this week to make his home in Georgia, was given a farewell send-off by fellow Lions.

Anti-Castro Group Closes Three Camps

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — An anti-Castro organization announced today it has closed three training camps in Central America and demobilized its troops.

"We are changing our tactics from hit-and-run raids to subversion inside Cuba," said a spokesman of the Revolutionary Recovery Movement.



Security Community Center Would Include Something for Everyone

A $300,000 bond issue to finance a proposed community center complex will be voted on April 20 by Security residents.

The election date was set Thursday by the Security Park and Recreation District Board.

If the bond issue is approved, funds would also be used to provide a 17 - acre park site for the complex, with recreational facilities.

District officials said the proposed community center construction, land purchase and swimming pool were designed to fit within operational limitations of their 4- mill levy.

"This levy is the maximum which can be assessed, under Colorado law, and assures the taxpayer of no increase in taxation because of acquisition of these much needed improvements," officials added.

The master plan includes an enclosed, year - around public swimming pool, two - level community center with adult and teenage recreation areas and a public library wing. There is presently a swimming pool in the center of the district's Piute Park, but it is only for members of the Security Athletic Association.

Development of the 17 - acre site would include ball fields, playground areas for youngsters of all ages, family and group picnic areas, a sledding hill and parking lots.

Proposed location of the park and facilities is east of Aspen Drive, between Hackberry and Grand Boulevard, immediately south of the Nazarene Church.

The district has an option on this land which would be purchased by the district from Fountain Valley School trustees.

District officials will explain the bond issue election and proposed development Tuesday afternoon to the North Security Elementary School PTA.

Architects are presently preparing two scale models. They will be unveiled at a meeting of about 70 community leaders at 12:15 p.m. Thursday in the Branding Iron Restaurant.

Architects are Sherwood Ritz Jr. and Walter Weber of Colorado Springs. Sam L. Huddleston, Denver park designer, is providing assistance for landscaping and part development.

The development was planned by the district in cooperation with School District 3 Board members who are also trustees of Security Public Library.

"Through efforts of all agencies, it was possible to eliminate duplication of facilities," the park district board said.

The community center would be of contemporary design. It would house an arts and crafts room with benches and kiln, large multi-purpose room, teenage center and administrative offices.

One wing of the community center would be a public library with approximately 6,800 square feet of floor space to house 20,000 volumes. Presently the library, in the District 3 administration building, has 7,000 volumes and 1,700 square feet of space.

The swimming pool would be an indoor - unit with an "L" shape. It would meet Colorado High School Activities Association and National Collegiate Athletic Association requirements. The diving "L" would have one - meter and three-meter boards. The larger section would have six swimming lanes to permit competitive meets. Outside the pool would be a large sun deck, wading pool and spectator area.

Lecture Series Set at Carson For Newlyweds

Four lectures for individuals planning marriage soon as well as newlyweds and other interested couples will begin at Ft. Carson Chapel 4 at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, March 16.

Chaplain (Major) Anthony Fagnani of 5th Division Artillery will open the series speaking on Morality in Your Marriage. He is a native New Yorker with experience in civilian parishes as well as many years of Army service.

On March 23, the Rev. Joseph Leberer, pastor of Holy Family parish, Security will discuss God and You, the Need for God, Preparing for Life and Religion in Our Life. He is a native of Denver, ordained in 1946 and now assigned to one of the area parishes with the highest percentage of military families.

Capt. James Delany, a physician from Ft. Carson's U. S. Army Hospital, will lecture on The Physical Aspects of Your Marriage on March 30. He is a graduate of the University of Colorado School of Medicine and another Denverite.

Marriage Adjustment on April 6 will be discussed by Ft. Carson's deputy Post Quartermaster, Ray Ferguson and Mrs. Ferguson of Colorado Springs. They have had seven years' experience in this field through Cana Conferences.

"Marriage must be prepared for just as specialized schooling is preparation for business and professional careers," Chaplain Fanani commented while urging individuals and couples to attend.

Manager Johnny Keane of the third catcher this season behind Ellie Howard and John Blanchard. Jake Gibbs, Billy Madden and Eliseo Rodriguez will battle for the third spot.

Mental Health Group to See Film at Meet

Dr. Gordon S. Riegel, internist and Dr. Douglas Gregory, psychiatrist, will describe the nature of "The Obsessive-Compulsive Neurosis," a film to be shown at the monthly meeting of the El Paso County Association for Mental Health at noon Tuesday in Dott's Chicken Shack.

Most children go through phases of this condition when they insist upon stepping on every sidewalk crack or on touching every lamp - post, the association said, but what about adults who "must" wash their hands every ten minutes or so.

"Like the child, the neuotic adult has his reasons for performing his ritual acts; something very terrible will happen to him if he does not carry them out.

"Unlike the child, the compulsive adult does not outgrow the pattern. Even when he knows his ritual is meaningless, he is unable to control himself," the association said.

The film tells how such a person was unable to keep a job for five years because of his problem. The patient's feeling about his symptoms and his progress in therapy are depicted in the movie.

The public is invited and reservations may be had by calling 633-5306.

Washington Prof to Give Annual CU Delong Lecture

Edwin Hewitt, professor of mathematics at the University of Washington, will be at the University of Colorado this week to deliver a series of technical talks and the annual DeLong mathematics lecture.

Hewitt will deliver the free and public lecture at 8 p.m. Thursday, March 18, in the West Ballroom of the University Memorial Center. A public reception is planned at 9:15 p.m. in UMC Alumni Hall.

Hewitt will speak on "Mathematics vs. People," in which he will show that mathematics is "both a fine art and a weapon which can be used as a bane or blessing to mankind."

Hewitt will be brought to campus by means of a bequest to the Department of Mathematics by the late Ira M. DeLong, who taught mathematics at the University from 1888 to 1925.

The Mathematics Department also has scheduled two technical lectures to be delivered by Hewitt March 17 and March 22. Topics will be "Fourier Transforms," in two parts. Each lecture will be delivered at 4:10 p.m. in Room 104 of the Physics Building and are free and public.

Hewitt holds A. B., M. A. and Ph.D. degrees from Harvard University and he has been a Guggenheim Fellow at the Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, N. J.

He taught at Bryn Mawr College and the University of Chicago before joining the faculty at the University of Washington in 1948.

Hewitt is author of about 75 research papers and two books, "Abstract Harmonic Analysis," with K. A. Ross, and "Introduction to Real and Abstract Analysis," with K. R. Stromber

The Delong lecture series began in 1962. Other lecturers have been Paul R. Holmes of the University of Michigan and Marshall Hall Jr., of California Institute of Technology.

Austrian Fans Dig Mozart; Boo Beatles

SALZBURG, Austria (UPI)—Austrian fans who dig Mozart booed the Beatles Saturday.

Jeers replaced accustomed cheers when the mop-tapped music group arrived by charter plane from London to shoot ski scenes for their latest movie in a village still listed as in danger from avalanches.

Police reinforcements supported by three trucks carrying fire hoses to quell any groups surging out of control kept close watch on the jeering crowd of 5,000 while special cars sped the Beatles away unharmed.

No serious incidents were reported as the teenagers of this home of the famed annual classical music festival registered their protest of the beat group's invasion.

The Beatles were enroute to Obertauern where 14 visiting Swedish students were killed when an avalanche struck the bus in which they were traveling just over a week ago.

The Beatles were reported to have taken out special avalanche insurance.

Members of the crowd cramming the airport carried signs saying "Beatles go home" and "Reinforcements for the Alpine Zoo."

Thailand Joins Malaysia in Anti-Red Fight

KUALA LUMPUR (UPI) — Thailand agreed Saturday to join Malaysia in the fight to wipe out Communist terrorists operating along their common border.

In ceremonies signing the pledge for mutual assistance, Thailand's deputy defense minister and Air Chief Marshal Dawee Chullasapya said "Thailand will never fail to live up to its commitments."

Signing for Malaysia was Home Affairs Minister Dato D. Ismail Bin Abdul Rahman.

Ismail told a news conference that one of the major points of the pact called for establishment of combined intelligence headquarters at Songkhla in southern Thailand. About 60 men will be assigned to provide Malaysian and Thai forces with intelligence reports on movement of the Red guerrillas.

Prime Minister Tengku Abdul Rahman meanwhile was reported Saturday still hopeful that peace talks might be held with Indonesia's President Sukarno, who has vowed to "crush" Malaysia as a bastion of colonialism.

Man Exposes Himself to Four Girls

A case of indecent exposure was reported by the police Saturday.

The incident happened Friday evening when four girls all aged 12, were walking along East San Rafael Street.

March Would Be Dangerous, Governor Says

tion in the major cities of the United States — New York, Rochester, Boston, Nashville, Los Angeles, Kansas City.

So, if the charge of police brutality makes it a fact that police brutality prevails, then it is prevalent everywhere.

The only difference in the tactics used to break up demonstrations in Alabama and those used in New York, Rochester, Philadelphia and Cleveland is that fewer people are hurt in Alabama than in any one of these places.

Legislature Considers More Annexation Bills

of any proceedings for judicial review."

It also says that "A judicial declaration voiding an annexation shall not invalidate the levy and collection of any taxes, license fees, or charges collected or imposed by the annexing municipality. . ."

This bill provides a way out for annexed property owners. It allows owners of more than five acres to petition to disconnect from the city three or more years after annexation if the city does not "provide the same municipal services on the same general terms and conditions as the rest of the municipality receives. . ."

The bill does not say if the municipality has to accept such a petition and does not give owners of less than five acres the right to even petition to detach.

The Colorado Springs City Council has endorsed Senate Bill 122, but does not like another bill. Last Tuesday they passed a resolution against Senate Bill 226. Councilman William Roe, who sponsored the resolution, said the bill would "seriously affect cities proposing annexation."

Bill 226 would delay annexation of unincorporated areas by cities or towns until July 1 following the date of an annexation ordinance. Taxation by the city could not start until after the next Jan. 1.

Few Demonstrators Break Through Police Lines

ended when Baker planted himself in front of a line of singing clergymen and nuns, led by a Negro minister, and told them if they were going to move to the courthouse they would have to "move over me."

The second boiled up a few hours later, when over a thousand civil rights advocates streamed out of Brown's Chapel Church, broke into two columns, and marched toward officers drawn in an L-shaped line around two sides of the apartment project ringing the church.

One line was led by singing nuns and another by a white minister with a Negro girl on his arm. When they reached the police lines, they spread out, chanting and taunting and shoving the officers.

It was, Negro leaders confirmed later, a diversionary tactic to draw officers' attention away from smaller bands of demonstrators trying to skirt the police lines and dash through the maze of apartment buildings.

Troopers sprinted wildly to head them off. There were scattered reports of officers striking Negroes. Most of the groups were stopped, but one band of 18, including two white girls, got through.

When they got to the courthouse they found deputies and possemen ringing the building and a crowd of whites gathered quickly.

The demonstrators dropped to their knees to pray and about a dozen of the whites came up to them, screaming "Nigger!" The leader of the demonstrators, James Webb, asked the deputies for protection.

"We are pulling back and leaving you here," said Chief Deputy L. C. Crocker. "We can't promise to protect you." He ordered the deputies back.

At that point Baker arrived and Webb asked him to promise not to let anyone hurt the demonstrators. "I'm not going to let anybody hurt you," Baker replied, "but go back to the church where the rest of your people are."

He ordered the whites back and led the group out, walking beside them seven blocks back to the church. On the way, he arrested Webb.

Joly Gordon, 32, 2221 W. Colorado Ave., suffered multiple bruises and was taken to Penrose Hospital by E & E Ambulance.

The accident occurred at 6:25 p.m. Friday when the car, driven by Robert J. Cordova, 27, Fountain went out of control and left the road. Cordova was eastbound and going down grade from the Gold Camp Road when he came to a Y intersection, skidded on the snow packed road and was unable to make the curve. He left the road and went down a bank, rolled over once, and stopped with the car upright and facing west.

His car, a 1965 model, had approximately $500 damage, according to the patrol.

Famous Hymn Too Dependent, Britisher Says

MANCHESTER, England (UPI) —Lecturer Arthur Pollard said today "Lead Kindly Light" and "Nearer My God To Thee" were dropped from the new Angelican hymn book because "the old must make way for the new."

"'Nearer My God To Thee' had to go, because. . .it encouraged a maunderingly dependent attitude," said Pollard, who was literary adviser to the publisher of the hymn book.

"'Lead Kindly Light' is a fine poem, but it was never meant to be a hymn."

was at the hands of state troopers. You do not need to strike unarmed, non-resisting people with clubs, whips or anything else to move them back.

"In numerous cases Alabama white officials have not made a good enough effort to deal fairly with Negroes seeking to vote.

"The News understands concern of whites in Negro-heavy counties. But Negroes are citizens. The vote is as lawful for qualified Negroes as for whites. We believe many whites in Alabama really do not believe Negroes should vote . . .

"This must mean that the first way to begin stopping street demonstrations is by our showing publicly, in actual registration practices, that Alabama will accord qualified Negroes a vote already constitutionally theirs.

"There no longer can be white reluctance to do the right thing."

Huge Sale of Stock Stirs Finance Circles

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A huge sale of stock stirred high interest in financial circles during the week.

It was the U.S. government's disposal of its 93.3 per cent interest in General Aniline & Film Corp., seized in World War II as property of Nazi Germany.

The sale of 11,166,438 shares at $29.476 each totaled $329,141,926.

The winning bid was made by a syndicate headed by Blyth Co. and First Boston Corp. The unsuccessful bidder was a syndicate led by Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Lehman Brothers, Glore Forgan & Co. and Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith.

Buyers oversubscribed the issue and the price of General Aniline quickly went to a premium on the over-the-counter market.

The sale ended 23 years of wrangling between the U.S. government and Interhandel, Inc., a Swiss holding company, over ownership of the stock. Interhandel claimed that it, rather than German interests, owned General Aniline.

Under an agreement, the U.S. government will get about $183 million of the $329 million sale price and Interhandel the rest, minus about $24 million in taxes.

In another financial development, the merger which formed the Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. of New York, the country's fourth-largest bank, was ruled by a federal court to be in violation of antitrust laws.

As a result of the ruling, the $6-billion institution could be split in two. Just how that could be done was the big question.

Manufacturers Trust Co. and Hanover Bank merged on Sept. 8, 1961.

Judge Lloyd F. McMahon did not direct that the bank be split but he ordered it to file plans to comply with the ruling within 10 days.

The Commerce Department reported that business plans to increase its capital spending by 12 per cent this year from the 1964 record of $44.9 billion.

The Commerce Department and the Securities and Exchange Commission, which carried out a joint survey, said the increase would carry the "investment upsurge into its fifth consecutive year."

It was noted, however, that the report indicates a slowing in the rate of gain from the 14 per cent advance in 1964.

Retail sales climbed in February to $23,015,000,000, establishing a record for the third straight month.

The total topped the February 1964 level by 7 per cent and was 1 per cent above January's $22,881,000,000.

Sales of nondurable goods, amounting to $15,271,000,000, accounted for all of the gain from January. Durable goods sales declined 1 per cent.

The Federal Reserve Board reported that consumer installment credit in January rose a record $670 million. The board attributed the increase to "a marked expansion in automobile credit and continued strength in other consumer goods credit as well as in personal loans."

The expansion in January exceeded the $560-million gain in December and the previous record rise of $579 million in February 1964.

The automobile industry raised its sights for 1965. Executives talked about the likelihood of selling nine million cars, including 500,000 imports, this year. Sales in 1964 totaled 8.1 million.

With the heavy demand holding up, production in this first quarter was expected to be 2,550,000 cars and automakers are scheduling 2.6 million for the second quarter.

Output during the week was estimated at 210,600 cars, up 2 per cent from 207,485 last week and 28 per cent above 164,315 a year ago.

The steel industry attained another production record last week when it poured 2,765,000 tons of ingots, up 1.5 per cent.

Vandals Cause $175 Damage to Window

Vandals caused $175 damage to a plate glass window at Guy Martin Buick, 1313 Fountain Creek Blvd. police said Saturday.

According to the report a ball bearing had been thrown through the window. This is the sixth such incident within the past four weeks.

Longer Steel Bargaining Period Urged

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI)—The editor of Steel Magazine today suggested negotiators for the United Steelworkers Union dustry "reinstitute the 120-day bargaining period."

Walter J. Campbell indicated it was unreasonable to expect an agreement in the steel industry before the present May 1 strike deadline because 2½ months of the original negotiating time has passed.

Campbell described steel negotiations as "a mess," and blamed the situation "solely (on) political wars within" the union. He urged the battling USW factions to get together.

An agreement should be reached between challenger I. W. Abel and USW international President David J. McDonald "to establish a bargaining commission," Campbell said, "and to abide by whatever agreement is reached, regardless of the outcome of the union's political contest."

"This is a time to set aside politicking and display statesmanship to protect workers and the economy from further harm," Campbell said.

"An excessive emotional impact on the economy" is likely to be felt with the inventory building, later liquidation of strike hedge material and what Campbell called the inevitable decline in the economy because "liquidation recessions are tdicky and difficult to control."

The situation also encourages the purchase of foreign steel, Campbell said, and "once the lines of commerce are established, they are likely to continue." He added, "by forcing more steel imports, the steelworkers' union is, in fact, exporting the jobs of its members.

"Workers and industries not directly involved are damaged" Campbell said. For example, he said, fabricators would have to quote on long term, firm price contracts without knowing what increases they face in materials prices or in the cost of wages of their workers because of a new steel contract.

The magazine predicted that with talks resuming on a company-by-company basis, it will be at least two weeks before "hard bargaining" can begin on a new contract.

LBJ Pledges to Achieve Victory for Civil Rights

born, or his neighborhood, Johnson went on.

Johnson said the final answer to the problem of voting rights will not be found in armed confrontation but in the process of law.

"Your government, at my direction, asked the federal court in Alabama to ask officials in Alabama not to interfere with the constitutional rights of American citizens," he said.

Johnson said he met with Wallace to discuss thoroughly the situation in Alabama.

He said Wallace expressed concern that disturbances were a threat to the people of Alabama. Johnson said he himself expressed concern about the grievances — that Negroes in Alabama who had been denied voting rights should have opportunity to call attention to their plight.

"I understand their concern," Johnson said.

"I advised the governor of my intention to press with all the vigor at my command to assure that every citizen of this country is given the right to participate in his government at every level through the complete voting process," Johnson said.

The governor in turn expressed interest in law and order, the President added.

He said he told Wallace, "The brutality in Selma last Sunday must not be repeated."

Johnson quoted Wallace as saying he knew of the affair and regretted any situation in which an American citizen met violence.

Johnson said he had urged Wallace publicly to declare his support for universal suffrage in Alabama, and for the right of peaceful assembly.

He proposed also that Wallace call a bi-racial meeting to discuss the situation in his state.

The President indicated he would ask Congress for legislation which would provide for registration of all citizens not only in national but in local elections. This latter provision has met some strong opposition in Congress in the past.

Asked whether Wallace had indicated any degree of acceptance of his suggestions, the President said he would let Wallace speak for himself — that he understood the governor was to make an appearance Sunday.

Ultimatum to Viet Reds Is Urged by Solon

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — The best way to show the Communists and the rest of the world that the U.S. intends to stay in South Viet Nam is through a three-point ultimatum which includes bombing of industrial centers in North Viet Nam, Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., said Friday.

McGee said the U.S. should tell the governments at Hanoi and Peking to stop aggression and the sending of troops into South Viet Nam "or face bombing of every known military base encampment or billet in North Viet Nam."

He said the second step would be to "announce publicly that we'll bomb every highway or bridge leading into North Viet Nam to cut off transportation and supply lines."

"As the ultimate step we would bomb the industrial centers in North Viet Nam," he said.

McGee, earlier in Washington, had discussed his plans for an ultimatum to the Communists in North Viet Nam and Red China.

Friday he said at present there is no basis for negotiations between the Hanoi and Peking governments except on their own terms.

He said only by discharging the three ultimatums "will we set the stage for realistic negotiations on some sort of settlement with Hanoi."

"We can't win at the conference table what we won't risk on the battlefield," he said.

He added "The U.S. must convince the Asian Communists there is more to be gained through negotiations than through waiting."

"We must offer them inducements to negotiations by making them more aware of our intentions in South Viet Nam."

He said the three-point ultimatum would "dispell Hanoi's false ideas of U.S. withdrawal and clearly indicate the United State's decision to other governments of Southeast Asia."

"An honorable solution to conflict may be found if we can get the degree of stability needed to launch a constructive program of economic, political and social levels," he said.

He also said a settlement with Hanoi would have to result in two Viet Nams, "at least to start with. This is the most we can expect."

"It means an American commitment to sustain the line to win time to let the forces of economics erode the Iron Curtain," he said.

Youths Peppered With Skeet Shot Friday Night

Two youths, one 16 and the other 17, were peppered with skeet shot Friday night and taken to Penrose Hospital, police reported.

Orval Junior Owaltney, 435 W. San Rafael St. said the pair were prowlers but the boys who were in the vicinity of Owaltney's garage, denied it saying they only wanted to relieve themselves.

The incident happened at 10:45 p.m. Friday. Owaltney said he heard prowlers and has had several such occurrences recently. One occasion, he told police, he found a step ladder against the wall leading up to his daughter's bedroom.

Owaltney ran outside, spotted the pair by his garage and fired some shots. He explained he wanted to hit them so they would go to hospital and then he could identify them.

One of the boys ran to his car and took off and the other disappeared on foot. The pair turned up later at the hospital. Neither of them are seriously injured.

Negro Women Pray Outside Reeb Home

BOSTON (AP)—Negro women knelt and prayed outside the home of Mrs. James J. Reeb. They were expressing their sorrow, and the sorrow of millions of others over the death of her husband.

Mrs. Reeb and her father-in-law, Harry D. Reeb, had returned from Birmingham, Ala., in a four-engine C-140 jet provided by President Johnson.

She was then faced with the painful task of informing her three youngest children, Karen, 7, Anne, 8, and Steven, 4, that their father was dead. Her older son, John, 13, already knew.

As she returned, expressions of regret and shock came from all walks of life.

Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston, said, a "sense of outrage that grips this land today will become a great and added force to achieve justice for all men."

Reeb, a Unitarian minister, was attacked and beaten Tuesday night by a group of whites during racial demonstrations in Selma, Ala. Reeb, also white, died Thursday in a Birmingham hospital.

"Mrs. Reeb is not a bitter woman," said John Sullivan, executive director of the New England region of the American Friends Service Committee. He also returned from Alabama Friday with Reeb's widow and father.

He said she is clearly and visibly impressed by the messages of condolence and words of support from the President on down.

Marie Reeb had not wanted her husband to go to Selma.

But, Sullivan said, "she knew that Jim felt any cause worth fighting for was worth risking his life for."

The youngest three had thought their father only severely hurt until the tragic news was brought to them by their mother.

"She embraced them and told them," Sullivan said. "They were weeping when I left."

The minister's body was cremated and flown to Casper, Wyo., where he was ordained in 1953.

Rigney began his playing career in 1938 with Spokane in the Western International League.

Ray Werner Named Winner Of CC Benezet Fellowship

Prof. Ray O. Werner of the economics department at Colorado College has been awarded the college's Benezet Faculty Rotating Fellowship for the forthcoming academic year.

Professor Werner will spend the year studying law because he believes it will enable him to do a more effectibe job in integrating the teaching of economics and political science. His field is political economy.

The Benezet Faculty Rotating Fellowship was established last year to enable a faculty member to spend one year on a subject to improve his undergraduate teaching. Made possible through a $40,500 brant from the Danforth Foundation, the fellowship rotates annually among members of the faculty.

Professor Werner plans to study tax law, constitutional law, and anti - trust regulations. He says the study plan will enable hhim to improve both the depth and breadth of his undergraduate teaching and the quality of ihs research.

Prior to joining the faculty at Colorado College in 1948, Professor Werner taught at the Universities of Tennessee, Nebraska and Illinois. He holds a Ph. D. and a master's degree in economies from Nebraska and a bachelor's degree from Hastings College.

He is the author of numerous articles on economic problems in professional journals and for more than a year has been editor of the Legal Developments in Marketing section of the "Journal of Marketing."

The Benezet Faculty Rotating Fellowship pays the recipient his annual salary; plus a summer session salary and $1,000 for expenses. Fellows are released from teaching and other campus responsiobilities during the year.

42-Inch Mackinaw Trout Is Caught

PINEDALE, Wyo. (AP) — A fisherman angling through the ice in Fremont Lake near Pinedale recently almost went over his limit with one catch.

The unidentified fisherman pulled in a 42-inch, 31-pound mackinaw trout.

But when game and fish biologists opened the fish to determine its age, growth and stomach study, they found two 16-inch kokanee salmon and an 18 - inch rainbow trout in its stomach.

The big fish had eaten, apparently in a short time, three fish larger than most anglers catch in a full season.

If it makes any difference, the mackinaw was estimated to be 15 years old.

City Drivers Urged to Pay Extra Attention to Brakes

City drivers attending a driver education course this week were urged to pay extra special attention to their vehicular braking systems.

"Your life and that of others may depend on the respect and consideration you give those brakes," drivers were advised by John Verna of the safety education division of the Colorado Industrial Commission.

He suggested that brakes be tested "before they have to be used" since its entirely possible that a braking system could be "lost" overnight. Verna also said it was possible to have brakes for forward travel and not for backing, and vica versa.

"So test those brakes before a vehicle is taken out on the job," he said. He further suggested that checks should be made from time to time during a driver's work day. "It only takes a minute."

Verna is a recognized authority on braking systems since, prior to joining the state organization, he was employed for more than 12 years with the Bendix-Westinghouse Brake Division.

Verna further suggested that drivers use the right combination of braking and gearing on grades.

He said that "fanning" of brakes on a downgrade would result in more brake failures than if a driver used the proper gear and steady brake pressure.

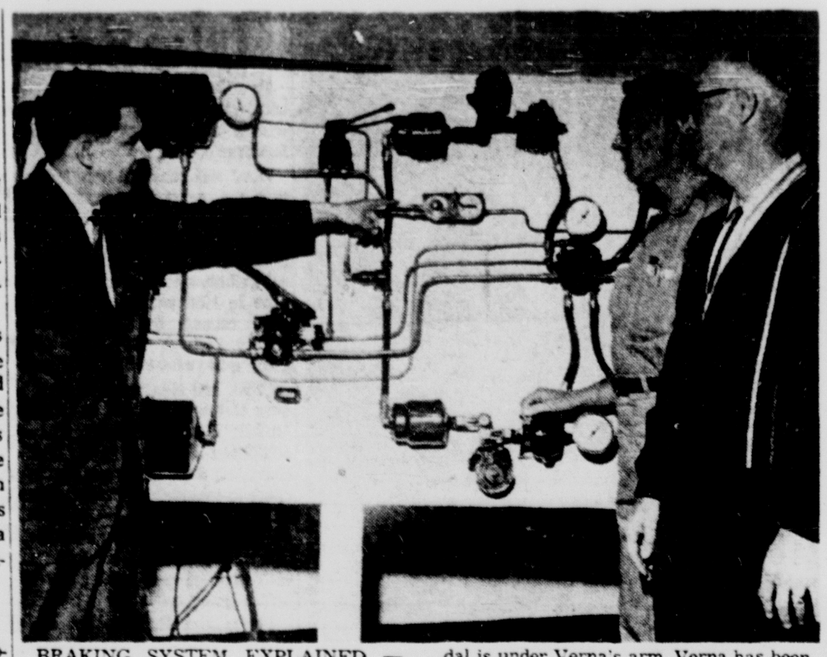
Verna said sudden stops caused by heavy brake pressure creates considerable heat and forces resin out of the brake shoe material, which results in "glazing" and possible brake failure at a critical time. Such operations also makes brakes "egg-shaped," which is both a safety hazard and costly operation wise.

MAKES MISTAKE

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI)—Police said that Charles Augustus Pruett, 45, of Santa Clara, made one mistake when he tried to sell 19 rare books to an Oakland bookstore.

The same bookstore had sold the same books to Alma College, a Roman Catholic institution near Los Gatos, not long before.

The store called police and Pruett now faces grand theft charges.



BRAKING SYSTEM EXPLAINED — John Verna (left) of the Colorado State Industrial Commission is shown here explaining a simulated straight air brake system to Robert Snuggs, in charge of the city equipment pool, and Loy Harper, city garage foreman. The brake pedal is under Verna's arm. Verna has been discussing braking systems to city drivers this past week at a driver training course. Snuggs and Harper have been instructing drivers about maintenance and preventive maintenance.

Drivers Urged To Pry Rocks From Dual Tires

Drivers of city - owned dual wheel vehicles have been instructed this week at a driver training course to pry out rocks between the duals.

Robert Snuggs, in charge of the city equipment pool, said such a rock could be projected out of the duals when the vehicle is out on the highway or street and injure or even kill someone, not to mention the threat of property damage.

Snuggs and Roy Griffith of the State Industrial Commission reported that a rock thrown out from a dual wheel truck crashed through the windshield on a car behind it and resulted in the death of the driver. The fatality was over on the Western Slope.

Griffith said the rock crashed through the windshield of the car and hit the driver on the forehead. There was a witness to the incident.

Both Snuggs and Griffith said city drivers, who operate larger trucks, should make frequent checks to see that there are no rocks stuck between the duals. Griffith is a former state patrolman.

FACE SLOW-DOWN

MIAMI (UPI) —A Cuban exile organization reported Saturday the Fidel Castro government had put military supervisors on Havana docks to deal with "slow-down tactics" of Cuban stevedores.

The organization, Journalists' Information Agency (AIP), said the slow movement of cargo is costing Castro's government more than $1,000 daily.

20,000 Drivers in Denver Did Not Pay

DENVER (UPI) — The city of Denver said Friday 20,000 drivers owe it around a quarter of a million dollars in unpaid fines.

The State Motor Vehicle Division agreed to help the city try to locate the offenders.

Paul Pomponio, administrator of the Denver County Court, estimated the 20,000 drivers have 26,000 tickets outstanding and that the fines will amount to about $10 each.

Pomponio said under a plan worked out with state officials, Denver will turn over the names of the delinquent drivers to Frank Manshein, assistant chief of the Motor Vehicle Division, who will send lists out to all of Colorado's 62 other counties.

This James Bond Didn't Go Free

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) — James Bond was drunk, his eyes bloodshot and he smelled of liquor, Constable Johannes Slabbert told the magistrate. He added Bond told him he was 28, lives in New York and that his identity number was 007. An unshaven Bond said of the charges, "Lies all lies, the cops are jealous of my reputation with the local girls." But justice was swift for the namesake of Ian Fleming's fictional hero. He was fined $14.

BON VOYAGE — Congressman Frank E. Evans receives three young Coloradoans who are on their way to spend their junior year in Costa Rica (rom left to right): Karen Ruth Hamil of Sterling, Margret Wiemer of Denver, Congressman Evans, and Katherine Eileen Jend of 2537 Chelton Road, Colorado Springs. The three young ladies are students at the University of Colorado who are participating in the exchange program of the University of Colorado and the University of Kansas with the University of Costa Rica. It is traditional that participants in this program stop off in Washington on their way to Central America, to meet with their Congressman.

CU Law Students Win Case Before Supreme Court

Two University of Colorado second - year law students have won a case before the U. S. Supreme Court.

Word was received here today that the court has granted a motion by Thomas E. Croak and James A. Henshall Jr., both of Boulder, for a new trial for Samuel Arthur, who was convicted of rape in 1956 without benefit of legal counsel by an El Paso County District Court. He was given a 30-years-to-life sentence.

Croak and Henshall are members of the CU School of Law's Student Legal Aid Clinic. They submitted a petition to the high court last September asking the court to include the Arthur case in its 1963 ruling — Gideon vs. Wainwright. In that case the court held that an indigent is entitled to proper legal counsel before going on trial.

Profs. Jim R. Carrigan and Austin W. Scott Jr. of the law faculty put their names to the petition as "counsels of record."

Carrigan, who is faculty adviser to the legal aid clinic, said that this is "possibly the first time in history that law students have won a case before the U. S. Supreme Court." He said that only two other states besides Colorado permit law students to argue real cases in court — Connecticut and Florida.

The case first came to the clinic's attention two years ago. Arthur, an indigent, wrote to ask for legal aid. Students in the clinic at that time appealed Arthur's conviction unsuccessfully to the El Paso court and then to the Colorado Supreme Court.

The clinic handles both civil and criminal cases for indigents. The law students who staff the clinic do all the work on the cases and, under Colorado's unique law, appear in state courts to argue the cases.

The case on which the CU petition was based received widespread publicity, partly due to a book about it, "Gideon's Trumpet."

CAN'T TELL BY LOOKING — The ingredients in the test tube cannot be determined simply by looking. The same is true of the National Merit Scholarship Finalists pictured above. Top Students Find That a Library Card Is the Key to Their Success

By SHARON ERVIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

A library card may be one of the keys to the difference between a high school drop-out and a National Merit Scholarship finalist.

Four finalists in the National Merit Scholarship Program, answering questions about their backgrounds, may have cast some light on the baffling question of the high school drop-out. The three boys and lone girl, all seniors, were the only area students notified they had been selected finalists in the scholarship competition. They are Ann Fleischer, Woodland Park High School; Jim Lenters, Manitou Springs; Alfred A. Hagedorn III, Cheyenne Mountain, and Ronald Cottingham, Harrison.

The increasing number of drop-outs prompted the state board of education last year to begin a five-year study into why students quit school before graduation. Findings at the end of the first year were vague. They did show, however, that a large percentage of the drop-outs had above average abilities but that their grades were below the norm — possibly due to difficulty in reading.

All three National Merit Finalists visited a library during or before the second grade. In each case, parents encouraged them to read by reading to them, by seeing to it that they went to the library whenever they wanted and by having books around their homes which the children could read, understand and enjoy.

"We lived near a library when I was in the first and second grades," Jim Lenters recalled. "I liked checking books out on my own library card. Later on I reached a point where I read as many as two or three books a week. I was real careful with the books from the library. I guess I took care of them because I didn't think it was right to be careless with other people's property."

"If you are pretty good reader," Ron Cottingham said, "I think everything else in school comes easy. I always liked to read. I bet I read everyone of those Hardy brother stories and an awful lots of sports stories by the time I was through junior high."

But reading is not the only thing these finalist have in common. All of them are active in sports, student government, church activities, dating and each plays a musical instrument. All have their sights set on going to college. The majority of drop-outs, the study revealed, was not active in extra-curricular school or church activities.

Besides being a cheerleader and editor of the school annual, Ann Fleischer has been active in the speech department as a debater and in plays, in the music department singing in musicals, in the band playing the tuba, in the Lutheran Church and still has time to date frequently. She hopes to attend Colorado State College where she wants to become a teacher in either math or speech.

Jim Lenters is on the student council, played football, is a member of the Letterman's Club, secretary-treasurer of his church youth group and dates casually. He plans to go to Colorado State University or Denver University and also is interested in math.

Alfred Hagedorn is on the swimming and track teams, is president of the Spanish Club and belongs to the marching and concert bands. He has a rock collection and enjoys doing chemical experiments at home besides auditing a math course at the Colorado School of Mines every Monday night. He has been accepted at Cornell University and wants to be a college chemistry professor.

Ron Cottingham enjoys all kinds of sports, football, basketball and baseball. He is historian for his senior class, an active member of the Pikes Peak Youth Association and the Calvary Baptist Church. He wants to go to Baylor or Colorado College where he plans to major in mathematics and business administration.

Emotional problems at home were blamed for many of the high school drop-outs. Three of the four National Merit finalists admitted that their home environments have been fairly stable, despite frequent moves.

"My home life has been what you might call 'stable' always," Alfred said, voicing the opinions of three of the four finalists. "Of course, I fight with my little brother some, but I think that is to be expected."

"For me, home life and school life always have been separate," Ann said. "Just because I was smart, I didn't get out of doing the dishes."

Ronald Cottingham's mother and father were divorced in 1955 and his mother remarried a year later.

"Things at home didn't make a difference in my school work one way or the other," Ronald said. "We have moved about a dozen times since I started to school but that hasn't seemed to make much difference either. I think it depends on how sure of yourself and your own abilities you are."

Asked about the importance of good grades, study habits and how much television they watch drew varied answers.

"I have a pretty good memory — except that I forget appointments and phone messages and things like that," Alfred said, smiling. "I think my parents had a lot to do with my good grades. They never tried to force me to study or anything like that. But both of them went to Cornell University and they had told me so much about it that I knew that was where I wanted to go to college someday and I knew Cornell just does not let you in unless you have good grades. My study habits aren't the best, though. I like math and chemistry and don't mind studying those but when a teacher assigns an English theme two weeks early, I can be sure I will be up until about three o'clock the night before it's due, writing it up.

"I don't care much about watching television — there are too many other things I would rather do. When I have time I watch the news and sometimes stay up for the late movie, but even then I read while I watch the movie.

"I am worried about not having any good study habits," Ann said. "I have a good memory and have relied on that to make good grades. I never had to worry and my parents never did bribe or threaten or even mention grades very often. They just expected me to make good ones and I always did. I watch a lot of television. I just sort of watch whatever's on. I like Mr. Novak and variety shows but I never saw any sense in staying up for the late shows. I require more sleep than most of my friends anyway."

"I have a theory about making good grades," Ron said. "If you have a good start, if you do well the first couple of weeks in a class, the teacher knows you have the right attitude and he will let you by if you have to slack off for something later on. Usually in September and October I readily go at it hard. Then later, I let things slack off a little. But you can't let it slide for too long. If you keep up, you can skim over stuff before a test and it all seeps in. I got behind in a Spanish class once. I let it slide for a couple of weeks. That is the only C I ever made. I just couldn't get it back under control in time. People used to say I got the best grades for the least amount of study of anyone they knew. They just didn't know how much I studied because I did it every time I had any spare time — 15 minutes at the end of a class or just before football practice or something like that. I watch television some. I like sports events and comedy shows more than anything else."

"My parents always encouraged me to do well in school," Jim said. "They never made a big thing about it, they just always seemed to expect me to do well. I have a pretty good memory but I'm little absent-minded, especially about things I don't care about doing. I guess I like television all right but I would rather read or something."

Counselors talking with potential drop-outs have resorted to contacting the students' parents occasionally. They have been met with indifference, a lack of concern and persons who felt their children's decisions were none of their business. In a few cases the parents said they had no influence over the decisions of their children.

The four finalists were asked what might have happened had they announced they were quitting school.

"You couldn't get anything like that past my mom," Ron declared, smiling at the thought. "I'm afraid she would have flown off the handle. And she could have made me stay in school. I think religion has a lot to do with it. If you read the Bible and study its doctrines, you just don't rebel against your folks. I respect my mom's opinions too much to go against her once she was definite about something and she would have been definite about that."

"The answer would have been a definite no," Alfred said. "My parents wouldn't have tried to force me to stay in school, but I think we would have had a pretty long talk about it. In fact, we probably would have had such a long talk that I probably would have rather stayed in school than keep trying to convince them. We always have talked things out like that."

"Oh, I've been disgusted with school a few times," Jim said. "But I doubt if my folks would have let me quit. I would have had to have some real good reasons. No, even then, I don't think it would have worked out."

"My parents wouldn't have believed me if I had told them I wanted to quit school," Ann said. "They probably would have wanted to know all the reasons and I don't think any reasons would have been good enough. I respect my parents a lot and I would have realized it meant enough to them to try to make me graduate, then I would have gone on just because they thought it was important. Sometimes, when you are young, you have to rely on somebody else's opinion. Of course, it has to be someone whose opinions you respect."

Winners in the National Merit Scholarships will be announced unofficially March 30 and will be released for publication in April. The names of drop-outs, according to the study, seldom appear in print until they reach the welfare rosters.

Springs Heads State in Resources For Aid to the Mentally Distrubed

Colorado Springs has at least 25 directly related resources for mental illness services and is regarded as well ahead of any other community in the state in the area of help to the mentally disturbed, Dr. James E. Brady, psychiatrist and director of the Emory John Brady Hospital, said Thursday night at the Colorado College Rastall Center.

But mental health is a two-way road and must be met at all levels through recognition of the illness, followed by referrals to the proper agency for treatment, he said.

Dr. Brady, guest speaker in the last of a series of educational lectures sponsored by the El Paso County Association for Mental Health and the Colorado Springs Junior League, Inc., likened mental illness to cancer.

Although a great deal is known about the causes of mental illness, more work needs to be carried out in primary treatment of the disturbed person, he said.

Dr. Brady said research someday might uncover a drug for immunization of mental illness, "but until these discoveries are made we must make the best of what we have," he said, referring to a well-informed public that will take action to complete a web dedicated upon solving the problems facing the mentally ill.

The psychiatrist, director of Emory John Brady Hospital for the past 15 years, said it is the informed public's responsibility to lower the level of psychological disturbance through rehabilitation, improved schools, health and welfare program, recreation, projects to stop juvenile delinquency and a host of related community activities.

"The ideal would be complete prophylactic of mental illness in the community, but no immunization is available," he said.

Patients and their families too often play the game of musical chairs," by neglecting to seek proper guidance, Dr. Brady remarked.

"The recognition of symptoms of illness provides opportunities to channel this into agencies in the community. This is a two-way road and these must be met at all levels," he said.

Dr. Brady mentioned school teachers, ministers, policemen, judges and probation officers and others as part of the first line corpsmen who command a vital service in the referral system.

Agencies where services are available include the El Paso County Association for Mental Health, County Council on Alcoholism, Family Counseling Service, the Welfare Department, Child Guidance Clinic, the Pikes Peak Mental Health Clinic, Central Psychiatric Institute, units in the state hospital, Mental Evaluation Clinic and private resources.

"It is these citizens and agencies of the community that is most valuable," Dr. Brady said.

Mrs. Lorna Hines, executive director of the Mental Health Association, explained what assistance and service is offered by the county mental helath group. These include a scientific research program, public information, service, rehabilitation and social action.

Mrs. Ann Tyler, a coordinator of the series of lecturs, said volunteers are needed to work with mentally disturbed persons through the Mental Health Association. Work would be locally and through the state hospital.

Information about the volunteer program may be obtained from the El Paso County Association for Mental Health, 509½ N. Tejon. The number to call is 633-5306.

Mountain Park Plan Set for Council Agenda

Further discussion of the proposed Mountain Park plan is expected to be among the routine items on the Florence city council agenda Monday night, it was noted this week by City Manager Frank Carochi.

However, the projected trip to the Newlin Creek area, where the park location has been proposed, was postponed by the city council last Sunday because of poor road conditions in the area and the heavy snow pack in the Greenhorn mountain near the Newlin Creek water intake.

Also on the council agenda will be the postponed hearing on the Eagles lodge application for a club liquor license, and further discussion is anticipated on the sealing of reservoir No. 3 with soda ash.

Other items on the agenda are routine business matters, Carochi indicated.

ANCIENT CAULKING

NEW YORK (UPI) — The most famous natural asphalt lake in the world — 212-acre Pitch Lake in Trinidad — was discovered by Christopher Columbus, who used asphalt from it to caulk seams of his ships. Asphalt is one of the world's oldest known building materials, say researchers at Allied Chemical's Barrett Division. One of its basic uses today is in roofing materials.

China Orders Gas by Ship

TOKYO (AP)— A Japanese tanker chartered by Red China has been ordered by the Chinese to carry gasoline from Shanghai to Communist North Viet Nam, Kyodo news service reported today.

It quoted the Japan Seamens Union as receiving the report from Capt. Mitsuyoshi Yamada of the 1,558-ton No. 3 Nippo Maru.

Union officials sent a message to Yamada telling him to reject the order but no reply has been received from him, Kyodo said.

U.S. Aircraft raided the area near Haiphong, a port east of Hanoi, in the first retaliatory airstrike against North Viet Nam last August.

Kyodo said union officials decided to turn down the Chinese request in fear the Japanese ship may get involved in the Vietnamese war.

The year 1964 was New York City's driest since 1869, when weather records were established.

LBJ PLans News Conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson will have a news conference Saturday afternoon, and is expected to discuss proposals for voting rights legislation.

Press secretary George E. Reedy said the news conference, tentativeiy, will be at 3:30 p.m. EST at the White House.

While it is being keyed to the voting rights message and legislation, Reedy said: "We don't plan any spectacular, or any television coverage."

The session with newsmen, the first in more than a month, may be delayed beyond the contemplated time. That is because Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach is drafting for Johnson's approval the proposed message to Congress on voting rights.

Katzenbach, who was at the White House when Reedy made the announcement, said he felt he could have the message ready by Saturday afternoon, and, hoped that it would satisfy the chief executive.

The attorney general said he thought Johnson then would submit the message to Congress at the beginning of next week.

Reedy said there would be no live radio or television coverage of the news conference.

Four Kings Attend Funeral in Sweden

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Queen Louise of Sweden was buried Saturday after a simple funeral attended by four reigning kings.

A laurel wreath encircled with a white band was the only floral decoration on the coffin during the slow procession from Stockholm Cathedral to the royal family's burial ground.

The wreath was from King Gustaf VI Adolf, 82-year-old husband of the German-born queen who died last Sunday at the age of 75.

Close to a thousand guests filled the 13th Century cathedral near the royal palace. It was simply decorated, mostly with white flowers, according to the late queen's wishes.

King Gustaf, in an admiral's uniform, entered the cathedral with his daughter Ingrid, Queen of Denmark, on one arm. Princess Alice of Greece, 80-year-old sister of the deceased, was at his other side in her nun's dress.

The three other kings were Olav VI of Norway, Frederick I of Denmark and Constantine XI of Greece.

Gathering Set Sunday Afternoon

DENVER (AP) — The Denver area Council on Religion and Race plans a gathering Sunday afternoon on the west steps of the State Capital to express concern with the situation in Alabama.

The Rev. Murphy C. Williams, House chaplain, and vice president of the council Friday morning invited House members to participate. He said the governor and members of the State Senate are also being invited "to take this witness for full citizenship" for the Negroes in Alabama.

Gidget Goes to Finals Leaving It All Up to Finicky Old Lady Luck

Text By SHARON ERVIN
GT Photos By STAN PAYNE
Staff Photographer

A short, very pretty brunette hobbled into the office of the counselor at Air Academy High School. The girl was on crutches. And she was there to apply for the Junior Miss Contest.

The girl was Gidget Farrell, Colorado's entry in the National Junior Miss Competition which began in Mobile, Ala., Friday.

Gidget is 17 years old. She stands 5-2, weighs 101 pounds, has shiny dark brown hair, laughing brown eyes and a single dimple which flints in and out of her cheek with her frequent smiles. She moved here with her family from Ohio last September. Her father, Capt. D. M. Burke, is a chemistry instructor at the Air Force Academy. She has an older brother Paul, 19, who is at Capital University in Ohio, a younger sister, Janet, 11, and a younger brother Ronnie, 6.

Asked how she got into the local Jaycee - sponsored Junior Miss Contest in the first place, Gidget said that notices about the competition had been posted around Air Academy High.

"They announced that any girl who was interested in representing Academy High in the local contest should come to the counselor's office," Gidget explained. "No one went in. So, a couple of days before the contest, they called me out of study hall. The counselor said the teachers had selected five of us to apply. I was really surprised. Normally I don't usually look too bad, but I was on crutches." With that, Gidget hurried on with the story, dismissing the details of what had happened to her foot. Prodded she smiled sheepishly and said she had broken a small bone in her foot.

"Well, if you have to know," she relented, "I broke it getting out of bed one morning. I don't like to tell anyone because it sounds so dumb. I just stepped out on it wrong I guess.

"Anyway, when the counselor asked me about the contest, I told her I would have to talk to my parents. My father was not too pleased about it at first but Mother thought I ought to try. I didn't know. My talent is tap dancing and we didn't know if it would hurt my foot to be dancing on it or not. But I went back to the counselor's office the next day to apply. She looked surprised.

"The good thing is I don't have a certain dance. I just sort of make it up as I go along. I didn't need to be practicing a routine so I stayed on the crutches. I listened to the music until I knew it perfectly.

"There were 20 to 25 girls competing from the Colorado Springs high schools. I always am frightened before I go on stage — in fact, I'm always frightened while I'm there — but I wanted to represent the school to the best of my ability. I imagine the contestants from every school did.

"When they announced Miss Colorado Springs, I wasn't expecting to win so when they called my name, I couldn't think of what I should do. But it was all wonderful. They gave me the roses and the crown and I was so happy I could hardly stand still.

"My father hadn't been able to go to the contest and he is one of those persons who is not very emotional about things. When I got home, I couldn't seem to calm down. He just smiled and didn't say much, but he helped me put my flowers away so they would keep for a few days. He hurried around and looked like he was pleased and that look made me even happier.

"The next day, though, I was back on my crutches — at least until the state contest, a week away.

"That week was a busy one. Mrs. Than Lindquist coached me in walking, turning and modeling the clothes I was supposed to wear. Mel Weimer, representing the Jaycees, kept us up to date on what was going on as far as organizing the trip was concerned. And it was finals week at school. We were pretty busy.

"The state contest was Jan. 29 and 30 in Englewood. I didn't know any of the girls, but they put two of us together in a private home. The girl I was with and I were so excited, we talked until about four in the morning the night before the contest. But we made up for it by sleeping until one the next afternoon.

"My family was in the audience — even my dad, who had to make special arrangements to be there. I was among the six finalists they named and they asked each of us a question. Mine was whether I thought a woman could hold down a job and be a housewife too. I said I thought being a wife and a mother was a career in itself and I felt children need the security of having a mother at home with them, but that I certainly admire any woman who can do both at the same time.

"When they announced the winner, I didn't hear my name and I looked around to see who was coming to the microphone. My Jaycee escort whispered to me to get up and to hurry. He was awfully nervous.

"This time, it was even more thrilling when they put the crown on my head and handed me the roses. There were a lot of other gifts too, including a $300 scholarship, a trophy, a supply of Breck products, two cameras and all kinds of wonderful things.

"A few days later I even got a card from my older brother. It was real nice and a real surprise. Any girl who has an older brother probably knows what I mean. I never expected him to be so proud, much less to write me a letter about it."

Since winning the state title, Gidget has been trying to get ready for the national contest. There have been television appearances, shopping sprees, dancing instruction, modeling tips, pictures which had to be taken and submitted to the committee in Alabama, etc. Despite the activity, Gidget has managed to keep her grades up, to miss only two days of classes and to be selected Academy High's Valentine's Dance Queen.

"I am really getting excited now," Gidget laughed, the week before leaving for Alabama. "We are having six-week finals at school and I ought to be concentrating but I can't do my homework or sleep or anything. We keep getting information and questionnaires and everything from the contest people. A couple of weeks ago, they asked if I would have some pictures taken and in the mail a week before we got the request. That is hard to do, you know. But I went to the Deits Brothers Studio and they were really wonderful about working overtime to get the pictures out. Mr. and Mrs. Keith Willis, of the Willis Dance Studio, offered to help me with my dancing several times, but I only had time to go over there once. Of course Mrs. Lindquist has been working with me on my walking and modeling and Mr. Weimer had been working harder than anyone else trying to get things organized.

"Also, I got a letter from the contest committee saying I would be rooming with the candidate from Alaska and that we would be staying with the Harold Drews there in Mobile. The airlines sent me the bag for my dresses and a small travel bag. Well, suddenly it seems so close that I can hardly wait."

As far as the national contest is concerned, Gidget seemed preoccupied with the trip and meeting the different girls — while her mother was having visions of the results of the contest. Mrs. Burke, her fingers crossed, said she thinks Gidget just might win, but smilingly admits mothers are awfully prejudiced.

"Winning is a pretty special thing," Gidget said. "It would be an awfully big honor to be chosen to represent all those girls. I am not thinking too much of winning. I feel like luck has a lot to do with these things and you can't really tell about luck. Luck must have had something to do with it up until now, or else I never could have come this far."

Despite the honor and excitement of being in national competition, around home Gidget has the problems common to most high school seniors with a younger brother and sister. Although her trophies stand as shining evidence of her achievements — Miss Grove City (Ohio), 1963; Miss Congeniality in the Miss Teens Unlimited Pageant; Miss Talent in the Miss Teens Pageant, and the state Junior Miss Trophy — Gidget still has to threaten Ronnie before he will mind her and must treat Janet with the respect due an equal in order to get along. And the statewide victory prompted a card from Paul. The card had a large pair of feet on the front. Inside the message read "Congratulations on your big feat."

Gidget left Colorado Springs Thursday morning. The National Junior Miss Competition began Friday afternoon and will continue through this week. Television's Mr. Novak (James Franciscus) will emcee final activities for the contest Friday night. The final portion of the contest will be televised in color at 8 p.m. on NBC, Channel 5.

THE WINNING SMILE—Gidget pauses a moment to admire her collection of trophies and can't seem to hide a smile. "Luck must have a lot to do with winning," she laughed. "or I never could have gotten all of these."
(Gazette Telegraph Photo)

A TAPPER WITH A TOPPER — From the taps on her dancing feet to the tip of her high-top hat, Gidget fairly sparkles with vivacity. Despite the offer of professional help in working up a definite dance program, Gidget politely explained that she prefers creating a different routine each time she dances — even in national competition.

A MOUTHFUL—Despite the excitement and glamour of the approaching National Junior Miss Pageant, Gidget settles down to study for six-week exams early in the week of the contest. And even a Junior Miss enjoys a cupcake after a long day at school.

CONFIDENT CONFIDANTS — Ronnie, 6, and Janet, 11, watch Gidget pack for the trip to Mobile. Ronnie was the fellow who displayed his unshaking confidence in his sister by sleeping soundly through the state contest, despite the discomfort of his auditorium seat. He awoke surrounded by excitement. Teased about sleeping through the program Ronnie countered with, "I didn't have to stay awake. I knew she'd win."

Carson Gets 11 Displaced Civil Service Workers

Eleven Civil Service workers affected by the closing of installations throughout the United States have accepted new jobs at Ft. Carson, accroding to Norbert M. Socha, director of civilian personnel.

Four of them come from Camp Hale, Carson's subpost near Leadville; four are from XIV Army Corps area in the Midwest; and three come from Black Hills Army Depot, Igloo, S. D.

Other Camp Hale civilians are going to the U. S. Air Force Academy and to Ft. Bliss, Texas. A total of 11 persons will be affected by the June 30, closing date.

Those coming to Ft. Carson have needed skills, mainly in the technical services. Some persons have considered Fort Carson vacancies and decided to choose others, Socha said.

Department of Defense has a comprehensive program to give displaced civilians every opportunity to relocate within Civil Service. They will be trained in a new skill if necessary and family relocations will be made at government expense.

Lists of job categories held by the more than 28,500 persons affected are being circulated throughout the Civil Service regions. Installations with matching vacancies query a central office for details.

Other federal agencies are being asked to cooperate in placements and positions in private industry are being sought through Department of Labor and State Employment Services.

Bones of Peter Identified, Says Scientist

By PIERO DE GARZAROLLI

ROME (AP- — An Italian archeologist who believes she has identified St. Peter's bones said it took her 11 years to solve the riddle of an empty funeral monument beneath the apostle's Vatican basilica.

Prof. Margherita Guarducci, Rome University specialist in ancient inscriptions, told a news conference Friday that she put two and two together after "stumbling by chance" on a long-forgotten container.

Excavations under St. Peter's Basilica between 1940 and 1960 brought the discovery of a Second-Century B.C. pagan cemetery and a nearby marble-covered monument erected in the Fourth Century A.D.

"The cemetery was highlighted by the remains of a small funeral structure and an adjoining wall studded with primitive inscriptions where I was able to decipher the Greek words 'Petros eni' — 'here is Peter'," said the professor.

The structure and the wall were part of a larger and partly demolished construction she said, on which three altars were built above ground over the centuries. The last of them — built by Pope Clement VIII in the 15th Century — is the main bronze-canopied altar that stands today in the basilica transcept.

"I was puzzled by two facts," the archeologist said.

"A hole in the earth right near the funeral structure, which obviously was a tomb, was empty, as if its contents had been taken away in a hurry. Secondly, the inscripted wall hid an inside chamber, where I found small relics of human bones.

"Then someone told me that, years ago, diggers had emptied the inside chamber, placed everything in a small wooden box and left it in a room of the Vatican grotto."

Prof. Guarducci said she located the box in the summer of 1963 and found it contained human bones and specimens of a gold-embroided red fabric.

Prof. Venerando Corenti, anthropologist from Palermo University, concluded that the bones found in the box were those "of a male, about 60 to 70 years old, and of robust build" — data which the Vatican press office said corresponds to what is known of St. Peter.

The woman archeologist said portions of earth found in the box matched exactly with earth from the hidden chamber and near the funeral structure.

"This led to only one conclusion," she added.

"Around 1950, zealous researchers opened the inscribed wall and found the bones without the suspicion dawning on them of having discovered what had been sought for centuries — the remains of St. Peter."

NO LUNCHES

SEOUL (UPI) —Nearly a quarter of South Korea's 4.7 million elementary school children are going without lunch these days because of food shortages in rural areas, the education ministry announced today.

South Korean farmers customarily go hungry in the spring, after winter supplies of food have been exhausted and before the barley crop is harvested. The government hopes to be able to provide school lunches this year with the aid of the U.S. CARE agency.

H.L. Hunt Writes

On mail addressed to a party in the same city, mailed from downtown before 7:00 p.m., a special delivery stamp is likely to cause it to reach the addressee within less than three hours.

Mail addressed to a recipient where it would reach him on a certain day if it were not a Sunday or holiday, will normally be delayed until the following regular weekday. There may be a loss of one or two days in transmission time because the day for delivery is not a regular weekday. This loss of time which can be anticipated can be eliminated by adding a Special Delivery stamp costing 30 cents for a mailing of 2 pounds or less.

Correspondents who are anxious to have their message delivered as soon as possible, in their urgency frequently add a Special Delivery stamp to their missive. This will sometimes defeat their purpose. A Special Delivery stamp on air mail between many cities will cause the mail to be delivered an average of four hours later than the same mail without a special delivery stamp.

Busy people overly inclined to use special delivery can inexpensively test times of delivery by also sending simultaneously to the same addressee a duplicate or dummy letter requesting the recipient to note the difference in the times of delivery of each letter and notifying the sender of the difference in time.

He will have done the postal department and taxpayers a distinct service by developing the information when a Special Delivery stamp expedites delivery.

STRANGER THAN FICTION—Twelve years ago Lt. Juergen Heise, Air Force Academy Library executive officer, and Lt. Dieter Schuenemann of the German Air Force, were classmates in a Berlin School. Lt. Heise and his family moved to the U.S. and for more than a decade the school chums lost track of each other. This week, as Lt. Heise briefed a group of visitors from the German Air Force Academy, their paths again crossed. Neither knew fate was to bring them together until the Germans began their tour of Fairchild Hall, the academic building. (Air Force Photo)

Friends Meet Again After Twelve Years and an Ocean

Need proof truth is stranger than fiction? Read on!

Two years ago an Air Force Academy officer surprised German Air Force officers and cadets visiting the Academy. This week the Luftwaffe came back for another visit — and floored the Academy officer with a surprise of its own.

In the fall of 1962 cadets and officers of the German Air Force Academy were surprised when they walked into Academy Library and heard a briefing on the facility delivered not only in German, but in the vernacular particular to the city of Berlin.

To hear a briefing in German by an American Air Force officer was not too unusual, but the Germans were amazed to hear 1st Lt. Jergen A. Heise, Library Executive Officer, come up with terms and phrases generally only heard in the middle of Berlin.

Lt. Heise was born in Berlin and came to the U.S. in 1952.

This week another group of Germans came to the Academy. Lt. Heise was asked to assist not only in briefing them on the Library, but also on other Academy facilities, primarily because of his success in 1962.

After he had talked to the Germans about the seminar classroom concept at the Academy, he was leading the group of about 40 officers and cadets to one of the engineering labs in Fairchild Hall, the academic building.

As Lt. Heise led the group down a hallway, someone walked up behind him and tapped him on the shoulder.

"Say, is your first name Juergen?"

"Yes" . . . followed by a gulp gulp and silence as Lt. Heise turned around.

The man who asked the question wore the uniform of a German Air Force First Lieutenant.

The last time Lt. Heise had seen him was in a classroom of a high school in Berlin 12 years ago.

"Dieter Schuenemann, right?" asked Lt. Heise.

Despite the fact that both were twelve years older, they recognized each other instantly.

Lt. Heise and Lt. Shuenemann had been good friends in Berlin where they had attended the same schools together for six years. They lived on the same block, too.

Over the years, the two lost contact with each other. Lt. Schuenemann, a crew member of the plane which brought the German officers and cadets to the Air Force Academy, knew only that Lt. Heise last lived somewhere in upstate New York. He had tried to locate him on previous trips to the U.S., but he was unsuccessful.

Neither knew that the other was serving in the air force of their countries. Lt. Schuenemann had no idea that Lt. Heise was at the Air Force Academy. Nor did Lt. Heise know that Lt. Schuenemann was part of the Luftwaffe group visiting the Academy — until they recognized each other in the hallway.

Lt. Heise has been stationed at the Air Force Academy since 1962. His home is in Camillus, New York.

Western Art Exhibit Opens At First National Bank

Twelve original Western oil paintings by Jack Roberts of Glenwood Springs have been placed on view in the lobby of the First National Bank in Colorado Springs. The paintings will remain on display through March 25.

In 1963, the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States commissioned Roberts to do a series of 12 paintings for their national 1965 calendar. Of the 15 paintings submitted by Roberts, 12 of the best were selected for incorporation in the full - color calendar, which has been distributed to hundreds of thousands of persons throughout the United States.

The original paintings will be displayed in various banks and art galleries throughout the nation during the year of 1965.

Roberts, the artist, lives and works in the small community of Hanging Gardens just outside of Glenwood Springs. The 43-year-old artist is a native of Oklahoma. A graduate of Oklahoma University, he also attended the Chicago Art Institute, the American Academy of Art in Chicago, and the Art Students' League in New York. He also studied for two years with the well - known artist Harvey Dunn at the Grand Central School of Art in New York.

Some years ago, as a result of his work with Dunn, who urged him to search for really worthwhile subjects, Roberts came to Colorado to become a cowboy. For more than five years he rode for various ranches and cattle associations, before setting out to paint pictures as a full time profession.

Roberts explains: "The American cowboy is a raw - boned outdoor man and a self - confessed maverick in today's civilization. Only a good saddle horse, the wide open range and the high wind can satisfy his restless spirit. He is not to be pitied, indeed he has a life that is the envy of millions." This approach, Robert transfers to his paintings. The First National Bank showing of Roberts paintings has been made possible through the courtesy of F. Jordan Bayless of Colorado Springs.

Instructors From Carson Aid Reservists

Expressing the One Army concept, several traveling instructors from Ft. Carson have been working with citizen soldiers throughout Colorado.

Capt. Joseph Mason, assistand chemical officer, and his crew repeated this project Saturday at Ft. Carson for a similar group and travel to Denver today to instruct guardsmen and reservists from the Denver area north and east.

Other team members include 1st Lt. Raymond Whang, Master Sgt. Lawrence Meurer, SFC John Norfleet and Specialist Fifth Class Peter Dolan.

Similar classes were given earlier to ROTC cadets at Colorado College and Colorado State University.

Officers from Ft. Carson and the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) have just concluded a series of briefings at CSU in Fort Collins to explain various branches to ROTC cadets there. They were invited by Col. George T. Laughlin, professor of military science and tacties.

These visiting lecturers and their subjects were: Lt .Col. William H. Stites, Armor; Lt. Col. Herbert A. Fincher, Signal; Capt. J. W. Gontarski, Transportation; Capt. S. P. Takacs, Ordance; Major J. WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D.,Ph.D.

Cora Taylor belongs to that great army of Sunday School teachers who donate their time to help implant consciences in growing youngsters. They volunteer, without any pay, and get up on Sunday in winter blizzards or summer heat waves to cultivate the Golden Rule. More power to them!

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph. D., M. D.

CASE V-436: Cora Taylor is an active worker in the Sunday School at Warren, Ohio.

Recently she sent me some Bible questions that she has used very effectively with children.

* * *

"Dr. Crane," she added, "I wonder what you think of my idea about a Bible Question Box?"

Well, having taught Sunday School myself for 40 years, I am always delighted to meet other teachers in this field and exchange ideas.

You teachers can add some dramatic novelty to your lessons if you will use Mrs. Taylor's suggestion about a Bible Question Box.

On separate slips of paper typewrite 15 or 20 questions pertaining to the lesson.

Offer four answers thereto, only one of which is correct.

Add the exact Bible reference on the slip of paper containing your question.

Then divide your class into two teams, with a captain of each.

Let a member of one team reach into the Bible Question Box for a slip of paper bearing a question.

Then he can read it aloud to his teammates with the four answers.

Let him select the answer which he considers correct. If he picks the right one on his first try, give his team 4 points.

However, if he misses on his first selection but strikes it right on the second, then credit his team with 3 points.

If it requires a third choice before he gets the correct answers, credit his side with 2 points.

And if it is only on the last try that he finds the proper answer, award his team just one point.

Then have the rival team pick a question and also try to select which of the four answers is correct.

For example, suppose this is the question:

"Adam's wife was named — SARAH — ABIGAIL — EVE — ESTHER."

That is what we psychologists call the "multiple choice" or 4-answer type of objective exam question.

Teachers, you permit more "audience participation" to let different members of the team pick a question, instead of having the Captain do all the selecting.

And this wholesome form of rivalry adds tremendous zest to every age group, whether grade schoolers, teen-agers or adults.

Another popular question that I have used for many years in my daily newspaper quiz column, is the "matching problem."

(a) Adam	(v) Bath-sheba
(b) Jacob	(w) Elisabeth
(c) David	(x) Eve
(d) Zacharias	(y) Zipporah
(e) Moses	(z) Rachel

Allow one point for each correct matching. Teach your students to start with the easy ones and then by process of elimination try to make a perfect score of 5 points.

Send for my booklet "The Logical Proof of God," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents, for it also has many other suggestions.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Birth Control Testimony Is Conflicting

By KEN ROBISON

DENVER (AP) — The state Senate's Health and Welfare Committee has received a mass of conflicting testimony on the question of whether birth control information and services should be offered to welfare recipients and other low income families who want it.

A bill sponsored by Sen. John R. Bermingham, R-Denver, received the backing of 20 witnesses and was opposed by 10 Friday in a 2½-hour hearing before the Senate's Health and Welfare Committee.

Supporters included spokesmen for the Colorado and Denver area Council of Churches, Planned Parenthood of Colorado, a private organization, and an Arapahoe County commissioner. Opponents spoke as individuals, with the exception of Richard Casey, said he represented the Catholic Archbishop of Denver.

Casey said the legislation would encourage adultery and that the state government should not sponsor birth control assistance. He said there would never be a consensus of opinion on one side or the other.

Supporters said the only way to make birth control assistance available to low income people is through welfare agencies, contending that fewer unwanted children would mean lower welfare costs, fewer family problems and less delinquency and crime.

Dr. William Goddard, director of obstetrics and gynecology at Denver General Hospital, said middle and upper income families demand birth control information and services as a right and can afford it.

He said "criminal abortion" is the only known method of birth control for many low income families. He said about 10 per cent of pregnancies end in voluntary abortions and that the hospital had 200 such cases last year.

The Rev. Russell Nakata of St. John's Episcopal Cathedral in Denver of the Denver area Council of Churches, said a person would be free to refuse the services, and a welfare worker would not have to provide them if to do so conflicts with his religions beliefs.

John Yelenick, a Denver councilman, said the bill points a finger at welfare and aid to dependent children benefits. He said "there is an implied suggestion that those who are poor, who receive ADC, will be promiscuous and their children will be illegitimate."

Mrs. Joyce Maloney, Boulder, who said she was the mother of nine children, said "I don't like big government telling me how many children I should have." For welfare workers to provide information would amount to coercion, she said.

Mrs. Maloney said the problem should be left to private agencies.

And she asked if the "others" referred to in the bill might be prostitutes.

"Lady, the ladies who are prostitutes have got the money to go to doctors," said Mrs. Sheri Everhart, executive secretary of Planned Parenthood of Colorado. She said the organization was "sweating under the strain" of the help it is asked to give.

"There are 35,000 women between 15 and 44 in Colorado who are medically indigent" she said.

She said the non-welfare recipients who would be covered by the bill are women with low income who are caring for their children and haven't yet come under welfare.

Bernard Valdez, Denver welfare director, said welfare workers can legally give birth control information now but need legislation to support them. He said he endorsed the bill, speaking only for himself.

Mrs. D. B. Underhill of the Denver Welfare Board said "a wanted child is never an abused child, and the wanted child is the planned child."

Other speakers for the bill included Joseph Goldman, a Jewish rabbi, the Rev. Entino Duran, speaking for the Denver Family Court, the Rev. E. L. Whittenmore and the Rev. Montie Slusher, both of the Colorado Council of Churches.

The Rev. Mr. Slusher said the bill should include a provision so that it extends to migrant farm workers in Colorado. He said many are unacquainted even with the rhythm method of birth control, which is not in conflict with the faith.

"I have seen far too many families of seven, eight and nine who try to survive on $1,400 a year," he said.

Accident Rate Up in Springs For February

There were 320 accidents in Colorado Springs last month, according to a report sent to Police Chief Cecil J. McKissick by Lt. Herb Tinsley, traffic bureau commander. There were 316 auto accidents.

This compares with only 262 accidents during February 1964.

McKissick said there were 48 injury accidents last month resulting in injuries to 70 persons. There were no fatalies.

By comparsion, he said, there were 54 injury accidents and 75 persons injured during February, 1964, and there was one fatality.

The police chief said there were 84 intersectional accidents during February and 28 of the hit and run type, 10 of which were cleared by arrest.

Enforcement action was taken in 78 per cent of the accidents, causing 260 persons to be ticketed.

McKissick said speed caused 79 of the accidents and failure to yield the right-of-way caused another 61. Following too closely was third high on the "hit parade" with 47. Nine persons involved in accidents had been drinking.

Recreation Potential of Pueblo Reservoir to Be Explored Soon

Fremont County Regional Planning commission members will soon be going into a huddle with Pueblo Regional Planning commission officials to discuss in some detail the future of recreation potential which will develop when the Pueblo reservoir is constructed during the period 1968-1971, it was announced by Lee Tripp, Florence member of the Fremont county group.

A joint meeting of the two groups has been tentatively scheduled within the next 10 days.

High in his praise for the preliminary work already done in this area by the Pueblo group, Tripp noted that there is currently a move under way to establish a state park between the proposed dam site and the city Pueblo. On the drawing board it is being referred to as the "Pueblo Buttes State Park, although this whole concept would be subject to change if the Colorado Fish, Game and Parks department should undertake the proposed venture in cooperation with the National Park service and Bureau of Reclamation.

In a letter to the Fremont County Planning Commission, Director C. Allan Bloomquist of Pueblo stated:

"We would welcome a meeting with the Fremont County Regional Planning commission on the reservoir question and the possibilities of total coordination of the Pueblo and Fremont plans."

Blomquist has suggested that the full commissions meet initially and then each commission appoint two members to a joint commission with possibly other members added from El Paso and Huerfano counties.

"We do have a community of interest," the Pueblo man stated, "since benefits from the Pueblo reservoir and SCSC accrues to all of us."

It has been noted that the $20 million Pueblo dam, one of the key elements in the Arkansas-Fryingpan project, is expected to start in 1968 and will be completed in 1971. The dam will be 180 feet high, 1.9 miles long, and 1,000 feet wide. A total of 11 million cubic yards of dirt will be moved in the construction process and some 425,000 cubic yards of concrete will be poured for the walls of the dam.

The dam site will be located within three miles of Pueblo although the back waters will extend into Fremont county in the vicinity of Swallows.

The Pueblo Planning Commission is vitally interested in having the state of Colorado establish a state park between the dam site and the city of Pueblo.

The park, which would be important to all of southern Colorado, would place a powerful recreational, educational and tourist attraction in a segment of the state where none now exists. Its effect on statewide tourism would be to fill an important gap in present tourist routes and circle trips, according to Pueblo planners.

The schematic land use plan now being suggested by the Pueblo commission calls for some 18,000 acres of land in the area below and dam and north of the site for (A) a high plains ecological preserve where buffalo and antelope could be maintained on native grasses, (B) a Buttes museum and historical compound, (C) reservoir waterfront facilities including picnic areas and boating ramps, and (D) valley bottom parks and lakes for camping, picnics, swimming, sunbathing, canoeing and riding.

Largest of the Arkansas diversion projects, the Pueblo reservoir will be designed for four main functions — including recreation, water irrigation, power, and flood control.

It will mean much to residents living throughout the immediate area and therefore has been made an important item on the planning agenda of Fremont county, which, next to Pueblo county, stands to benefit most from its recreational potential.

Windows will slide easier when a little paste wax is applied on window grooves and sash cords.

Recreation Potential of Pueblo Reservoir to Be Explored Soon

Fremont County Regional Planning commission members will soon be going into a huddle with Pueblo Regional Planning commission officials to discuss in some detail the future of recreation potential which will develop when the Pueblo reservoir is constructed during the period 1968-1971, it was announced by Lee Tripp, Florence member of the Fremont county group.

A joint meeting of the two groups has been tentatively scheduled within the next 10 days.

High in his praise for the preliminary work already done in this area by the Pueblo group, Tripp noted that there is currently a move under way to establish a state park between the proposed dam site and the city Pueblo. On the drawing board it is being referred to as the "Pueblo Buttes State Park, although this whole concept would be subject to change if the Colorado Fish, Game and Parks department should undertake the proposed venture in cooperation with the National Park service and Bureau of Reclamation.

In a letter to the Fremont County Planning Commission, Director C. Allan Bloomquist of Pueblo stated:

"We would welcome a meeting with the Fremont County Regional Planning commission on the reservoir question and the possibilities of total coordination of the Pueblo and Fremont plans."

Blomquist has suggested that the full commissions meet initially and then each commission appoint two members to a joint commission with possibly other members added from El Paso and Huerfano counties.

"We do have a community of interest," the Pueblo man stated, "since benefits from the Pueblo reservoir and SCSC accrues to all of us."

It has been noted that the $20 million Pueblo dam, one of the key elements in the Arkansas-Fryingpan project, is expected to start in 1968 and will be completed in 1971. The dam will be 180 feet high, 1.9 miles long, and 1,000 feet wide. A total of 11 million cubic yards of dirt will be moved in the construction process and some 425,000 cubic yards of concrete will be poured for the walls of the dam.

The dam site will be located within three miles of Pueblo although the back waters will extend into Fremont county in the vicinity of Swallows.

The Pueblo Planning Commission is vitally interested in having the state of Colorado establish a state park between the dam site and the city of Pueblo.

The park, which would be important to all of southern Colorado, would place a powerful recreational, educational and tourist attraction in a segment of the state where none now exists. Its effect on statewide tourism would be to fill an important gap in present tourist routes and circle trips, according to Pueblo planners.

The schematic land use plan now being suggested by the Pueblo commission calls for some 18,000 acres of land in the area below and dam and north of the site for (A) a high plains ecological preserve where buffalo and antelope could be maintained on native grasses, (B) a Buttes museum and historical compound, (C) reservoir waterfront facilities including picnic areas and boating ramps, and (D) valley bottom parks and lakes for camping, picnics, swimming, sunbathing, canoeing and riding.

Largest of the Arkansas diversion projects, the Pueblo reservoir will be designed for four main functions — including recreation, water irrigation, power, and flood control.

It will mean much to residents living throughout the immediate area and therefore has been made an important item on the planning agenda of Fremont county, which, next to Pueblo county, stands to benefit most from its recreational potential.

Date-Line

By Ele and Walt Dulaney

Several weeks ago we received a lengthy letter from a working mom who was debating the wisdom of enrolling her son in an all-boys day school. "How about doing some leg work for me," she wrote, "and find out exactly how the boys who attend these schools really rate them in comparison to co-ed schools?"

Her request interested us, so we accepted the assignment and went to work. We thought you might be curious about what these boys had to say about their all-male company, too. So, on with "Schools Without Skirts!"

Our first session produced a theme that was encored in nearly every subsequent interview. The recurrent note was "individual needs." "I found the environment and teaching methods at my school (an all boys parochial high school) fit me best," said a senior V.I.P. "But there's got to be something of value in the single sex instruction method," insisted a sophomore class officer at another all boys institution. "Look how long Europe has followed the system."

So, what's the PLUS available in one sex schooling? The fellows we interviewed saw plural values.

"Well, it lets you concentrate on the teacher and subject rather than on the pretty girl sitting across the aisle. Girls are great, but let's face it: they're distractions in class."

"The atmosphere is more relaxed and open. Without girls the emphasis is off social life and appearance — and on learning."

"There's no hesitancy, no embarrassment at answering or asking questions in class. You figure, it's just the guys! There's no shame at getting up in front of the class like there was in my last school, a co-ed one."

But lack of embarrassment was not the only plus area outlined. Many boys underscored the differences in female and male abilities and interests.

"In psychology our prof said there are definite areas of ability," reported a boys school alumnus. "In verbal and social fields, the girls are way ahead. But in analytical, mechanical and mathematical areas, we score the points. So, it's just good sense to separate the sexes. The boys can speed through science without being showed down by the girls. And the girls, in turn, can make more progress in English when we're not holding them back in class."

To others the greatest plus was the frank, candid, male atmosphere of the single sex school.

"There are restrictions in co-ed schools," frowned an outspoken senior. "You just can't say as much with girls present. Biology, literature, etc., demand honesty, often bluntness."

"That's right," agreed a track star. "And you're forced to compromise, to dodge the hard facts, and plain language of life in deference to the females."

"A boys school fosters a virile, masculine attitude towards life," insisted a third senior. "You can be candid in class without hurting someone's feelings. This world is not built on soft words and talk refined to the point of a tea parlor game. The common business community is composed of hard, astute men who can and do use the strongest language and images they can muster to make their points. I think it's sad to see how many boys graduate from high school so protected that they're shocked by blunt language and frank conversation."

Do you get the impression that the boys we interviewed were sold on their schools? Well, that's right. The boys, however, were honest enough to cite some of the drawbacks of separate schooling.

"You can't deny," said a good-looking senior, "that it's harder to master the social graces when you attend an all boys school. You don't have as much incentive to keep up your appearance, or watch your manners or censor your language."

"I'd say we're less likely to see girls as fellow human beings," reported another student. "We only see them when they're all painted and polished and dressed to the teeth in date situations. I think public school boys tend to be more realistic about girls than a boy school student will be."

A boys school debater said, "Girls think differently from boys. Their presence in a discussion makes for a more three-dimensional exchange. More points of view are aired and everyone benefits."

The fellows all insisted that a well-rounded social life was available if a guy was willing to hustle. "You can still get into church activities, clubs and community projects and meet girls," said an active senior. "And many of the boys schools work to arrange social functions with girls schools; in fact, I know our student council had at least one dance going each month."

"I guess that sums it up pretty well," concluded a fellow who'd gone from kindergarten on up through high school in the same boys school. "If you're willing to get out and work, you can have your cake (the advantages of a single sex school) and eat, it too (contacts with girls)."

(A Bell-McClure Syndicate Feature)

As we pointed out at the start, today's column concerned itself with boys day schools at the request of a mother. But we 'd like to learn more about boys boarding schools, too. If you've any thoughts or experiences to share with us, drop us a line in care of this paper.

Ex-Bus Driver Can Keep His Goatee

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Dave Hall, 27, lost his bus-driving job Friday, but kept his goatee.

Hall has had the goatee about six months, but only recently the bus company ordered him to shave it off. When he refused, the company suspended him, saying it was policy that drivers be clean shaven.

Hall said "there's a lot of principle involved here. It goes deeper than a beard. It's freedom."

Blonde Lives In Cave for Three Months

By GARVEN HUDGINS

GRASSE, France (AP) — A spunky French blonde emerged Friday from three months in an underground cave for science thinking this would be Feb. 25.

Josie Laures, petite and 23, had no clock and had lost all sense of time.

Miss Laures, a nurse in a Nice maternity clinic when she is not exploring caves, emerged from her cavern 240 feet underground tired and heavier than when she descended to the cave Dec. 14.

"I am tired, but very happy to be on the surface again," she said.

She wore dark glasses to protect her eyes from the snowy glare around the three - foot square entrance to the cave.

She told reporters: "I am so happy to have lasted it out, that I have forgotten everything. I can tell you though that it became very difficult toward the end and I felt terribly worn out. Several times I was terribly vexed with Michel Siffre for having put me down there.

"At the start of my stay I read, and then I lost the desire. I didn't suffer from the cold. I was well heated in my little tent. My tape recorder refused to work the first few days, but later I managed to repair it and I listened to music. Outside of that I knitted, and knitted some more, and looked forward to the time when I would finally see the sun."

A white mouse was her sole companion during the three-month ordeal. It came through the experiment in good shape.

As soon as she emerged from the shaft Miss Laures was bundled into a stretcher by Siffre, the project director, who gave her a small bouquet of mimosa to celebrate the event.

After a short rest, Miss Laures was flown by helicopter to Nice. There she was flown to Paris for medical tests.

White House Bugging Problem Is Reported

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Maj. Gen. Chester Clifton,, military aide to President Johnson, was quoted Friday by the Texas Tech newspaper, the Toreador, as saying that "bugging devices" create a security problem at the White House.

Clifton, here to address the Southwestern Journalism Congress at Texas Tech College, told students that the electronic listening devices were planted by possible foreign agents and by visitors in an effort to pick up conversations, the newspaper said in a copyrighted story.

"A piped music system plays throughout the White House 24 hours a day because we have found that it interfers with the operation of these bugging devices," the story quoted him as saying.

The military aide was quoted as saying that when President Johnson uses the telephone the music is turned up to help prevent interception of his conversation.

The student newspaper said Clifton declined to discuss the technical details of the devices or methods used to detect them.

Medicare Plan Voting Postponed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Technical delays have postponed until probably late next week a vote by the House Ways & Means Committee on legislation providing hospital insurance for the elderly.

The committee adjourned Friday without voting, thus squelching an original plan to rush the bill through.

The bill under consideration proposed a compulsory hospital insurance program for persons over 65 under Social Security, and a voluntary insurance plan to cover doctor bills.

The final program was expected to retain these general provisions. However, the committee has been running into problems in implementing them.

THE FAMILY GATHERS — Posing for a "family portrait" are Edgar Jones, seated, and the Law, Marshall Louis Dittemore with Red Cross Volunteer Mrs. Rosamond Quinn.

'The Law and Mr. Jones' Do Red Cross Volunteer's Work for Her

"Bringing warmth, a good listening ear and a little sunshine are the main ideas a Red Cross Volunteer keeps in mind when they visit shut-ins", according to Mrs. Rosamond Quinn, Chairman of Geriatrics for the Pikes Peak Chapter of the Red Cross.

However, a reverse situation exists when Mrs. Quinn visits a pair of "roommates" at the Manor Nursing Home, as these gentlemen bring humor, colorful stories and generally entertain Mrs. Quinn. These roommates are Louis Dittemore and Edgar Perry Jones.

Dittemore is an ex-marshall of Victor, Colo., and Jones is a musician. These gentlemen are opposite in every way. The "Marshall" is a tall man, loud and gusty. Jones is of small stature, good natured, quiet spoken.

The nurses in the home refer to them as the "Law and Mr. Jones". "The Marshall" strides down the hall on his two canes with a vigor that belies his 94 years. Jones gets around handily in a wheelchair and can shift himself to a piano bench to play with no difficulty. He is the Marshall's junior, being only 88.

The Marshall is a native Missourian, and in his words has "only lived in Colorado for 80 years". He can tell stories by the hour of the days at the turn of the century when Victor was a wild town that had to be put under marshall law. "Got all my education in the court room", says the marshall, "but I never lost a prisoner.

Jones is a native of Colorado Springs. His father was from Wales, his mother from North of Ireland. They came to this area for her health, sort of a "last resort" as Jones put it. Jones interest in music was increased after a few piano lessons and as a choir boy in Grace Church. Most of his training was self-taught, but he is a fine muscian and composer and was organist for the First Lutheran Church for over 57 years. The high point of his life occured when Rueben Goldmark, nephew of Karl Goldmark (composer of operas such as "The Queen of Sheba") came to the Colorado Conservatory of Music at Colorado College.

Goldmark offered to take a few outstanding musicians in a harmony class. Many called but few were chosen. Jones was accepted. And so the stories go on.

The Marshall tells you how fast he was with a six shooter. Jones relates details about his business connections with the old Hiltbrand Music Company.

March is Red Cross month and those who gave to the United Fund last fall make all the wonderful services of Red Cross possible.

Your Outdoors

By MARY SHIRER
For the Pikes Peak Group of the Colorado Mountain Club

Where did the earth come from? What exactly was the origin and how long is it likely to be here? What has the earth experienced in the remote past? All are natural questions but we are here and we know that all sorts of disturbances are taking place and man must struggle for existence. Disturbances of the earth are constantly going on. The earth quakes and rocks slip. Many times no harm is done and again it may be terrible disaster. Winds are in constant motion. Hurricanes, cyclones, tornadoes and other violent atmospheric disturbances take place every day. They reap a harvest of human lives that is appalling. Floods come and we stand by helpless. We try to stop the raging waters with every means possible and rescue the drowning people and those in danger and there is no power that can stop the rain or check the rising water. Fire strikes the city or town and the splendid fire fighting equipment are almost helpless.

We seem to have more explosions that cause terrible suffering and great loss of life. It is scarcely known just what caused them. We see large magnificent structures going to destruction and stand helplessly by. All the great scientific knowledge which the world possesses today is not able to turn their hands. With all the catastrophes that take place in the world, the world moves on. The sun comes up in its usual glory and goes down in splendor. The beauty in the world continues.

The mountains, plains and hills are all bathed in their usual radiance. The stars and moon shine forth in splendor. The world is glorious in its action. The rustle of wind, patter of rain or falling snow. Day is different from night, summer is different from winter. Have you ever walked over an area where disaster struck several years ago and noticed the plant life started to grow? Trees started to grow over the torn earth and grass and flowers trying to blot out the ruins. It is said that the ruins of Hiroshima Japan where the atomic bomb struck beautiful flowers creep up through the cracks of debris. Nature has a way of trying to cover up marred places.

In spite of all what this world offers, there are those who wish to delve into mysteries on land, water and air and into outer space. Some wish to destroy a beautiful world in which we live. For what? Selfish gain or test of modern war. A thing of beauty is a joy forever. It will never pass into nothingness but will keep a place in our hearts of people as long as they live. We see it in rolling clouds, placid shining beach, beauty in hills and mountains, foliage of trees, green of trees, spring wild flowers, sunshine and shadow. The world moves on all wonder and grandeur.

DISCOMFORT DURING PREGNANCY

Most pregnancies are uneventful; 98 out of 100 babies are normal. The major complications of pregnancy, such as eclampsia and impending miscarriage, are easily recognized. Minor disorders — such as bachache, constipation, varicose veins, hemorrhoids, urinary infections, muscle cramping, heartburn, and indigestion — are troublesome but rarely cause undue anxiety.

The thalidamide tragedy made many pregnant women fearful of delivering a deformed baby and some hesitate to take any medicine during the early months. This is a good practice unless medication is necessary.

Hemorrhoids and varicose veins are common during pregnancy because of the pressure of the enlarged uterus on the veins in the pelvis. In addition, certain hormones circulating in the blood reduce the tone of the vessel walls, leading to dilatation. Resting at intervals during the day with the legs elevated will help blood drain toward the heart. Elastic stockings also are of value.

The anal region should be cleansed carefully and constipation avoided with mild laxatives, diet, or the use of suppositories. Calcium helps muscle cramps unless they are caused by loss of salt.

Backaches generally are of postural origin. A bed board under the mattress is of value in keeping the mattress firm. Avoid strain, such as lifting children and large shopping bags. Heat also offers relief.

Urinary infections are not unusual and the physician will prescribe the remedy in keeping wit hthe causative micro-organism. Anemia requires treatment because the baby should inherit enough iron to take him over the nursing stage (milk has no iron). Iron tablets are available but dietary correctins may be needed when the diet is faulty.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

CHILD'S LEG PAINS

Mrs. J. U. writes: My 7-year-old son complains of leg pains only at night. Do you think this is serious?

REPLY

Probably not, even though one cause of this condition is rheumatic fever. Most children of this age are extremely active and enjoy roughhousing. Muscles are pulled and joints sprained several times a day. This is the most common cause of these pains. We would liken them to stiffness and aching that occur in adults after playing their first game of golf or tennis. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on leg pains in children.

Current Books

John Fetler, Book Editor

"The Enormous Zoo," by Colman, $4): With 20 years between us and Hitler's fall, the question in Willock (Harcourt, Brace & World $5.95). "How did it happen among civilized people?" is still mostly unanswered.

"The Seal Summer," by Nina Warner Hooke (Harcourt, Brace & World $3.95: Two doubly delightful animal books, their extra measure of pleasure due to good reporting and writing. Both Willock and Mrs. Hooke are professional writers of fiction and non-fiction. Mrs. Hooke also is a playwright.

Willock, a British television executive, went to Africa originally to make documentary films for a wildlife program of Anglia TV's Natural History Unit, which he heads. Another product of his visit is his enchanting book about two Uganda national parks and the problems met in establishing them.

Included is the control of population explosion among such creatures as rhinoceroses and hippopottamuses. Willock writes that you exercise such controls by two methods — cropping or culling, which is a polite way of saying you kill off the excess animals to prevent their starving to death after they've over-grazed the land; or by transferring them from over-to under populated areas. But first you must catch them. A full-grown rhino may weight 3½ tons. Fighting mad, it can reduce the hunters' motor vehicle, in this case, a Land-Rover, to rubbish. So can hippos. Willock tells one story of a hippo's biting its way through the side and floor of a Land-Rover, ". . .its upper and lower jaw meeting with a crunch of metal." He added that killing hippo in water is rather like shooting at ". . .pop-up targets in a fairground. With a fresh lungful of air, a hippo can stay submerged for up to four minutes, during which time it can travel a long way from the point of dive."

Willock is optimistic about the survival of African national parks, even though ". . .the African himself is not fascinated by animals as are Europeans and Americans. Often he actively dislikes them and there is no reason why he should feel differently. They are a constant threat to life and property in many areas, but they also represent an important tourist attraction — and ergo, an important source for foreign currency — for the newly independent nations.

Mrs. Hooke's account of an Atlantic gray seal's summer stay at a small English shore resort area is equally interesting in its own gentle way. The appearance of the seal and its puppy-like attempts at friendship with humans united the regular summer people with the local residents to protect it from the trippers (daily visitors from outside the community) and the trippers from the animal, should it become vicious. To the end of the summer, it remains a friendly creature that frolicked like a dog with its human friends, slept on the beach with its head in human laps and tried to follow humans home with sad cries when each day ended.

"Account Rendered, A Dossier on My Former Self," by Melita Maschmann (Abelard-Schuman, $4): With 20 years between us and Hitler's fall, the question "How did it happen among civilized people?" is still mostly unanswered.

Miss Maschmann, a former Nazi, provides in this book a personal account of events and thoughts during the party's rise and fall. Written in the form of a "letter of explanation" to a childhood Jewish friend, the book offers only occasional insights into the maze.

Switching between poignant regrets and the type of rationalization a salesman might use in selling faulty goods, the book traces the author's initial infatuation through to her break with the party after the war.

Rebellion against her middle-class parents' apathy toward suffering made the author vulnerable to the Nazi plea to help impoverished Gentiles. A soured romance at age 17 turned her into an avid Hitler Youth worker. And so on through her career as a party propaganda distributor.

Miss Maschmann, who now sees her error as one of being a "total believer," makes a sincere attempt to explain herself. She has written a notable chronicle of mental turmoil.

"Royal Marine," by Col. Sam Bassett (Stein and Day $4.95): The autobiography of a remarkable man. His unique military career is a combination of brilliance, daring, sophisticated farce and serendipity that can hardly be equaled in fiction—though a collaboration by Horatio Alger Jr., Ian Fleming and Evelyn Waugh might produce something like it.

Samuel John Woodruff Bassett was a delicately nurtured, 16-year-old fugitive from an Anglican seminary when a recruiting sergeant fast-talked him into signing up for a 12-year enlistment in the Royal Marines.

After a week in barracks, he was desperate. He didn't see how he could possibley serve even one hitch as an enlisted Marine, and there was absolutely no hope of his attaining a commission. All he wanted was out.

He was a full colonel when he retired in 1961 after 54 years' active duty — the longest record of service ever achieved by any U.S. or British Marine.

Bassett was one of the first two British Marines ever to be commissioned from the ranks, thanks at least in part to the recommendation of a duchess who admired his piano-playing and his knowledge of wines.

Between the years, he established a reputation as an intelligence officer and occasional polite spy or vigorous counter-agent.

In World War II, he became the principal allied expert on the coasts — and quite a lot of hinterliand — of occupied Europe. His Inter-Service Topographical Department, begun as a two-man operation in a disused washroom, had a staff of 6,000 by V-E Day, and its achievements were remarkable.

"O The Times! O The Manners!" by William Iversen (Morrow $4): A practical reader might object to the hoard of useless information includ4d here, but another could find it just as fascinating and almost as amusing as the author intended.

On the premise that the wars and politics of formal history are often textbook dull, Iversen has composed a light-hearted study of various customs and amusements, past and present. His subjects include money, haircuts, bathing, drinking, swearing and dancing. He offers no theories and outlines no trends. He simply presents the raw and often risque facts, in a style make up of equal parts less information included here, World Almanac and Joe Miller's Joke Book.

Did you know that the first U.S. Mint was set up in an abandoned distillery? That Madame de Pompadour spent more than a million dollars a year on perfume? That the first flush toilet — considered an hilarious oddity at the time — was installed in Richmond Palace for Elizabeth I of England? That the Greeks swore by every god except Hercules, who was reserved exclusively for children? That the African Masai, who value most women at $200 and 12 cows, recently offered to purchase movie star Carroll Baker for 150 cows, 200 goats and sheep and $750 in cash?

Iversen has a weakness for puns, which are often amusing, though sometimes not. In discussing hair styles of royalty, he speaks of the "hair apparent" and "princely hairs and graces." Rousseau, he claims "first flipped the wigs of the aristocrats." But perhaps a few stale puns are forgivable in such a light-hearted pundit.

"What Became of Gunner Asch," by Hans Hellmut Kirst (Harper and Row $4.95): Herbert Asch is perhaps the best-loved GI in German literature. His talent in evading work and dodging unpleasant orders filled three earlier novels. The books were more than fun, however: Asch attempted to install a measure, however small, of democracy into Hitler's Wehrmacht. He failed, although his private campaign deflated many sergeants and colonels. Now, 20 years afterward, he is out of the service, a prosperous hotel keeper and the mayor of a small garrison town. A complicated scandal involves a German air force captain, an Asch-type German GI, and the members of the rival air force and army garrisons. At issue for Asch is the military's right to interfere with the private lives of its men. This right was taken for granted in the old army; Asch works to see that the new army is different. But barracks habits die hard, and the two soldier-democrats, the captain and the GI, are done in by enemies in their own units. Asch cannot help them, but he can get in some licks at his old officer opponents. One major is allowed to pop off to the press and gets hauled before parliament for his folly. An over-eager lieutenant is given command of a remote and tiny detail, and its ranks are made up mostly of the men who defeated the soldier heroes.

THE HORSES HIT—Navy horses—in this case Skyhawk jet attack bombers—pounded the target area with 250-pound bombs during Operation Pony Express at Ft. Carson Thursday. The planes, which refueled in air, during their flight from California, were the second wave of Navy aircraft. The white objects in front of the rising smoke were discarded refrigerators used to mark the target. The bombing took place two miles from the observation stands.

Navy Horses Lose a Few Shoes Here In Pony Express Training Exercise

By RAY HERST
Gazette Telegraph City Editor

The horses in "Operation Pony Express" stumbled over some heavy clouds Thursday and threw a few shoes before hobbling back to greener pastures.

In between they dropped 250-pound bombs — including several duds — fired some rockets and kept a couple of hundred observers wondering what happened to "A-Rab," one of the fighter groups which was supposed to take part in the live-fire training exercise.

Saturday, the horses didn't even show up.

The horses were Navy fighter aircraft which were to support artillery and infantry in a training exercise this week at Ft. Carson.

They made their first appearance on Tuesday and dropped a few duds that time, too. But Thursday, the weather grew colder as observers waited for the action to begin.

Purpose of the three-service exercise was to simulate combat conditions and specifically to give the Navy pilots the type of training they have been missing. Generally speaking, the Navy pilots train for ground support strikes on familiar terrain, flying mission after mission until they know the bombing range as well as they do the back of their hands.

Pony Express was to give them an opportunity to make their strikes on completely unfamiliar territory in support of actual ground troops. They were briefed on the target areas only from aerial reconnaissance photographs.

One of the fighter squadrons flew from Fallon, Nev. and another came from California, refueling in air on the way. And then there was A-Rab.

The first group in — FB Phantom II all - weather jet aircraft and the world's fastest fighter - bomber — arrived right on schedule and dropped their loads of rockets on the two infantry objectives.

They moved swiftly and surely and generally hit the target areas and then headed off again.

The seocnd group, the Sky-Hawk A4C jet attack bombers, was due in next. But they weren't there. They were down around Pueblo somewhere in th clouds. Denver had routed them that way because of the low ceiling.

They arrived eventually, loaded down with 250 - pound all-purpose bombs, and made a pass at the target area. They pulled up without dropping the bombs. They had come in too low.

On their second pass they dropped their first bombs — wide of the target area. The next time around, only three planes hit the target.

"Montana 4, where are you?" the forward Air Force controller called. And finally, Montana 4 struggled out of the thick soup and passed over the target area.

When it was over, several "duds" dotted the infantry's sec-addition to the smoke that is.

And then came the wait for A-Rab .A-Rab was to put on what promised to be the most spectacular show. In addition to bombing and firing rockets, the propeller driven A1H Skyraiders sere to strafe the battle area, aiming at gasoline filled targets.

But there was no A-Rab. Denver didn't know where A-Rab was; Peterson Field didn't know where A-Rab was; the Air Force forward controller didn't know where A-Rab was; Ft. Carson didn't know where A-Rab was.

They waited and it got colder Observers stamped the ground and shuffled and wrapped huge Army blankets around them and they waited.

"We're trying to contact them," an Air Force liaison officer attached to Carson said.

And it got colder.

"We'll give them five minutes more," the liaison officer said scanning the skies which were filled with thick, low clouds. "Five minutes more and then go ahead with the next phase."

Five minutes later they gave A-Rab three minutes more and then they ignored A-Rab.

The artillery sent round after round of fire into the first objective target area and the tanks started to move up. They provided the most accurate fire of the day — that is, the tanks, and then the mechanized rifle company came in behind the tanks and they captured the first objective.

The second objective? Well, one Carson officer explained they couldn't go in because of the duds that were there.

"The same thing happened Tuesday," he explained. "Only the duds were on the first objective. That's why they didn't bomb the first objective today."

But all things considered, the exercise WAS a success. The Navy pilots travelled long distances over unfamiliar terrain, refueled in flight and hit a target in a completely strange area. They did it under weather conditions that would make pea soup look transparent.

The Navy declared the mission a success.

"Training in the areas of long range missions involving aerial refueling, live ordinance and close air support are extremely valuable in keeping our Air Wing proficient during its temporary shore basing," Commander W. T. Laws, air group commander, said.

"Air Group II realized a tremendous benefit in this unique training mission," Lt. Cmder. Robert Thomas, air operations officer for the attacking squadron, said.

"Pony Express is a perfect example of tri - service cooperation. It serves to exemplify what can be done working together simulating almost perfect combat conditions in a training situation, whereby Army ground forces are supported by carrier naval aircraft, controlled by Air Force forward air controllers," said Navy Capt. Hoyt D. Mann, commander of the Naval Forces at Ent.

The Army thought the exercise was a success.

"It has been proven once again that the Army and Navy can work well together to accomplish a difficult assignment. Working relationships developed during the exercise between the Army, Navy and Air Force were tremendously beneficial to us and I am sure to our sister services also .From a training standpoint the exercise was most helpful," said Brig. Gen. Charles B. Smith, assisstant 5th Infantry Division at Ft. Carson.

But A-Rab didn't think it was so hot.

A-Rab landed at Grand Junction.

They had ice on their wings and the observers had ice on their toes.

Poy Express itself had too much ice and snow and the air-support exercises scheduled for Saturday were called-off.

Besides, A-Rab had to go home.

Wray Man Killed at Railroad Crossing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A 71-year - old Wray, Colo., man became the state's 66th traffic fatality for 1965 Friday afternoon when a Chicago, Burlington and Quincy freight train ran into his stalled automobile at the Main Street crossing in Wray. Last year's figure was 69.

The State Patrol said Archie B. Nash died of multiple injuries less than four hours after his car was struck by the train which was going an estimated 60 miles per hour.

No one else was in the car at the time.

Aaron Burr was tried for treason on Sept. 1, 1807.

ON ITS WAY—A Phantom jet fighter begins to climb away after firing rockets into one of the target areas at Ft. Carson during Thursday's exercise. The jet, capable of traveling at speeds up to 1,600 miles an hour, was traveling at about 450 miles an hour at the time it fired the deadly air-to-ground rockets.

Youth Stabbed To Death in Brooklyn

NEW YORK (AP) — A white youth was stabbed to death by two Negroes on a Brooklyn Subway train late Friday night, police reported.

The victim, Andrew A. Mormile, 18, of Brooklyn, was stabbed several times about the face and back of his head, police said.

The killers fled. Motive for the crime was not known. Police said Mormile's wallet with about $5 in it was found on his body.

Detective Capt. Edwin J. Lester gave this account:

At about 11:30 p.m. on a northbound Independent line "A" train, at least two young Negro men were seen running after three Negro girls through the second car into the first.

At the Nostrand Avenue station, the three Negro girls ran back into the second car, followed by about 10 other passengers. About the same time, someone shouted: "Somebody was just stabbed!"

Police have found no witnesses to the slaying.

Teh train motorman, after becoming aware of the stabbing, blew his whistle to attract Transit Authority police. They boarded the train at the Hoyt-Schermerhorn station.

Officers found the victim lying face up on the floor of the first car. It was empty of other passengers.

Lester said the two men sought as the slayers were in their early 20s. It was not known where they left the train.

Historical Bible Destroyed in Fire

WELLSBURG, N.Y. (AP) — A Bible dating from the mid-1700's was lost Friday in a fire that destroyed the 152-year-old Wellsburg Baptist Church in this Chemung County village.

No one was reported injured.

Church officials estimated damage at $40,000.

The Rev. Harold Proper, pastor, attributed the fire to a defective coal heater.

The Bible burned in the fire was used by early settlers here before the Baptist congregation was formed in 1789.

ARADCOM Safety Meet Slated Here This Week

The Seventh Annual Army Air Defense Command Society Conference will be held here Tuesday through Thursday.

Conferees will discuss plans for strengthening the command-wide accident prevention effort, exchange safety information and ideas, and review the latest safety doctrine, policies and procedures.

Approximately 20 safety directors and safety officers from ARADCOM regions and defenses will attend and participate in the conference. They will be officially welcomed Tuesday morning by Lt. Gen. Charles B. Duff, commanding general of ARADCOM.

The ARADCOM safety program is a unified command effort aimed at the prevention of accidental loss from all causes and in all areas of on and off-duty operations and activities including, but not limited to, those involving missiles, aircraft, motor vehicles, training, and recreation.

For the past several years the ARADCOM accident experience has compared favorably with that of the Army worldwide and during the first half of the current fiscal year a substantial reduction was effected in personnel injury and Army motor accident rates, and over-all accident costs, according to R. Gray Robbins, command safety director.

Although primary emphasis is placed on missile safety, the ARADCOM program provides for specific preventive measures in all other activities, with particular attention being directed toward the prevention of privately-owned vehicle accidents, Robbins said.

At this year's conference, Donald S. Buck, director of safety, Continental Army Command (CONARC) with headquarters at Ft. Monroe, Va., will report on newly developed Army actions and plans dealing with driver training. William T. Buhrman, director of safety, Second U. S. Army, Ft. George G. Meade, Md. will present the results of research conducted by the Second Army on relationship of the small vehicle to the Army's over-all motor vehicle accident problem.

Dr. Francis McGlade, safety officer, Adjutant General School, Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., will report on and discuss plans dealing with Army extension courses in the field of safety management.

Penrose Hospital Gets New Telephone System

Penrose Hospital switched to its new automatic two - position PBX board Saturday. This new service placed a private phone at each patient's bedside. Previously, multiple bedrooms had but one phone and some rooms were without phone service.

A special device in the hospital business office will automatically record all local and long distance calls.

Sufficient trunks will be provided to speed up both incoming and outgoing calls to administrative and patient lines.

This installation, costing approximately $13,500, was started about two months ago.

WASHINGTON — What the foreign policy foursome of Johnson, McNamara, Bundy and Rusk talked about Wednesday at a huddle at Camp David, Md., is their business, not ours. But, as an educated guess, we bet the discussion went something like this:

LBJ — Well, boys, I'd like some advice on just how frank I should be in answering questions as to just what is going on in Viet Nam, as you know, I have promised to meet the press in the next day or so, and it will be the first time since we bombed North Viet Nam on Feb. 7 that I am going to have to supply public answers to questions.

Rusk — May I suggest, Mr. President, that the situation is most delicate and should not be clarified at this time. I have been reading what you told your last press conference on Feb. 4, and I think you should say about the same as you did then.

LBJ — I've forgotten what I said. What was it?

Rusk — You simply made it clear that our policy has been consistent for the last 10 years. For example, you said: "There has been no change in the position of this country in regard to our desire or our determination to help the people of Viet Nam preserve their freedom."

LBJ — "That's a good suggestion. But what if I am asked whether our air strikes are aimed at allowing us to get into a position of strength where we can negotiate?

Bundy— May I interrupt there? As your national security adviser, I feel you should take great care in formulating an answer to that question. In my opinion it would be wise simply to state that until Communist aggression from the North is halted, there can obviously be no consideration of negotiation.

THE GREAT SOCIETY AND BOOMING ECONOMY

McNamara — Of course, it might be possible to avoid some of the tricky Viet Nam questions if you opened the conference with a significant statement about the Selma, Ala., civil rights demonstrations, and revealed your voting rights program. This could produce a flock of questions about this domestic problem.

LBJ — I'd thought of that myself. I'd also like to say something about the Great Society and have some statistics handy about how our economy is booming.

Rusk — May I ask the Secretary of Defense whether he thinks this is the time for the President to consider announcing that he is considering augmenting the 7th Fleet units in the Viet Nam area? There was a leak out of Mr. McNamara's department suggesting we are about to institute a sea blockade to halt the flow of weapons to the Viet Cong.

McNamara — I had nothing to do with that leak. It came out of the Navy.

Rusk — What worries me about such a proposal is that if adopted, and if it were to be effective, Russian and Red Chinese shipping would have to be halted. And that would be in violation of international law.

WHAT GOLDWATER SAID IN THE CAMPAIGN

LBJ — I think we might consider a more important problem — purely political — with the questions I may be asked. It is annoying to have some of my critics say that I am accelerating the war in South Viet Nam just the way Barry Goldwater said he would during the campaign.

McNamara — I don't think, Mr. President, it would be difficult to make it clear that you are not carrying out Goldwater's policy. You constantly emphasized in the campaign that you great goal was world peace and your intentions now are not enlargement of the Viet Nam war but an end of aggression, so that peace will be possible.

Bundy—On that note I suggest we might have a round of bourbon and water.

LBJ — Make mine scotch and soda if you please.

Whatever levity is expressed in this hypothetical report on the Camp David conversations is purely coindicental to the solid fact that the situation in Viet Nam, as explained here in Washington, is equally as fuzzy as the guessed - at go - around in the Maryland mountain retreat of our Presidents.

There is, for example, the claim that Ho Chi-minh, the North Viet Nam Communist boss, is not a puppet of Peking or a lackey of Moscow.

HOW LONG IS MILITARY COMMITMENT?

In other words, there is the hope and the prayer that the Hanoi government can act independently of the rest of the Communist world; that if Hanoi can become convinced the U.S. means business in our increased military effort to halt aggression it will knuckle under even if Peking says no.

In this connection there is an unwelcome prospect: if and when Hanoi leaves South Viet Nam alone, the U.S. may still have to keep troop contingents in the area for the next eight or 10 years.

Up until now, the Administration has let the impression get around that a showdown against aggression is being forced which, if we are successful, means we can get out of the crisis area in a year or two.

It would seem that just this little matter of how long our military commitment is going to last, once aggression is halted, could be clarified by the Administration.

If the eight - to - 10 year American military presence is a hard fact of our policy, then what does it mean?

Does it mean a negotiated settlement along the lines of Korea? In advance of a formal Administration explanation, it must be presumed so. Yet no one has ever been happy about the Korean deal. And because the Communists wouldn't get out of North Korea we still have two American divisions policing the border. And that has been true for more than 13 years.

Poems to 'Those Guys Who..Dies'

Poetic justice for white blood cells, ever working, seldom praised, may have been achieved recently through a group of sixth graders at Will Rogers School here.

The class was studying health when the teacher, S. C. Pappas suggested the students compose poems about their white cells.

"Here's to those white cells so gallant and true," wrote Becky Woodard in her poem, "Credit Where Credit Is Due." The poem refers to the corpuscles as "valiant and brave. And they my body courageously save." Further down, Miss Woodard bemoans the fate of the white cells which lose the battle with the germs with, "and then I am sick in bed, Praying for the corpuscles dead, I think of those poor little guys Who for me courageously dies."

Another, "Thank You White Blood Cells," by Robin Hull, ends with "Little white cells, I like you a lot, And thank you for all the battles you've fought."

But the efforts of the cells are probably most aptly summed up by Samuel B. Thornton who wrote, "They eat the germs that make us ill, Instead of having us take a pill . . . Without our cells we would have no wealth, 'Cause without our cells we would have no health."

Racquet Club Plans New Facility in Austin Bluffs

The recently-formed Colorado Springs Raquet Club has announced construction plans for a $120,000 recreation facility to be located in the Austin Bluffs area, four blocks north of Constitution Ave. on Murray Boulevard.

To be built on a five acre tract donated to the club by L.M. Larson of Pike Realty, the new facility will include an L-shaped swimming pool, wading pool, large club house, five tennis courts ,an outdoor handball and tennis practice area, children's play area and outdoor picnic grounds.

The heated club house facility will house handball and squash courts, a bathroom-shower combination a lounge and sundeck area with vending machines for refreshments and a section for shuffleboard and ping pong. In the future, Raquet Club officials hope to have a steam room, suana bath and exercise room, also housed in the club house.

In order to begin construction on the target date of April 1, the Raquet Club needs $70,000 in membership initiation fees, about half of which has already been collected. The club now needs nearly 100 more charter members, at $360 each, to reach its goal of 200 charger members, at $360 each, to reach its goal of 200 charter members and the required ammount of cash for construction.

Before construction is completed, the new club will need $83,000 in cash to be combined with $7,500 in membership dues paid during the construction period, and a $29,500 loan from the Exchange National bank. These monies will be enough to complete the first phase of the club's building program.

The membership drive, under the direction of Dr. Leo Nassimbene, in now in high gear with the nearly 100 additional members needed before the April 1 kick-off date. During the drive, Nassimbene is stressing the club's low initiation fees but after construction starts that fee will be raised to $425 for a family membership.

Other memberships, for military families, single persons and junior members are less expensive than the straight family fee, but will also go up in price at the start of construction. The first phase construction should be completed by July 1, according to Nassimbene.

No definite plans have been set for the second phase of construction, but club officials hope, by that time, to completely enclose the club house sundeck area and possibly enclose the main pool under a large plastic blubble, for year-round swimming. The latter's cost is estimated at $10,000.

The Raquet Club, called "a new concept in a family recreational facility," is a non-profit corporation governed by a board of directors believe that without the high cost of a golf course, it is possible to have a family recreation facility at a modest membership fee. Membership in the club will be limited to 265 families, according to club directors.

The number of club employes will also be kept at a minimum, with only a tennis pro and a swimming pro at the offset.

The $70,000 needed to start construction will be held in escrow and for some reason, the construction never occurs, membership initiation fees will be returned in full to the payee.

Design of the new facility was handled by Don Higginbotham, a local architect and a member of the club. Bids for construction have not, as yet, been let.

Animal Hospital Now Open on Academy Blvd.

A long-time Denver veterinarian, who wanted to get away from the capital city's "rat race," recently opened the new Academy Animal Hospital, at 1233 N. Academy Blvd., near Marion Drive.

Dr. Richard M. Copeland, who sold his 11-year-old Denver veterinary practice to a doctor who worked for him, opened his practice last week in the 3,250 square-foot, all-brack building. The new structure, of an unusual 16-sided design, was built by the Godwin-Bevers Co., from plans drawn by Thomas Carrillo, of the Denver architectural firm of Carrillo and Norris.

The building, which was five months in construction, houses an examination room, office, operating room, waiting room, laboratory, X-ray room, grooming room, two cage rooms and a larger run room. The latter allows room for exercising larger pets.

Although his practice originally surrounded all types of animals, Copeland is now concentrating on just small household pets. A 1953 graduate of Colorado State University (formerly Colorado A&M), the doctor has vast experience in all phases of veterinary medicine. He graduated with BA and DVM degrees.

The interior of the new hospital features a complete ventilating system surrounded by either cement-block, dry wall or walnut interior construction. The spotless interior houses all new equipment, from operating facilities to laboratory equipment. The area surrounding the building will be paved in the near future, and will then feature ample customer parking.

Copeland, who was born and raised in Denver, is married to the former Wilma Jean Geisen of Harper, Kan.

Owen Faricy Building Set For Motor City Location

By DAVE OSBORN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

"There are two basic areas for automobile shopping — downtown and Motor City. We want to operate in both of these major areas," said Owen Faricy, president of Owen Faricy Motor Co., in announcing the start of construction of a new Faricy new and used car outlet in Motor City. The start of construction is a week to 10 days away.

Godwin-Bevers Co., local designers and contractors, will handle construction of Faricy's second Colorado Springs outlet. It will include a 2,000 square-foot building and more than two acres of paved parking lot for new and used car display area.

According to Bill Godwin, president of Godwin-Bevers, the building will house a small three-car showroom, three closing offices for salesmen, and a garage. The latter will be used strictly for washing and final preparation of new and used cars. Faricy's customer service facility will remain at the downtown new car showroom and service area, at 201 N. Weber St.

Designing of the Owen Faricy two and a half acre Motor City location was done by Mowry Gilbert, an architect with Godwin-Bevers. Construction of the new building will be of moss rock and glass. Exterior work will include the huge paving job and installation of overhead lights on the two and a half acre site. Faricy has set a May 1 target date for opening the Motor City location.

Faricy's site is located just northwest of Perkins Motors and directly across the street from Phil Long Ford, on Fountain Creek Blvd. The local Rambler dealer is the fifth Colorado Springs automobile dealership to become located at the huge automobile shopping mart.

The Motor City location will allow the Rambler dealership ample room for any future expansion. Says Faricy, "We bought enough land so if for some reason we wanted to put in another building there, we would have room. Frankly, though, I have no intention of doing so." He continued, "We now have additional ground for expansion when the time arrives."

At present, Faricy has no intention of moving from his downtown location, but will move his used car lot from 720 E. Pikes Peak Ave. as soon as the Motor City facility is completed. "Our Motor City location will serve strictly as a branch. The downtown facility will serve as our customer service area," said Faricy.

Besides being located in the city's two main auto shopping centers, Faricy is keeping his main building on Weber Street for customer convenience. He believes that having service facilities in Motor City would prove to be a hindrance for customers who would need transportation back and forth to the city's motor capital.

Upon completion of the new Motor City outlet, Faricy will have four locations — two here and two in Pueblo. He presently has his main location at 4th and Court Streets and the used car outlet at 13th Street and Sante Fe in Pueblo. Faricy's brother, Roland, is a partner in the business and serves as general manager of the two Pueblo outlets.

The Owen Faricy Motor Co. first opened for business 24 years ago in Pueblo. The Colorado Springs dealership was opened in December, 1955 in the 100 block of North Nevada Avenue. It moved to the Weber Street location in 1957, at approximately the same time the used car outlet was moved to its present locale on Pikes Peak Avenue.

Owen Faricy is the local franchise dealer for Rambler, MG, Jaguar and Austin Healey.

Foss Motors Moves Used Car Lot

Bob Foss Motors' used car lots is now located at 325 E. Pikes Peak Ave., directly across from the Foss new car showroom, at 324 E. Pikes Peak Ave.

Company President Bob Foss said he decided to move the used car outlet from its 715 E. Pikes Peak Ave. location, "to become centrally located and be able to offer our customers one-stop shopping for new or used cars."

Foss' new 14,700 square foot lot is smaller than the former one, but Foss believes it is worth the sacrifice of space to be "convenienttly located downtown for the customer's shopping convenience." The new lot has a display capacity of about 60 cars.

The new lot will be completely resurfaced as soon as weather permits and new overhead quartz lighting will be installed high atop poles surrounding the area. All used cars will now be cleaned, reconditioned and serviced in Foss' main outlet.

To mark the move to a new location, Bob Foss Motors has a 1960 Mecury Monterey to give away to "some lucky person" who goes to the new lot." At present, there are more than 45 late-model used cars on display at the Foss outlet.

Foss, who has owned the Lincoln - Mercury dealership since 1961, feels "there is still plenty of business downtown. And that is the reason I moved my used car location here."

Foss continued, "we have enjoyed a very successful four years of business in Colorado Springs. Our business has increased every year and 1965 should be the best yet."

About customer policy, Foss said, "We treat our customers like we would like to be treated. We put ourselves in their shoes."

New Law Offices for Local Attorneys

Three Colorado Springs attorneys have moved into new law offices at 431 S. Cascade Ave The new combination masonry and heavy timber structure was built by the Godwin - Bevers Co., local builders and designers.

Designed by architect Mowry Gilbert, of Godwin - Bevers, new building houses three suites, a reception area, library and conference room, which altogether measure 2,500 square feet.

Built at a cost of $50,000, the new law building is completely air conditioned, soundproofed and features a centralized heating system. It is furnished in a Victorian style, except for a modernistic art metal screen separating areas in the reception room.

The building's exterior features unusual arch - shaped windows surrounded by moss rock, Marble Crete and timber. Ample off - street parking is provided and will be completely paved as soon as weather permits.

According to Gilbert, the building is of classic contemporary design, with the reception room in the center and offices surrounding it.

The new structure, built expressly for the attorneys, took some four months to complete.

Ford Motors Tops 1963 Sales Records

Ford Motor Company achieved worldwide factory sales in 1964 of 3,952,727 cars, trucks and tractors — almost one-fifth of the Free World total — to top the company's 1963 record of 3,692,294, Henry Ford II, chairman of the board, and Arjay Miller, president, said in the company's annual report to stockholders.

In their message, Ford and Miller said the "long-run outlook for the industry and for the company is bright . . . . The prospect of sustaining high domestic sales through the second half of 1965 would be significantly enhanced if Congress were to eliminate the automotive excise tax during the current session.

"During recent years .... Ford's facilities have been almost totally reconstructed and expanded many fold," they said. "Philco, Autolite and the new company credit and insurance subsidiaries have added breadth and depth to our marketing effort."

Highlights of the annual report, being mailed today to 338,000 stockholders, included:

- Record 1964 worldwide sales of $9,670,800,000 that were 10.6 per cent above 1963's $8,742,500,000;

- For the seventh consecutive year, factory sales of vehicles by Ford subsidiaries outside the U. S. reached record levels — 1,333,326 units, up 4.6 per cent from 1963;

- U. S. factory sales of company built cars totaled 2,140,031 up 9.1 per cent from 1963. Truck factory sales achieved a new high of 448,490 units, an increase of 5.4 per cent over the 1963 record;

- Peak consolidated net income of $505,600,000 was 3.5 per cent higher than 1963. Changes in the U. S. income tax law helped increase income. Earnings per share were $4.56, compared with $4.42 in 1963;

- Record dividend payments (at $2 a share) of $221,400,000. Earnings in 1964 retained for use in the business were $284,200,000, compared with $289,800,000 in 1963;

- New highs in employment and payroll. Worldwide employment averaged 33,841, up from 1963's 316,568, with the payroll amounting to $2,252,100,000, an increase of $269,000,000 over 1963;

- Record income for hourly employes, who averaged weekly earnings of $149.77, up 8.2 per cent from the 1963 high of $138.42. Average hourly earnings were $3.44, with fringe benefits accounting for an additional 85 cents an hour. Ford and Miller noted in the report that return on sales was 5.3 per cent in 1964, compared with 5.7 per cent in 1963. "The decline," they said, "resulted from three major factors: Costly product improvements, rising labor costs and a significant increase in the cost of marterial and supplies.

"Substantial expenditures by the company to add more value, finer quality and increased durability to its 1965 products were not offset by price increases," they added. "There have been virtually no increases in the company's basic car prices since the fall of 1958."

Looking to the future, the report emphasized that Ford is continuing its long-range studies to determine where the greatest concentration of customers will be, 10 years from now. "These studies will enable the company and its dealers to develop a continuing program to establish modern, conveniently located sales and service outlets in all major markets," it said.

Kaman Tests Twin Turbine Helicopter

Kaman Aircraft, Bloomfield, Conn., is testing a twin-turbine version of the Navy's UH-2 SEASPRITE helicopter. The test UH-2 has two T-58 engines mounted at the same height but outboard and forward of the previous single T-58 installation in the production SEASPRITE.

The twin-turbine UH-2 has completed a tie-down program and test flights. This is the first phase of a contemplated comprehensive evaluation of the mission and cost effectiveness advantages of the twin-turbine.

The additional safety and performance advantages of a twin-engine helicopter for all-are very worthwhile mission weather and night operation are very worthwhile mission advantages.

The original development of a compact helicopter with the long range, all-weather navigational capability, and high speed vibration-free performance of the SEASPRITE, was a major accomplishment. The helicopter regularly operates off most ships of the fleet and is small enough to fly from a destroyer.

The UH-2 is assigned to U.S. Navy ships and shore stations carrying out the vital role of search, rescue and general utility. As carrier plane guard, flying angel during all aircraft launches and recoveries, the SEASPRITE has recently been assigned to "round the clock" duty, which means additional long hours of night duty, much of it in low visibility.

The contract will be completed in March. Kaman is negotiating with the Bureau of Naval Weapons for extension of the program.

Seagull Made Off With His False Teeth

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — If State Sen. Mike Gallagher's theory is correct, a seagull made off with his false teeth.

The Seattle legislator said he broke a tooth, glued it back and put the upper plate on his hotel window ledge to dry.

That's the last he saw of the choppers.

15 Cars of Railroad Train Are Derailed

ROLLINGSVILLE (UPI) — Fifteen cars of a 34-car Denver & Rio Grande Western train derailed Friday about a half mile east of the east portal of the Moffatt Tunnel.

No injuries were reported but the incident tied up the Moffat Tunnel route for several hours.

The Rio Grande's California Zephyr, headed west from Denver was detoured through the Royal Gorge in southern Colorado and a passenger run to Craing was postponed.

A spokesman at Denver for the railroad said the tracks should be cleared in time for weekend ski trains, however.

The first 12 and the last three cars of the eastbound train remained on the track. The 5:30 a.m. derailment knocked out telephone service to Tolland and East Portal.

Lock and Key Service Now Operating Here

Bill's Lock and Key Service, at 1913 S. Sheridan Ave. opened for business in mid - February. The Sheridan Avenue address, which is actually Bill Tuttle's home, serves as a base of operations, but a 1964 Volkswagen bus is the work horse of the new business.

Tuttle, a bonded locksmith and a member of the National Locksmith's Assn., is using the bus as a mobile unit for his business. It is equipped with duplicates of every tool in the shop, including a key machine and a complete set of hand tools for locksmithing.

The home shop, in Tuttle's garage, is equipped the same way, to allow Bill to work in either locale with a minimum of time and trouble.

In the near future, or when business warrants it, Tuttle plans to put a two - way radio in the bus for rapid dispatch to customer's homes or places of business. At present, he simply calls home after each job is completed to see if there have been any other calls for "help" with locks, keys, safes or what have you.

Besides work on locks and making new keys, Tuttle also specializes in making master keys (for hotels, motels, etc.), changing safe combinations, installing and repairing locks and just generally aiding persons who have locked themselves out of the house or car. He feels he can open "almost any lock made."

Round - the - clock service is another feature of Bill's Lock and Key Service. Of course, after hours work is only done in emergency cases, such as lockouts, break-ins, and others.

He has been a locksmith for the past six years in Colorado Springs, having served a three year apprenticeship and three additional years as a journeyman. Tuffle is a native of Colorado Springs.

"I like to finish a job in one trip," he states. "It saves me money and saves people time. I'm as near to anybody as their telephone."

Local Board To Observe Realtor Week

The Colorado Springs Board of Realtors, Inc., will again participate this year in the nationwide observance of realtor week, May 23-29, Joe B. Toole, president, announced here today.

Chairman of the committee for local arrangements is Ed Rodgers, and other committee members are: James Berger, Betty Polhemus, Bob Thornton, R. C. VandeZande, Paul Thompson, George E. Smith, John Dawson, Paul Crozier, Fred Brittain, Darrell Carter, Jim Loper Cassie Cunningham and C. V. LeForce.

The National Association of Real Estate Boards has individual membership of almost 80,000 and is comprised of more than 1,500 boards, such as the local group. A week is designated each year to point up realtor activities and to explain to the public why it is wise to handle all real estate transactions through a realtor, Toole said.

A realtor, explained Toole, is a professional in real estate who subscribes to a strict Code of Ethics as a member of the local board and of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. In order to qualify for membership in NAREB, he added, a real estate practitioner must demonstrate his professional ability and be approved by the other members of the local board.

The primary goal of the realtor in transacting business under the NAREB Code of Ethics is to keep the interests of both the buyer and the seller uppermost in mind, continued the local board president. This code is enforced by the local board's Professional Standards Committee, which has the power to suspend or revoke board membership of any member who has violated its articles.

Many realtors make their special knowledge available at no charge to planning commissions and provide professional advice to public officials concerning proposed real estate legislation. Active roles are played by NAREB members in civic and charitable organizations.

Real estate clinics are sponsored throughout the nation by Realtors, and many members serve as instructors in real estate courses.

One of NAREB's committees was established with the purpose of eliminating sub - standard housing and upgrading declining neighborhoods. Members of this Build American Better Committee travel to all sections of the country upon invitation of the local board and the mayor to analyze the blight and slum problems and present detailed suggested solutions.

Founded in 1908, the National Association maintain offices in Chicago and Washington, D. C. Publications of the association's professional staff keep Realtors up-to-date on changes in laws affecting real estate, mortgage rates, buying trends, and other business factors.

"Pick the Right Home — Through a Realtor" has been selected as the slogan this year for realtor week. With more and more families in a position to buy a home because of rising incomes and a plentiful supply of mortgage money, it is reasoned by NAREB that these purchasers will want to avail themselves of the professional services of a Realtor to make this important decision, president Toole said.

Special activities planned during realtor week by the local board will be announced at a later date. Some of the activities will be tied in with plans of the National Association.

More than 590 million pairs of conventional shoes were turned out during 1964, compared with about 564 million the previous year, according to the National Shoe Manufacturers Assn.

GEICO Reports Substantial Gains During 1964

Government Employees Insurance Company (GEICO) of Washington, with offices in Colorado Springs and Denver, recently reported substantial gains in policies in force and premium income last year. However, according to E. L. Marks, manager of GEICO's Colorado operation, earnings declined somewhat due to poor underwriting results in the fire and casualty field.

Here are some of the highlights from the GEICO Annual Report:

— Policies in force, over the one million mark for the first time, stood at 1,031,573 which is an increase of 9.2 per cent over 1963.

— Net premiums written increased 18.4 per cent to $113.7 million.

— Net earnings after taxes declined from $6.6 million in 1963 to $6.2 million in 1964.

— Total assets climbed 16 per cent to $171.8 million.

GEICO, one of the ten largest stock company auto insurers in the country, was established in 1936 to pioneer the direct writing of low-cost insurance exclusively for Government Employees.

In 1958, GEICO broadened its eligibility and now extends its services to include such non-government occupations as administrative, professional, technical, clerical, and managerial.

GEICO's Colorado Springs Office, managed by Mrs. Louise Garred, is located in Southgate Shopping Center.

The Andes Mountains include more than a score of 20,000-foot peaks.

Du Pont Co. Establishes '64 Sales Record

Du Pont Company sales in 1964 established a new high for the sixth consecutive year, Lammot du Pont Copeland, president, said today in his annual report to the company's 245,000 stockholders.

He described it as "a good year for the Du Pont Company and one of continuing growth in the face of increasing competition."

Sales of $2.761 million were 8 per cent above the previous high of $2,555 million in 1963. Physical volume of sales was 11 per cent greater, while the company's index of selling prices averaged about 2 per cent lower than in 1963.

Before-tax earnings from Du Pont sources applicable to common stock also set a record high of $695 million. After-tax earnings from Du Pont sources were $349 million, or $7.58 per common share, as compared with $315 million, or $6.84 a share, in 1963.

Despite the increased dividends per share paid by General Motors Corporation in 1964, earnings from the company's GM investment were lower than in 1963 because of the distribution by Du Pont in January, 1964, of approximately 17 million shares of GM common stock. Net income for 1964 totaled $471 million, or $10.03 per common share, as compared with $472 million, or $10.05 a share, in 1963.

Realtors Set For One Day Seminar

A one - day seminar was announced this week by Joe B. Toole, president of the Colorado Springs Board of Realtors, Inc. It will be the third annual seminar presented by the education committee of the board and will be held at the Palmer House Saturday.

Toole also announced that registration for the meetings is limited to 200 persons. Alfred A. Plamann, chairman of the education committee, reported that the subject of the seminar, which begins at 8:30 a.m. and runs through 4 p.m., will be "My Property — and the General Welfare."

Chairman of the seminar is Byron Church, well - known real estate authority in this region. He is a realtor and also a holder of the highest honor in the appraisal field the MAI award. Church has set up educational sessions for the seminar regarding city and county planning, building codes and the development of streets and highways.

The one - day seminars were instituted two years ago for brokers and salesmen of the Colorado Springs Board of Realtors, Inc., as well, as, for others having interests in the use, management and promotion of real estate. Registrations in the past have been received from representatives of all related fields.

Principal speaker during the luncheon will be Dr. Robert H. Smith, president of the Springs Area Beautiful Association. He will discuss "This Community, Today and 1975." Other speakers on the program will be specialists in the various problems of city and county government.

The morning meetings will be devoted almost entirely to city and county planning. Larrch Ochs, member of the city planning commission is scheduled to explain the functions of the commission. Paul Griffith, city planning engineer, will discuss growth and trends in the metropolitan area.

For the county, George Beardsly, member of the county planning commission, will explain its operations. Bud Isham, county planning director, will lead discussion on the present and future of the county regulations and codes.

The afternoon meetings will be started off by Perry C. Tyre city superintendent of inspection regarding construction requirements. Isham will follow with county requirements of construction.

The closing session will be on streets and highways with Maury Pearce, city public works superintendent, and Rodger Fay, county road commissioner, as speakers.

The previous seminars had as their subjects, "Dollars and Sense" and "Finance and Financing."

The first seminar was held two years ago at Paint Pony Ranch at Woodland Park, last year it was moved to the Palmer Houe.

Response to these educational meetings has been so great that several discussions have been held regarding the holding of such seminars twice a year.

Money Definition Is Root Of Economic Disputes

By SAM CAMPBELL

A banker from the big city went deer hunting for the first time and shot a farmer's cow. The judge told him that if he would study up on what a deer looks like, his beefsteak wouldn't come so expensive in the future.

Money is like venison. If you understand what it is, your pursuit of same stands a better chance of success.

Most of the economic disputes of our times stem from a difference of opinion as to what money is.

Checks Not Money

A few people believe that a personal check is money. Of course, most recognize that a personal check actually is only an order to pay.

Still others believe that those little green pieces of paper that you carry in your billfold are money. But if you read the writing on those pieces of paper, you discover that they, too, are "note" — that is, statements of indebtedness by some other person to you.

A very clear description of what money is and exactly how it works is contained in a booklet authored by Murray Rothbard and published by Pine Tree Press of Colorado Springs, Colo. Rothbard holds a doctorate in economics from Columbia University and is the author of monumental studies in economics. The booklet is titled "What Government Has Done To Our Money."

A Commodity?

According to Rothbard, money — in the real sense of the word — is a commodity. It is a commodity in the same way that wheat, corn, iron or lead is a commodity. By general acceptance today, gold and silver are the chief monetary commodities, but this is not universally true.

In parts of Africa and in remote areas such as New Guinea, cattle or tobacco is used as media of exchange in the same way that silver is used today.

This particular view of money is helpful to the understanding of what otherwise would remain as obscure operations of finance. For when you think of money as a commodity, then the bank where money is deposited is simply a money warehouse — in principle not unlike any other warehouse where commodities are stored except the hired help wears cleaner clothes.

Money Warehouse

Since the bank is a warehouse, the bank notes that it issues are simply warehouse receipts, acknowledgements of wealth or buying power you have deposited. Of course today, these warehouse receipts are not issued by each individual bank but rather by a central bank called the Federal Reserve. The bills you have in your pocket are simply centrally printed warehouse receipts for money (gold or silver) that is supposed to be in storage.

Now if the central bank, on the sly, prints up a lot of extra warehouse receipts and goes out and spends them on its own account, the effect is to draw buying power out of the warehouse that was placed there by someone else. In short, you were robbed by a printing press.

The technical word for issuing too many warehouse receipts on the money supply is called "inflation". This process is not limited to the money commodity. Sometimes it happens with other commodities, too. A most recent example was salad oil.

I do not agree with Rothbard. In my judgment the title of his booklet is incorrect. I believe it should be called "What Mis-Government Has Done To Your Money."

Vehicle Output Totals 242,162 Units for Week

U. S. motor vehicle production last week totaled 242,162 units, the Automobile Manufacturers Association reported today.

The week's output included 207,493 passenger cars and 34,669 trucks and buses. During the previous week 161,491 cars and 29,296 commercial vehicles were produced, the AMA said.

Cumulative output in 1965 through March 6 totaled 2,119,084 units, including 1,806,282 cars and 312,802 commercial vehicles.

In the same period last year 1,887,314 vehicles were produced — 1,582,919 passenger cars and 304,395 trucks and buses.

The tuxedo was introduced to America by Griswold Lorillard at the Tuxedo Club, Tuxedo Park, N.Y. in 1886.

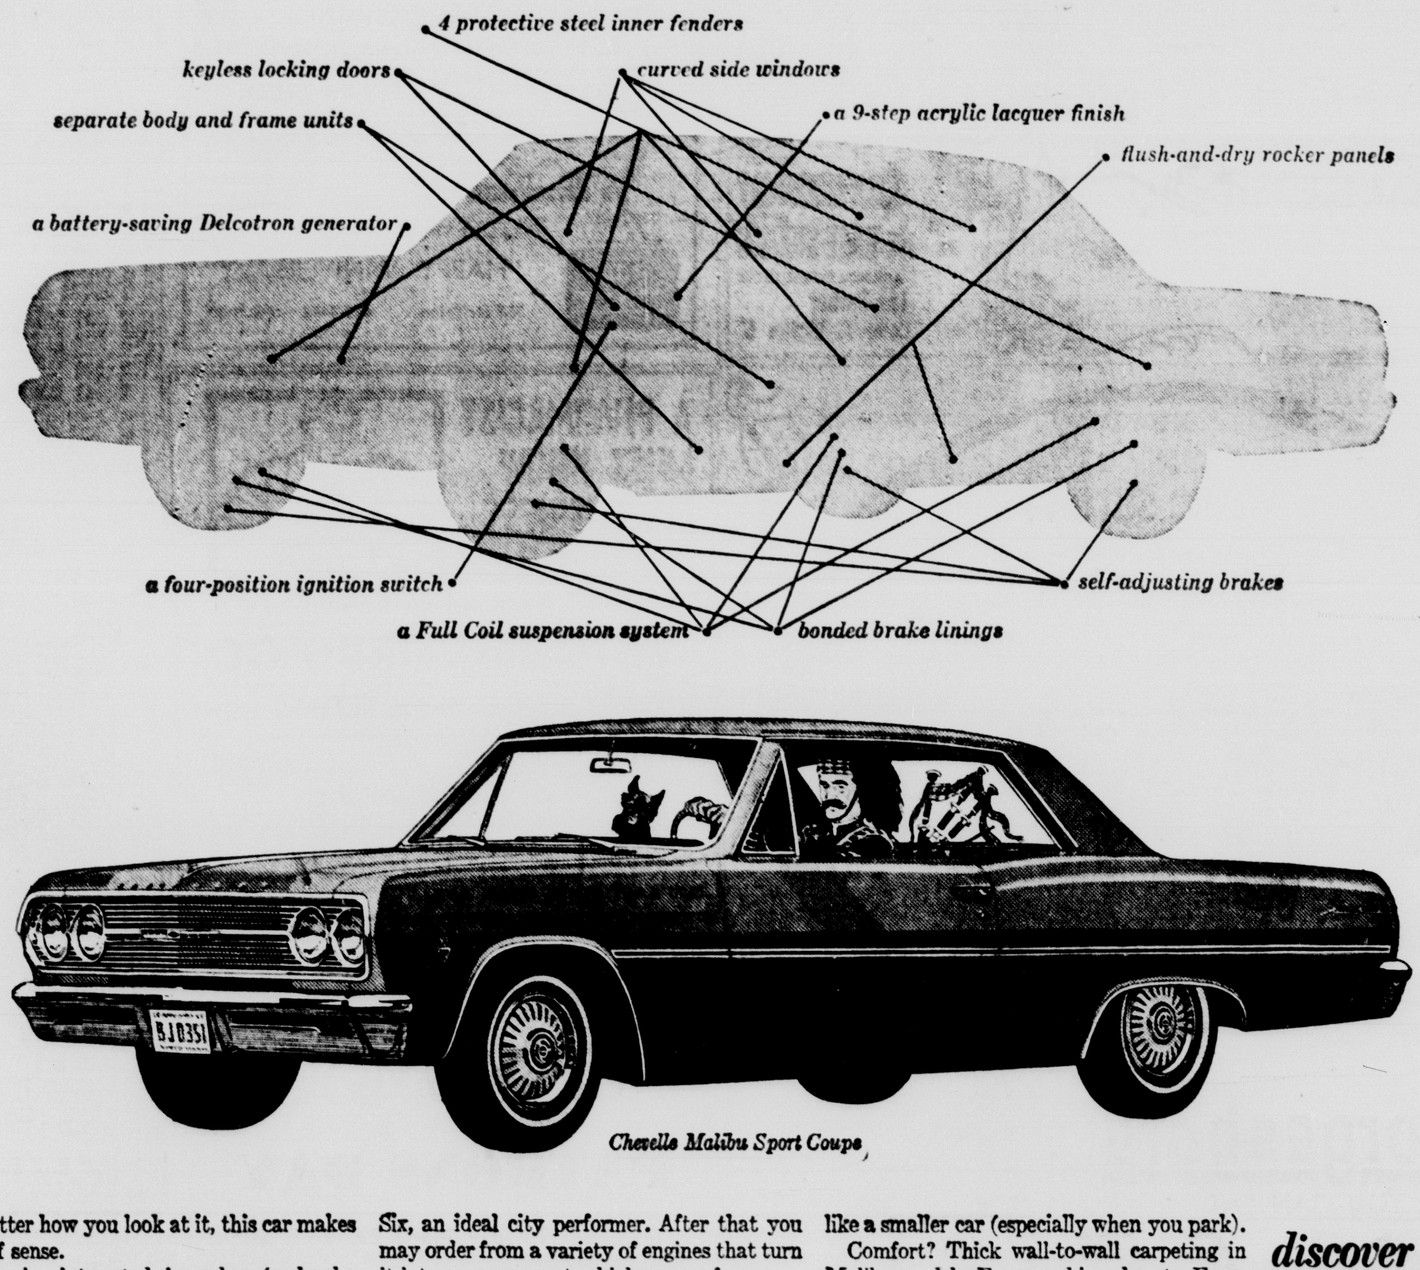
CHEVELLE by Chevrolet
No other car of its size offers more



Chevelle Malibu Sport Coupe

No matter how you look at it, this car makes a lot of sense.

If you're interested in value (and who isn't), the eleven features above give you a good idea why more intermediate-size car buyers are thinking Chevelle.

If you're looking for a wide power choice, Chevelle starts out with a standard 120-hp Six, an ideal city performer. After that you may order from a variety of engines that turn it into an even greater highway performer.

Room? Large door openings. Wide curved side windows for extra shoulder room. Great front and rear leg room. Those four, five or six passengers have it made. And so do you. Chevelle may seat like a big car but it handles like a smaller car (especially when you park).

Comfort? Thick wall-to-wall carpeting in Malibu models. Foam-cushioned seats. Easy-to-read instrument panel. The whole interior looks like those in cars costing far more.

Come on down to our showroom and take a drive soon. Chevelle begins to make even more sense after you've gone a couple of miles.

Two Veteran Congressmen To Speak at AFA Confab

The appearance of two veteran Congressmen as co-keynote speakers will highlight the seventh annual Air Force Academy Assembly, March 31 to April 3.

Sen. A. S. (Mike) Monroney of Oklahoma and Rep. F. Edward Hebert, Louisiana, will head a list of distinguished senior participants who will consider the 1965 Assembly topic "The Congress and America's Future."

The keynote address will be delivered March 31 at 7:20 p.m. in the Arnold Hall theater. The public may attend.

More than 100 - members of the junior and senior classes of colleges and universities from all parts of the country are expected.

Delegates attend lectures and panel discussions and meet with experts on U.S. government in a series of roundtable discussions. April 3 the entire delegates body will prepare a final report. The Academy meeting is co - sponsored by the American Assembly of Columbia University.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, in 1950 as president of Columbia, established the American Assembly. Each year the Assembly sponsors a series of conferences by adult national leaders to discuss issues vital to the national interest.

The discussions are then compiled into book form and used as background for adult regional and state assemblies throughout the U.S.

The Academy and the American Assembly have been affiliated since 1959 with the Academy one of the very few educational institutions conducting assemblies at the college level.

Approximately 72 cadets take part directly in the Assembly as delegates and as members of the cadet staff which plans, organizes, and operates the Assembly.

Senior participants are from the highest offices in government, education, journalism, business, and the armed forces.

AFCO Shows Prize Films at Kiwanis Meet

Floyd Sparks, director of public relations for Alexander Film Company, showed a film of advertisements made by his company at the Wednesday meeting of the Colorado Springs Kiwanis Club at the Acacia Hotel.

Included was a series of four commercials on the Imperial Oil Company of Canada (Esso), which was named one of the top 10 of 1,895 entries by the Hollywood Advertising Company Feb. 23, Sparks said. The award was presented at the Palladium in Hollywood. "About a week before, the commercials received Nike Awards of the Awards of the Advertising Club of Denver," he said of the nine Nike Awards presented, six were won by films produced by Alexander Film Company.

The four commercials, each 90 seconds long, picture various areas of Canada. The first shows Montreal, including the Place Vielle Marie; the second, Toronto. The third features photography done from a helicopter, of the Rogers Pass of the Trans-Canada Highway the fourth shows Prince Edward Island, including the Centennial Center.

Also included in the film were two shorter commercials for 7-Up, which also won Nike Award of the Advertising Club of Denver about two weeks ago, Sparks said.

Another prize-winning commercial in the film was the 'Pinnacle' advertisement for Chevrolet. This color commercial won in June, 1964, the Sweepstakes Award of the Advertising Association of the West ("best commercial in the West, regardless of style, type or length") and also the American Film Festival Award in New York City, being named one of the top ten advertisements of 1964.

The making of this commercial was also filmed. A Chevrolet, minus transmission and engine, and cut into three parts, was lifted by helicopter to the top of a pinnacle about 1500 feet above a canyon near Moab, Utah.

The sections were then reassembled, and a model posed in the car for the pictures.

Illustrated in the film were several techniques, ranging from a Shamrock commercial made entirely from still photos and using only music for sound to the much more involved Imperial Oil of Canada series. Cost for similar commercials usually ranges from relatively inexpensive to $100,000 Sparks said.

"You've got to tell a complete story in 60 seconds," said Sparks, adding that it costs as much as $2,000 per minute to advertise on some New York stations. Pointing up the need for editing, he said that for the 90 feet of film needed for a commercial featuring a Colorado Springs parade, it was necessary to shoot 5,500 feet.

Also included in the film were commercials for Sego and Gulf tires.

The direction of the advertising is established by the advertising agency and the client, he said.

Sparks said that the local office of Alexander Film Company was founded in 1919, after the company moved from Denver following a fire. We are the "only semi-major studio in the country," he said. Long a producer of theatre commercials, the company has only recently entered the field of television advertising. Educational, training, and business-type films are also in production now, he added

At the meeting, Edwyn Sherwood presented a $100 check from the Vocational Guidance Committee of the Colorado Springs Kiwanis Club to Maj. Carl Davis, Air Force Academy, for support of the local Science Fair, held Friday and Saturday at Olin Hall, Colorado College. Maj. Davis is chairman of the Pikes Peak Subsection of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers. Coordinating efforts of the Colorado Springs Kiwanis Club and the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers on the project, and supervising fund-raising, was Richard Hanes.

Dr. Russell Broholm introduced new member Frank Tyree, and Frank Weatherly introduced new member Robert Figge. The speaker was introduced by Orville Suhre. Club Pres. Byron Akers Jr. was in charge of the meeting.

Howard Emrich To Attend Home Workshop

Howard Emrich, vice president of Smartt Construction Company, has left for Washington, D.C. to attend a five day marketing workship commencing March 14 and sponsored by The National Association of Home Builders.

For the entire program each registrant will participate with 17 other men in an informal, off the record small group discussion. Discussion will deal intensively with the continuing day to day problems in marketing.

Each small group will be guided by an outstanding and experienced marketing executive in the developer-builder field.

Each discussion group will select subjects of greatest interest. Then, guided by the discussion leader who will follow a complete outline of questions, registrants will exchange ideas.

Throughout the workshop every person will have an opportunity to present his own comp- any problems and get suggestions on how to solve them.

Some 100 executives representing all parts of the country are expected to attend.

Soviets Launch Blast Against Chinese Students

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched a press campaign today against Chinese students at Moscow universities after accusing them of plotting violence against Soviet militiamen guarding the U.S. Embassy.

Pravda, the official Communist party organ, published a Soviet note to Peking protesting the students' attack on the embassy March 4 and also three letters from readers which called the action "outrageous."

The letters said the attack was not a demonstration against imperialism but a "hooligan venture." They called for severe punishment of the Chinese who took part.

The demonstration had been called to protest U.S. air raids against North Viet Nam.

The note and the publicity in Pravda hinted that any repetition of such action might lead to the students' expulsion from the Soviet Union.

The Chinese, meanwhile, were reported considering calling their students home.

The Soviet note rejected charges of Soviet police brutality as "absolutely groundless." On the contrary, the note said, Chinese-led demonstrators "began to attack the Soviet militia" using sticks, iron rods and stones they had gathered in advance.

More than 30 members of the militia and Red army infantrymen were injured, four of them seriously, the note said.

The note also rejected a Chinese protest that Russian officials refused hospital treatment to Chinese students injured in the riot.

The Soviets charged the Chinese Embassy with organizing the demonstration and then starting a row over medical treatment of allegedly injured students.

Trailer Court Proposed on Janitell Farm

A petition to locate a 573 space trailer court on a 71.4 acre tract of land will be one of five requests coming before the El Paso County Board of Adjustment at 2 p.m. Thursday.

Ralph Janitell Jr. is petitioning to locate the trailer court in an M Industrial District located on South Circle Drive on Janitell Farm.

A petition and appeal by Lewis Gall asks permission to construct a canopy 28-feet by 28-feet over existing gasoline pumps located on Highway 115, 12 miles south of Colorado Springs partly within a front yard setback that does not conform to the zoning resolution.

Also to be heard by the board in the County Office Building auditorium are:

Petition and appeal of Marie Meads for permission to move a trailer and attach to an existing trailer and living room at 1505 Arch St. in an M Industrial District partly within a side yard setback that does not conform to the zoning resolution.

Petition and appeal of Mrs. L. J. Byrne for permission to construct an attached carport and sun deck at 1615 Ridgeway in an R-1 Residential District within front yard setbacks that do not conform to the zoning resolution.

Petition and appeal of Leon A. Wilkins for permission to construct a one-family dwelling with attached garage at 139 Lotus St. in an R-2 Residential District within rear yard setbacks that do not conform to the zoning resolution.

Bogie Would Be Amused, Bacall Says

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Bogie would have been greatly amused by it all," says Lauren Bacall of the Humphrey Bogart cult that has swept eastern colleges and intellectual sets.

The widow Bogart, now the wife of Jason Robards, was back in Hollywood to appear in a show with her husband for the first time. The occasion is the Danny Kaye Show which will appear March 24 on CBS, and sketches and songs, a rarity for both.

Miss Bacall, lanky, tawny and full of provocative opinions, was spooning soup into her sprightly 3 year old Sam Robard when I arrived at her Bel-Air hotel suite. Finishing the chore, she reclined in the elusive California sun and talked.

"Strangely enough, I've missed California," said the actress, who has made New York her home while Robards appeared in such plays as "After the Fall" and "Hughie." "I feel the need for country once more. That's why I'm glad that I'll be bringing the family out here in June to spend the summer."

The rest of the family include Stephen Bogart, a husky 16-year-old with his father's chin and walk and an antipathy toward becoming an actor; and Leslie Bogart, dark beauty of 12 who right now aims to become a newspaper reporter.

It is for their sake that Miss Bacall is happy for the Bogart revival — "so they can appreciate what a contribution their father made to the screen."

The cult has resulted in festivals of Bogar films in college towns and at Manhattan theaters. Collegiates have copied the actor's talk and manner, even the way he cupped a cigarette in his hand. All this would have both pleased and amused him, his widow feels.

"I think the whole thing proves that Bogie had something that each generation could identify with," she remarked "For all the great work that Gable and Cooper did, their style hasn't lived on. Bogie's has."

Klan Costume Not Prejudice, Army Declares

DARMSTADT, Germany (AP) — A U. S. Army spokesman said today that 11 offcers who dressed as Ku Klux Klansmen at a carnival-time costume party had "no intent to imply racial prejudice."

He said the masquerade was meant to "portray satire in keeping with the spirit of Fasching," the German pre-Lenten carnival during which the party was held at an officers club in Darmstadt.

The officers, all of them white and six from the South, appeared in Klan garb carrying a small cross with candles burning on it.

The satire stopped when Gen. F. K. Mearns, commander of the Army's 5th Corps, walked in.

Mearns asked Sgt. Norman Brown, a Negro serving as bartender, to put out the candles and shake hands with the officers. Brown did so and reportedly said to the officers, "This is not part of our heritage."

The officers took off the robes at Mearns' request.

"If any corrective action is taken for this misguided enthusiasm," the Army spokesman said, "it will be on a battalion level."

All of the officers are members of the 547th Engineer Battalion in Darmstadt. A battalion spokesman said the unit's commander, Lt. Col. James Bowman, has taken no disciplinary action yet.

The Overseas Weekly, which caters to military personnel, said one of the Negro cooks at the club, Spec. 5 Alonzo Galloway from North Carolina said: "Was this to make us afraid? It doesn't make me afraid. We're in the Army to fight for democracy, let's practice it."

The Army refused to release the names of the officers wearing the sheets.

Handy-Kron Rites Held In Our Saviour Chapel

The Chapel of Our Saviour, Broadmoor, was the scene of the wedding of Marilyn Jeanne Kron and George Walter Handy, at 7 p.m. Saturday, March 6.

The Rev. James D. Burnette officiated. There were two vases of white mums and white pompoms on the altar.

Mr. Ben Gahart, at the organ, played nuptial selections: "Trumpet Voluntary in D Major," processional, and "In Thee is Gladness," Bach, recessional.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Paul Raymond Kron and the late Mr. Kron, 1207 E. Columbia, was given in marriage by her brother, Steven L. Kron. The bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Everete L. Handy of South Duxbury, Mass.

The bride's full-length gown of lace and organza, long sleeves, and scooped neckline, had a chapel train of organza with lace insert. The shoulder-length veil of silk illusion attached to a silk organza rose was made by her bridesmaid. She carried a white orchid with stephanotis on a white prayer book.

Mrs. Harold Dean Bumgardner, cousin of the bride, matron of honor, and Mrs. Judith Snud, bridesmaid, wore identical long pink chiffon sheath gowns with scooped necklines and empire waistlines. They wore portrait rim hats of Maline in matching color, romance pink shoes, and white wristlet gloves. Each carried a long-stemmed pink rose.

Lt. Ray W. Cole, III acted as best man. The six sabre bearers were: Capt. John J. Keoah, Lt. Jan Arntson, Lt. William R. Myres, Lt. James R. Carter, Lt. Michael W. Kilroy, and Lt. James H. Shotwell.

The bride's mother wore a turquoise silk sheath and jacket with three-quarter sleeves, matching accessories, and a white gardenia corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a sea-green sheath and jacket with bone colored accessories and a white gardenia corsage.

The reception immediately following the ceremony was held at the home of the brides aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon G. Scott.

Mrs. Russel Erb and Mrs. Lawrence M. Marsh assisted in serving. Mrs. Ray W. Cole, III, was in charge of the guest book and gift table.

After a wedding trip to California, New Mexico, New York, Washington D. C., and Massachusetts, the couple will return to Colorado Springs.

The bride's traveling costume was a navy blue silk suit with matching accessories.

Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Elena Puffer and Mrs. Louise Nottingham, Denver; Mr. A. B. Blunck; Mrs. Donald Kent and De Ann, Grand Mound, Iowa; Mr. Lawrence M. Marsh, Rockford, Ill.; and Dr. and Mrs. Everett L. Handy and Judith, South Duxbury, Mass.

Mrs. Goeke Entertains Y-Wives Charter Members

Mrs. Otto Goeke recently held a reunion tea for former and original members and instructors of the Y-Wives Club of the YWCA at her home.

The Y-Wives was organized about 1946 to give married women of the city an opportunity to meet together for social and cultural purposes. Mrs. Goeke, while also a member of the group, was a long-time instructor of the club in knitting and crochet, and most of the women present at the reunion had at some time come under her instruction.

Her guests were: Mrs. Ethel Joe Hellgren, the present executive director of the YWCA, Mrs. Dorothy Wing Bryson, former executive director; Demma Brisendine, Mary Frances Bunning, Virginia Colton, Ramona Crissman, Dorothy Dugan, Lucille Ellis, Judy Fagin, Irene Fife, Maxine Glaskin, Dorothy Hunter, Paula Hurst, Alice J. Johnson, Margaret Knodel, Helen Jane Mummery, Lauree Noe, Mignon Pearl, Edna Shaw, and Mildred Sullivan. Some of these women have been or are now instructors in crafts, bridge, or needlework.

The Y-Wives Club is still an active group at the YWCA. Two groups are meeting at the main building downtown, one on Tuesday morning and afternoon, and the other on Thursday morning only. A third group meets at the Fire House in Security on Wednesday morning. A nursery with attendant is provided for the children while their mothers are participating in the classes. A luncheon is held once a month in the cafeteria of the YWCA.

At present, there are classes in knitting, bridge 1 and 2, beginning and intermediate sewing, oil painting, and exercise. Instructors are paid. The members frequently take advantage of the YWCA's wider program for adults, the present program director of which is Mrs. Pat Bresett.

Mrs. Collier to Entertain Fortnightly Club Tuesday

Fortnightly Study Club will meet at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. D. L. Collier, 1312 E. Monument.

Mrs. Rumsey Wheeler will present the program.

Featherweight Fabrics in Svelte, Sheer Shapers

Not since Eve in the Garden of Eden have women been so lightly clad as is the fair sex for spring 1965.

Not only is the American woman the lightest dressed, but also the coolest and shapeliest in outerwear and undercover garments created in the wispiest, sheerest and most comfortable fabrics ever.

The experts at Gossard, famous makers of foundation garments, say that spring is the harbinger of some of the breeziest shape-makers in the history of women's apparel.

Even the women in Cleopatra's era wore more clothing than does the discreetly-dressed warm climate of the Nile valley, Egyptian ladies wore over ten pounds of clothing. Though tunics were light and filmy, the disguised metal girdles and the jeweled ornaments they wore were quite heavy too.

In the days of Shakespeare, iron corsets were in fashion. To those ten pounds of torture, Elizabethan ladies added farthingales and heavily - ornamented gowns and cloaks for a total of about 55 pounds.

In the lush, plush Victorian days, the woman wore a mere 37 or so pounds of fashionable attire. Although her girdles were made of linen or cotton, reinforced with whalebone, it weighed about a pound. However, petticoats and dresses added up the poundage.

Following World War I, woman's cultural and social status changed—as did her wardrobe.

Even when the flappers cast off her corsets but donned bosom flattering brassieres, her short - skirted dresses, "teddies" and other accoutrements were still in the light-heavyweight division.

But now, long-legged panty girdles weigh in at as little as an ounce. Cottons are as light and airy as tissue and even bosom-shaping contour bras use a new kind of fiberfill — so light that it floats on air — nor do they mat or shift.

Spandex fibers have reduced the weight of fashion's finest creations — from the inside out.

Miraculously, a costume of dress, shoes, bag and all needed accessories, could weigh as little as two pounds.

The modern woman has the unique advantage of being able to dress as glamorously as she desires in complete comfort at all times in new, gossamer - weight wardrobe ensembles.

MRS. GEORGE W. HANDY

Handy-Kron Rites Held In Our Saviour Chapel

The Chapel of Our Saviour, Broadmoor, was the scene of the wedding of Marilyn Jeanne Kron and George Walter Handy, at 7 p.m. Saturday, March 6.

The Rev. James D. Burnette officiated. There were two vases of white mums and white pompoms on the altar.

Mr. Ben Gahart, at the organ, played nuptial selections: "Trumpet Voluntary in D Major," processional, and "In Thee is Gladness," Bach, recessional.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Paul Raymond Kron and the late Mr. Kron, 1207 E. Columbia, was given in marriage by her brother, Steven L. Kron. The bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Everete L. Handy of South Duxbury, Mass.

The bride's full-length gown of lace and organza, long sleeves, and scooped neckline, had a chapel train of organza with lace insert. The shoulder-length veil of silk illusion attached to a silk organza rose was made by her bridesmaid. She carried a white orchid with stephanotis on a white prayer book.

Mrs. Harold Dean Bumgardner, cousin of the bride, matron of honor, and Mrs. Judith Snud, bridesmaid, wore identical long pink chiffon sheath gowns with scooped necklines and empire waistlines. They wore portrait rim hats of Maline in matching color, romance pink shoes, and white wristlet gloves. Each carried a long-stemmed pink rose.

Lt. Ray W. Cole, III acted as best man. The six sabre bearers were: Capt. John J. Keoah, Lt. Jan Arntson, Lt. William R. Myres, Lt. James R. Carter, Lt. Michael W. Kilroy, and Lt. James H. Shotwell.

The bride's mother wore a turquoise silk sheath and jacket with three-quarter sleeves, matching accessories, and a white gardenia corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a sea-green sheath and jacket with bone colored accessories and a white gardenia corsage.

The reception immediately following the ceremony was held at the home of the brides aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon G. Scott.

Mrs. Russel Erb and Mrs. Lawrence M. Marsh assisted in serving. Mrs. Ray W. Cole, III, was in charge of the guest book and gift table.

After a wedding trip to California, New Mexico, New York, Washington D. C., and Massachusetts, the couple will return to Colorado Springs.

The bride's traveling costume was a navy blue silk suit with matching accessories.

Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Elena Puffer and Mrs. Louise Nottingham, Denver; Mr. A. B. Blunck; Mrs. Donald Kent and De Ann, Grand Mound, Iowa; Mr. Lawrence M. Marsh, Rockford, Ill.; and Dr. and Mrs. Everett L. Handy and Judith, South Duxbury, Mass.

Before her marriage, the bride was employed as Continuity Director of KYSN Radio. The bridegroom is a graduate of West Point.

Mrs. Goeke Entertains Y-Wives Charter Members

Mrs. Otto Goeke recently held a reunion tea for former and original members and instructors of the Y-Wives Club of the YWCA at her home.

The Y-Wives was organized about 1946 to give married women of the city an opportunity to meet together for social and cultural purposes. Mrs. Goeke, while also a member of the group, was a long-time instructor of the club in knitting and crochet, and most of the women present at the reunion had at some time come under her instruction.

Her guests were: Mrs. Ethel Joe Hellgren, the present executive director of the YWCA, Mrs. Dorothy Wing Bryson, former executive director; Demma Brizendine, Mary Frances Bunning, Virginia Colton, Ramona Crissman, Dorothy Dugan, Lucille Ellis, Judy Fagin, Irene Fife, Maxine Glaskin, Dorothy Hunter, Paula Hurst, Alice J. Johnson, Margaret Knodel, Helen Jane Mummery, Lauree Noe, Mignon Pearl, Edna Shaw, and Mildred Sullivan. Some of these women have been or are now instructors in crafts, bridge, or needlework.

The Y-Wives Club is still an active group at the YWCA. Two groups are meeting at the main building downtown, one on Tuesday morning and afternoon, and the other on Thursday morning only. A third group meets at the Fire House in Security on Wednesday morning. A nursery with attendant is provided for the children while their mothers are participating in the classes. A luncheon is held once a month in the cafeteria of the YWCA.

At present, there are classes in knitting, bridge 1 and 2, beginning and intermediate sewing, oil painting, and exercise. Instructors are paid. The members frequently take advantage of the YWCA's wider program for adults, the present program director of which is Mrs. Pat Bresett.

Mrs. Collier to Entertain Fortnightly Club Tuesday

Fortnightly Study Club will meet at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. D. L. Collier, 1312 E. Monument.

Mrs. Rumsey Wheeler will present the program.

Featherweight Fabrics in Svelte, Sheer Shapers

Not since Eve in the Garden of Eden have women been so lightly clad as is the fair sex for spring 1965.

Not only is the American woman the lightest dressed, but also the coolest and shapeliest in outerwear and undercover garments created in the wispiest, sheerest and most comfortable fabrics ever.

The experts at Gossard, famous makers of foundation garments, say that spring is the harbinger of some of the breeziest shape-makers in the history of women's apparel.

Even the women in Cleopatra's era wore more clothing than does the discreetly-dressed warm climate of the Nile valley, Egyptian ladies wore over ten pounds of clothing. Though tunics were light and filmy, the disguised metal girdles and the jeweled ornaments they wore were quite heavy too.

In the days of Shakespeare, iron corsets were in fashion. To those ten pounds of torture, Elizabethan ladies added farthingales and heavily - ornamented gowns and cloaks for a total of about 55 pounds.

In the lush, plush Victorian days, the woman wore a mere 37 or so pounds of fashionable attire. Although her girdles were made of linen or cotton, reinforced with whalebone, it weighed about a pound. However, petticoats and dresses added up the poundage.

Following World War I, woman's cultural and social status changed—as did her wardrobe.

Even when the flappers cast off her corsets but donned bosom flattering brassieres, her short - skirted dresses, "teddies" and other accoutrements were still in the light-heavyweight division.

But now, long-legged panty girdles weigh in at as little as an ounce. Cottons are as light and airy as tissue and even bosom-shaping contour bras use a new kind of fiberfill — so light that it floats on air — nor do they mat or shift.

Spandex fibers have reduced the weight of fashion's finest creations — from the inside out.

Miraculously, a costume of dress, shoes, bag and all needed accessories, could weigh as little as two pounds.

The modern woman has the unique advantage of being able to dress as glamorously as she desires in complete comfort at all times in new, gossamer - weight wardrobe ensembles.

Choose Your Alligator Bag Wisely

Alligator accessories are year in, year out smart fashion addenda for any woman's wardrobe.

Since, however, the alligator is a valuable skin, rare enough to make a purchase of a handbag quite a handsome investment — the shopper should know what to look for before buying.

According to C.D. Peacock, one of Chicago's leading jewelers and connoisseurs of fine accessories, it is important to be able to identify the value of hides, frames, linings, finish, etc.

The only difference between a crocodile and an alligator is in the mouth structure, and not in the skins at all.

Most American designers prefer skins from our domestic swamps. The crocodile is more at home in Asia, Africa and Australia.

The choicest skins come from Florida, Louisiana and Mexico. South American alligators ruin their undersides by crawling on sharp rocks near riverbeds and also form callouses where the choicest skins are located.

These skins are often used for wallets and other pocket and purse accessories.

The French finish found on fine alligator handbags adds to the expense of the skins. American manufacturers send their raw 'gator skins to France for special tanning and then they're shipped back.

Another factor that makes these skins so high priced is the fact that all countries restrict the killing of the giant reptiles, resulting in greater demand and limited supplies

A "two skin" bag is usually the finest — it uses the best part of two choice underside skins to create matching sides of the handbag.

Less costly bags made with "half" skins use a single skin to create both sides of the handbag. Here, smaller scales of the skin are placed at the top of the bag, while the larger scales are at the bottom.

Less expensive designs used pieced skins to achieve the wanted effects.

Check the insides of the bag also; fine bags are usually lined with calfskin and include an open pocket, closed pocket and zipper compartment. The frame, whether self covered or enamel finished, should have deep sides for a conveniently wide opening.

For the basic alligator handbag in your wardrobe, choose it in black or brown. But honey tones, reds, greens, and pastel shades also brighten the fashion scene.

Because the alligator handbag represents a wise investment, loook at enough styles and designs to get a proper perspective on the tailoring, size, shape and color which will give you the best in wear and fashion smartness.

Ring-a-Ding Fashions

Rings have tremendous fashion importance this spring.

New and exciting combinations of colored stones such as rubies, and turquoises have created rings of a deep and rich aura. Other dramatic treatment in rings makes use of brilliant enamel and burnished gold, as well as asymmetrical designs in diamonds and pearls, according to the Jewelry Industry Council.

Adding new interest to rings are many beautiful gems that have not frequently been used in rings before. They consist of both real and semi-precious stones such as citrines, tourmalines, peridots, tiger eyes, cat's eyes, topaz quartzes, amethysts and smoky topazes.

Linde Stars stones are fast becoming popular, particularly in the large sizes or with an oval frame of small diamonds for added brilliance.

For a chair that has a sagging cane bottom, turn the chair upside down and place a wet towel on the bottom. Let it remain that way until the towel dries and the cane will shrink back in place.

Choose Your Alligator Bag Wisely

Alligator accessories are year in, year out smart fashion addenda for any woman's wardrobe.

Since, however, the alligator is a valuable skin, rare enough to make a purchase of a handbag quite a handsome investment — the shopper should know what to look for before buying.

According to C.D. Peacock, one of Chicago's leading jewelers and connoisseurs of fine accessories, it is important to be able to identify the value of hides, frames, linings, finish, etc.

The only difference between a crocodile and an alligator is in the mouth structure, and not in the skins at all.

Most American designers prefer skins from our domestic swamps. The crocodile is more at home in Asia, Africa and Australia.

The choicest skins come from Florida, Louisiana and Mexico. South American alligators ruin their undersides by crawling on sharp rocks near riverbeds and also form callouses where the choicest skins are located.

These skins are often used for wallets and other pocket and purse accessories.

The French finish found on fine alligator handbags adds to the expense of the skins. American manufacturers send their raw 'gator skins to France for special tanning and then they're shipped back.

Another factor that makes these skins so high priced is the fact that all countries restrict the killing of the giant reptiles, resulting in greater demand and limited supplies.

A "two skin" bag is usually the finest — it uses the best part of two choice underside skins to create matching sides of the handbag.

Less costly bags made with "half" skins use a single skin to create both sides of the handbag. Here, smaller scales of the skin are placed at the top of the bag, while the larger scales are at the bottom.

Less expensive designs used pieced skins to achieve the wanted effects.

Check the insides of the bag also; fine bags are usually lined with calfskin and include an open pocket, closed pocket and zipper compartment. The frame, whether self covered or enamel finished, should have deep sides for a conveniently wide opening.

For the basic alligator handbag in your wardrobe, choose it in black or brown. But honey tones, reds, greens, and pastel shades also brighten the fashion scene.

Because the alligator handbag represents a wise investment, loook at enough styles and designs to get a proper perspective on the tailoring, size, shape and color which will give you the best in wear and fashion smartness.

Ring-a-Ding Fashions

Rings have tremendous fashion importance this spring.

New and exciting combinations of colored stones such as rubies , and turquoises have created rings of a deep and rich aura. Other dramatic treatment in rings makes use of brilliant enamel and burnished gold, as well as asymmetrical designs in diamonds and pearls, according to the Jewelry Industry Council.

Adding new interest to rings are many beautiful gems that have not frequently been used in rings before. They consist of both real and semi-precious stones such as citrines, tourmalines, peridots, tiger eyes, cat's eyes, topaz quartzes, amethysts and smoky topazes.

Linde Stars stones are fast becoming popular, particularly in the large sizes or with an oval frame of small diamonds for added brilliance.

For a chair that has a sagging cane bottom, turn the chair upside down and place a wet towel on the bottom. Let it remain that way until the towel dries and the cane will shrink back in place.

A Little Light on Decorating

Lighting has much to do about creating an atmosphere. The addition of just one lighting fixture can change the looks of an interior and add freshness to an otherwise drab area of a room. Lighting fixtures are no longer a once-in-a-lifetime purchase.

Today, for the first time, any homeowner may buy beautifully designed and well-made fixtures for inside or outside the home at prices planned to suit everyone's purse. With a relatively small expenditure, new lighting ideas may be incorporated into the home each time it is redecorated, or an interior area is rearranged.

In the new collection of fixtures more stress has been placed on decorative designs and on designs that will fit into more than one area of the home.

There has been an increase in the number of colored glass pendants used as fixtures. Not only do they give good lighting, but may be used in many areas.

New, too, is an increase in the number of correlated fixtures such as chandeliers with matching wall bracket and ceiling light.

Femininity Enhances Coat and Suit Fashions

Gone are the days when a career woman's fashions strive to emulate the male. This Spring's designs are feminine and appealing in spite of the fact that they are geared to active lives.

Spring silhouettes are soft and fluid. There is no rigid tailoring and obvious seaming. Textures are smoother and flatter . . . fabrics are refined and understated.

Tender, delicate tones form the backdrop in the Spring garden of fashion, with tearoses, gentle greens, marigolds, sweet peas, delphiniums and the varied shades of pebbles and earth. As in every verdant setting, there is a peppering of vibrant colors too with bold pungent orange, red and vivid turquoise entering the scene and trailing along is the ever fashionable black and white.

Emphasis has been placed on the complete ensemble in the new career woman look, with the mating game being played in a hundred different ways. Trims of suits are coordinated with coats and blouses are keyed to linings. Ensemble color combinations are refreshing with pale-toned coats of chalk, blue or pink over suits of new rich, deep navy or cool black.

Suit jackets are longer officially but for those who look best in shorter jackets and know it . . . there are many hip-level styles.

Do the New Soft Shoe!

This spring, be a softy in pretty leather shoes. The "soft look" has floated onto the style scene and footwear fashions are leading the trend.

The soft look afoot means feathery leather textures, light 'n' bright colors and more romantic styling. Wearing these new shoes, you may feel like a lady or a femme fatale but you'll definitely feel "all-female".

The shaping of the simple leather pump for spring is lower-cut at sides and front and set on a variety of low and mid-sleek silhouette are such fashion points as open shanks, flat buckles or bows and stripping effects across the vamp. Among the many surface treatments are stunning smooth and suede leathers, genuine patent leather, subtle grained and crushed leathers and casual brushed and waxy leathers. Friction-free leather linings eliminate discomfort and stocking snags.

Returning on the new wave of romanticism are the sling-back and the strap sandal. These footwear favorites may be worn daytime or evening, depending on leather texture, heel height and styling detail.

Straps range from skinny to wide, from T-strap to mid-vamp strap. Slings may be completely open or feature a narrow leather backpost. Sturdy leather soles provide the foot support and balance so essential to a lithe, feminine walk.

Leather casuals, too, have gone quietly elegant. New waxy leathers, with a rich finish that retains all the natural shadings, are seen in smart little-heel sandals with a hand-crafted look. Both subtle variations on the moccasin theme and graceful walking shoes are interpreted in waxy leather.

Femininity Enhances Coat and Suit Fashions

Gone are the days when a career woman's fashions strive to emulate the male. This Spring's designs are feminine and appealing in spite of the fact that they are geared to active lives.

Spring silhouettes are soft and fluid. There is no rigid tailoring and obvious seaming. Textures are smoother and flatter . . . fabrics are refined and understated.

Tender, delicate tones form the backdrop in the Spring garden of fashion, with tearoses, gentle greens, marigolds, sweet peas, delphiniums and the varied shades of pebbles and earth. As in every verdant setting, there is a peppering of vibrant colors too with bold pungent orange, red and vivid turquoise entering the scene and trailing along is the ever fashionable black and white.

Emphasis has been placed on the complete ensemble in the new career woman look, with the mating game being played in a hundred different ways. Trims of suits are coordinated with coats and blouses are keyed to linings. Ensemble color combinations are refreshing with pale-toned coats of chalk, blue or pink over suits of new rich, deep navy or cool black.

Suit jackets are longer officially but for those who look best in shorter jackets and know it . . . there are many hip-level styles.

Do the New Soft Shoe!

This spring, be a softy in pretty leather shoes. The "soft look" has floated onto the style scene and footwear fashions are leading the trend.

The soft look afoot means feathery leather textures, light 'n' bright colors and more romantic styling. Wearing these new shoes, you may feel like a lady or a femme fatale but you'll definitely feel "all-female".

The shaping of the simple leather pump for spring is lower-cut at sides and front and set on a variety of low and mid-sleek silhouette are such fashion points as open shanks, flat buckles or bows and stripping effects across the vamp. Among the many surface treatments are stunning smooth and suede leathers, genuine patent leather, subtle grained and crushed leathers and casual brushed and waxy leathers. Friction-free leather linings eliminate discomfort and stocking snags.

Returning on the new wave of romanticism are the sling-back and the strap sandal. These footwear favorites may be worn daytime or evening, depending on leather texture, heel height and styling detail.

Straps range from skinny to wide, from T-strap to mid-vamp strap. Slings may be completely open or feature a narrow leather backpost. Sturdy leather soles provide the foot support and balance so essential to a lithe, feminine walk.

Leather casuals, too, have gone quietly elegant. New waxy leathers, with a rich finish that retains all the natural shadings, are seen in smart little-heel sandals with a hand-crafted look. Both subtle variations on the moccasin theme and graceful walking shoes are interpreted in waxy leather.

Party Treat: Fashionable Moulded Mousse

For that "something different," try this pale, elegant Herring Grapefruit Mousse. Lovely to look at, delicious to eat, it was developed in the test kitchen of the Herring Council. It's made with cream cheese, sour cream, tart grapefruit sections, and spiced Iceland herring tidbits. All the flavors blend into a delicious treat. As a final touch, garnish mousse with herring and grapefruit slices.

Grapefruit Herring Mousse

2 (3-oz.) packages mixed vegetable gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 (8 - oz.) package cream cheese
2 tablespoons grapefruit juice, drained from sections
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 cup milk
1½ cups drained fresh, canned or frozen grapefruit sections
¾ cup spiced Iceland herring tidbits drained and cubed

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Soften cream cheese. Gradually beat in sour cream, keeping mixture smooth. Gradually beat in milk and dissolved gelatin. Chill until mixture starts to thicken. Carefully fold in grapefruit sections, juice, and herring. Pour mixture into a lightly oiled 1½ quart mold. Chill until firm. Serve garnished with herring pieces and grapefruit sections surrounded with greens. Serve with a salad dressing made of sour cream, mayonnaise, chopped onion, and a few drops of Angostura bitters. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Crab apples make tasty preserves, jellies and pickles and sometimes are used for decorative purposes.

How to Cope With Hair's Growing Pains

The "awkward age" isn't a term confined to children growing up . . . it also applies to that tiresome period when a woman's hair is growing down from one hairstyle length to another. Thus, gals contemplating the switch from a short cut to a longer hairdo for spring face a real beauty problem

Here are some helpful "do's and don'ts" from the Helene Curtis Guild:

First of all, don't just shut your eyes and wait for your hair to grow! The average rate of hair growth is from ½ to ¾ of an inch per month, and it grows at different rates all over the head. The results can be pretty straggly-looking!

Do plan specific styles for the interim with your hairdresser, just as you should consult her about the finished style you're working toward.

Figure out how long it will take for your hair to reach the proper length for these new styles and make your beauty shop appointments accordingly.

Don't choose radical styles while you're waiting; modified versions of your present hairdo will make the change less obvious when your hair has reached the right length, then is the time to make a big splash with your brand new hairdo

Keep your hair in top condition during the waiting period, shampooing and setting it as regularly as ever, and brushing it even more than usual. The stimulation may increase the rate of growth, besides adding gloss and highlights.

Don't wait until your hair grows to the same length all over, because it never will. Hair grows at irregular rates with no two strands growing at an equal speed. Your hairdresser can tell you just how long each section should be for your future hairstyle.

Avoid the temptation to snip hair yourself . . . let your hairdresser do any necessary trimming while your hair grows to the desired length, and don't forget that you'll need a final shaping before the new style is set.

Keep in mind that soft styles will conceal any uneven ends of hair, while sleek hairdos only show up the irregularities. Pageboy styles, flipped-up ends and softly curled halo effect styles are all excellent choices for the period of transition.

Put glassware away before doing other pots, pans or even dishes. This reduces chances of accidents as you wash them.

Understated Jewels, Costume Drama

Here's good news for those who love the look of jewelry — styles for spring are focusing attention on the jeweled look.

Both American and Paris designers alike agree on a slender, fluid feeling for spring, beginning with sleeves and collars; and the simple lines and ease of seam in the new fashions are perfect backgrounds for elegant touches of jewelry.

Balenciaga, for instance, features a blousy suit with dolman sleeves that can be dramatically accented with a sunburst pin of blazing diamonds resting on the outer sleeve. For evening, he also shows lush suits with gently draped and cowl necklines that serve as perfect frames for necklaces and chokers.

Christian Dior emphasizes yoke details on long-line suits; a smart idea for setting off this look would be a Florentine gold daisy pin sprinkled with diamonds. And the simulated low belt on the lower edge of his jacket provides another perfect setting for a jeweled pin. Dior is also showing a three-piece navy and white checked suit with pique overblouse that can be accented very simply with a single piece of jewelry.

Those new swingy little suits with short-stop jackets take beautifully to jewelry accents, while "V" neckline styles just cry to be filled in with matinee-length necklaces. Popular bow blouses are being cleverly accented with a circle pin right smack in the center of their bows.

The new open jackets offer other opportunities for imaginative uses of jewelry. You might perch a pin on the highrise neckline of the blouse under an open jacket, or wear a necklace that has a pearl-and-diamond mounted clasp, with the clasp in front.

You'll find that all the new spring fashions can be effectively underscored with the simplest touch of jewelry.

Uniforms Duti-Full and Beautiful

The day is long past when nurses, therapists and other women in service jobs were limited to plain Jane, overly simple garments.

Today, many uniforms are glamourous, indeed, borrowing all the line and design from the couturiere's drawing board.

Withal, these fashions maintain the efficiency and easy-to-keep qualities which such service jobs require.

Today leading uniform manufacturers such as White Swan dress girls-in-white in uniforms with styling which defies regimentation . . . For instance, nurses on duty at the New York Pavilion of the N.Y. World's Fair wear slim overblouse dresses with selftie Chelsea collars, and two handy inset pockets at hipband. They come in polyester and nylon corded jersey or wash-wear cotton.

'Barely There' Look for New Shoe Fashions

The news this season in shoe fashions is "Low-Down" and "Barely-There." Women will be stepping out in low, sling-back pumps, delicate T-straps and criss-cross sandal styles. Heels have sunk to their lowest heights in years.

Texture, too, plays a leading role in shoe styles this season, with both gleaming smooth pale leather and richly-toned reptile effects sharing the spotlight. And, the textured look in stocking fashions is loosely woven and patterned by day, becoming sheer by night.

Smooth, well-groomed legs are also an important part of this new fashion look. One of the best ways to assure effective, carefree leg grooming is to use the new Lady Remington Lektronic shaver, recommended by beauty experts.

Soak feet in warm, soapy water, using a soft brush on toes and rough areas. A pumice stone will erase callouses and "pump bumps". Dry your feet throughly and push back cuticles with an orangewood stick. Cut nails straight across, then give two coats of polish in one of the soft, new "Barely-There" tones. Remember that your lipstick, too, should be a matching misty tone.

When you are baking yeast bread and dough is punched down, do so with a folding and stretching movement so as not to cut or tear the dough. This way the gluten strands will remain united.

BASQUE THAT NEVER BULGES—For smooth flattery, Bali connives with a zipper so fine and flexible that it never bulges. Invisible even under the closest fitting dress! Tapered back plunges almost to the waistline and soft nylon lace cups gently shape you for low-cut necklines. You'll find this Bali-Hi at The Corset Shop, 113 N. Tejon St., in sizes 32B to 38D. To be sure of perfect fit underneath it all, always be fitted at The Corset Shop.

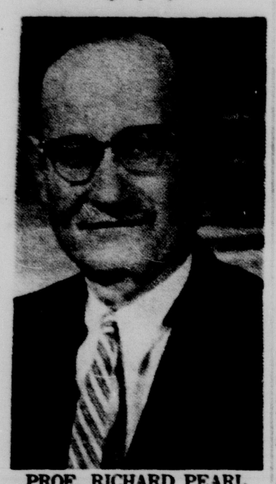
Prof. Pearl to Address Pen Women Saturday

Richard M. Pearl, well-known author and professor of geology at Colorado College, will speak on "The Professional Writer" at the noon luncheon meeting of the Pikes Peak Branch, National League of American Pen Women, Saturday, Mar. 20.

Elizabeth Shafer will be chairman for the program.

Few authors have had the breadth of publishing experience that Prof. Pearl brings to his subject. Since learning the hand setting of type as a schoolboy, he has been writer, newspaper columnist, and magazine editor, has operated his own book publishing firm, and has lectured on the American publishing business.

* * *



PROF. RICHARD PEARL

His 20 books include more than 40 editions and 60 revised printings. These include scientific, popular, reference, and juvenile titles in cloth and paperback. They have been issued by 10 publishers across the country and abroad, ranging from small companies to the world's largest technical publishers. Translations have appeared in French, Japanese, Persian, and Russian.

Prof. Pearl's books have been adopted by two book clubs and have won various prizes for excellence. Three have been listed by the New York Public Library and the "Library Journal" as among the 100 best scientific and technical books of the year in 1951, 1961, and 1964.

Examples of Prof. Pearl's writing have appeared in two book anthologies, one on the art of scholarly writing and the other on geology. His articles appear in three encyclopedias, and he was a consultant for the McGraw - Hill Encyclopedia of Science and Technology.

He was on the board of "Achat," published in Hamburg, Germany, and is now on the editorial board of "Earth Science," published in Chicago. He was geologic consultant for "Colorado Wonderland" and formerly had regular columns in magazines published in Chicago and New York. On a number of occasions his articles, which now number about 300, have appeared as editorials.

So far this year, Prof. Pearl has seen the appearance of the ninth printing of his book "Rocks and Minerals" and three magazine articles. He has read proof on three new editions of books to appear shortly.

Although he is represented by a literary agent in New York, Pearl has placed most of his work himself.

He has been at Colorado College since 1946 and is a graduate of the University of Colorado and Harvard University.

The meeting will begin at 12 noon at the Chicken Shack, with branch president Frances E. Trapp presiding. Prospective members and visitors are invited to attend.

Prof. Pearl to Address Pen Women Saturday

Richard M. Pearl, well-known author and professor of geology at Colorado College, will speak on "The Professional Writer" at the noon luncheon meeting of the Pikes Peak Branch, National League of American Pen Women, Saturday, Mar. 20.

Elizabeth Shafer will be chairman for the program.

Few authors have had the breadth of publishing experience that Prof. Pearl brings to his subject. Since learning the hand setting of type as a schoolboy, he has been writer, newspaper columnist, and magazine editor, has operated his own book publishing firm, and has lectured on the American publishing business.

* * *

PROF. RICHARD PEARL

His 20 books include more than 40 editions and 60 revised printings. These include scientific, popular, reference, and juvenile titles in cloth and paperback. They have been issued by 10 publishers across the country and abroad, ranging from small companies to the world's largest technical publishers. Translations have appeared in French, Japanese, Persian, and Russian.

Prof. Pearl's books have been adopted by two book clubs and have won various prizes for excellence. Three have been listed by the New York Public Library and the "Library Journal" as among the 100 best scientific and technical books of the year in 1951, 1961, and 1964.

Examples of Prof. Pearl's writing have appeared in two book anthologies, one on the art of scholarly writing and the other on geology. His articles appear in three encyclopedias, and he was a consultant for the McGraw - Hill Encyclopedia of Science and Technology.

He was on the board of "Achat," published in Hamburg, Germany, and is now on the editorial board of "Earth Science," published in Chicago. He was geologic consultant for "Colorado Wonderland" and formerly had regular columns in magazines published in Chicago and New York. On a number of occasions his articles, which now number about 300, have appeared as editorials.

So far this year, Prof. Pearl has seen the appearance of the ninth printing of his book "Rocks and Minerals" and three magazine articles. He has read proof on three new editions of books to appear shortly.

Although he is represented by a literary agent in New York, Pearl has placed most of his work himself.

He has been at Colorado College since 1946 and is a graduate of the University of Colorado and Harvard University.

The meeting will begin at 12 noon at the Chicken Shack, with branch president Frances E. Trapp presiding. Prospective members and visitors are invited to attend.

The Easy Way to Clean

By POLLY CRAMER
Newspaper Enterprise

After winter comes spring and, as surely as its arrival, most homemakers have to face general house cleaning.

Some well-organized housekeepers have a cleaning routine that takes care of the extra chores, such as cleaning closets, washing woodwork, etc., every week, so they never have to face all these big tasks at one time. But for most of us it's grab that scrub bucket and pitch in—so every little time-saver helps.

Many of the hints sent in to me by housewives throughout the country are concerned particularly with spring cleaning. We've selected several which, through trial and error, have proved effective and most helpful.

Crayon marks on wallpaper can be removed by "lightly" rubbing over the crayon with "dry" soap - filled steel wool pads.

Wash painted basement walls with a long-handled car brush attached to the hose.

Black tile in a bathroom takes on a new luster when cleaned with liquid window spray. This spray is also good for removal of pencil and crayon marks on walls and woodwork. Wipe with a clean cloth for sparkling results.

One of the handiest things for holding a quantity of plaster filler when patching walls is a saucepan lid. The knob makes it easy to hold and turns the shallow, dishlike cover into a palette.

A plastic bowl scraper works fine for patching holes with patching plaster.

Hair brushes with broken or bent bristles that are no longer good enough for their original purpose are wonderful as scrub brushes for use on rough plaster walls.

When polishing the arms, sides, and legs of chairs that have cloth seats and backs, hold a large square of brown paper over the upholstered part while working on the wood.

Put small dust catchers (knickknacks) in a sieve or collander for washing. Use sudsy water, rinse and let dry on a paper towel.

Furniture polish in an old window spray bottle cuts polishing time by one-third.

Mark rugs and carpet on the wrong side each time they are taken up for cleaning to insure rotation for even distribution of wear.

Rugs with a carved pile are easily cleaned with the vacuum attachment that has little plastic teeth. Go over the carpet with a scrubbing motion. You'll be surprised at the renewed brightness. Wash the attachment and dry before using it on furniture or draperies.

Dust along the edges of wall-to-wall carpeting is hard to reach with either the vacuum or carpet sweeper. A damp sponge will roll the dust into balls away from the wall. These are easily picked up by the sweeper.

Space Age Dishes Keyed To Children

It's a fact that most women these days run a short-order kitchen, with special dishes for petites. To store all these dishes, it is important that the homemaker have utensils that serve more than one purpose and take up a minimum amount of space.

Corning Glass Works has developed just such a multi-purpose material called Pyroceram. And it is now available in petite skillets and saucepans which you can take out of the freezer and put directly over the flame, without fear of cracking them.

They're ideal for families with children . . . for example, for hot school day lunches, you can freeze individual portions of tuna or macaroni casserole, meatloaf, even hamburgers and french fries in the pans, then put them directly over a flame or defrost and put under the broiler or in the oven each noon time. And, the youngsters can eat right out of the pan.

You can use one pan to act as a cover for the other, or you can use all four for individual servings of meat, fish, eggs or salad or any number of dishes. For a special brunch, you might cook and serve eggs to order fried or scrambled, with bacon or sausage — in the same pan, so you avoid extra dish washing.

And, talk about space, these pans stack so neatly together, they require less area than two ordinary soup bowls. They're designed to help you live graciously — and they'll conquer your space problems, as well.

Riggs-Bauer Vows Read In February Ceremony

Marietta Jean Bauer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip F. Bauer, 1005 N. 7th, became the bride of Dale K. Riggs, son Mr. and Mrs. Clark Riggs, Sciotoville, Ohio, at 9 a.m., Feb. 20, in the Divine Redeemer Catholic Church.

Father Molitor was the officiating clergyman. Red and white carnations decorated the church while the bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride wore a floor-length white acetate nylon dress, rose figured. The fingertip veil was topped with a crown filled with teardrop pearls. She carried flowers of white carnations enterwined with red ribbon.

Mary Carbonell, matron of honor, wore a floor-length light blue bellshaped satin dress with a crown rhinestone tiara and white carnations.

Arthur Ray Haas, was the best man while John J. Whiting served as usher.

The bride's mother chose a costume of white brocade in dress and jacket ensemble with a corsage of red and white roses.

The reception was held in the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. John Whiting, in gold brocade, and Mrs. Charles Curry, in white brocade, assisted at the reception.

The couple will establish residence in Colorado Springs.

Use the good parts of worn sheets for baby's diaper liners, with pinking shears, cut liners about 8 inches by 6½ inches. One worn sheet will make several liners.

The Easy Way to Clean

By POLLY CRAMER
Newspaper Enterprise

After winter comes spring and, as surely as its arrival, most homemakers have to face general house cleaning.

Some well-organized housekeepers have a cleaning routine that takes care of the extra chores, such as cleaning closets, washing woodwork, etc., every week, so they never have to face all these big tasks at one time. But for most of us it's grab that scrub bucket and pitch in—so every little time-saver helps.

Many of the hints sent in to me by housewives throughout the country are concerned particularly with spring cleaning. We've selected several which, through trial and error, have proved effective and most helpful.

Crayon marks on wallpaper can be removed by "lightly" rubbing over the crayon with "dry" soap - filled steel wool pads.

Wash painted basement walls with a long-handled car brush attached to the hose.

Black tile in a bathroom takes on a new luster when cleaned with liquid window spray. This spray is also good for removal of pencil and crayon marks on walls and woodwork. Wipe with a clean cloth for sparkling results.

One of the handiest things for holding a quantity of plaster filler when patching walls is a saucepan lid. The knob makes it easy to hold and turns the shallow, dishlike cover into a palette.

A plastic bowl scraper works fine for patching holes with patching plaster.

Hair brushes with broken or bent bristles that are no longer good enough for their original purpose are wonderful as scrub brushes for use on rough plaster walls.

When polishing the arms, sides, and legs of chairs that have cloth seats and backs, hold a large square of brown paper over the upholstered part while working on the wood.

Put small dust catchers (knickknacks) in a sieve or collander for washing. Use sudsy water, rinse and let dry on a paper towel.

Furniture polish in an old window spray bottle cuts polishing time by one-third.

Mark rugs and carpet on the wrong side each time they are taken up for cleaning to insure rotation for even distribution of wear.

Rugs with a carved pile are easily cleaned with the vacuum attachment that has little plastic teeth. Go over the carpet with a scrubbing motion. You'll be surprised at the renewed brightness. Wash the attachment and dry before using it on furniture or draperies.

Dust along the edges of wall-to-wall carpeting is hard to reach with either the vacuum or carpet sweeper. A damp sponge will roll the dust into balls away from the wall. These are easily picked up by the sweeper.

Space Age Dishes Keyed To Children

It's a fact that most women these days run a short-order kitchen, with special dishes for petites. To store all these dishes, it is important that the homemaker have utensils that serve more than one purpose and take up a minimum amount of space.

Corning Glass Works has developed just such a multi-purpose material called Pyroceram. And it is now available in petite skillets and saucepans which you can take out of the freezer and put directly over the flame, without fear of cracking them.

They're ideal for families with children . . . for example, for hot school day lunches, you can freeze individual portions of tuna or macaroni casserole, meatloaf, even hamburgers and french fries in the pans, then put them directly over a flame or defrost and put under the broiler or in the oven each noon time. And, the youngsters can eat right out of the pan.

You can use one pan to act as a cover for the other, or you can use all four for individual servings of meat, fish, eggs or salad or any number of dishes. For a special brunch, you might cook and serve eggs to order fried or scrambled, with bacon or sausage — in the same pan, so you avoid extra dish washing.

And, talk about space, these pans stack so neatly together, they require less area than two ordinary soup bowls. They're designed to help you live graciously — and they'll conquer your space problems, as well.

Fountain Rebekahs Will Convene Monday

The Fountain Rebekahs Lodge 59 will meet at 8 p.m. Monday. Maudie Hommer, Noble Grand, will preside.

All Rebekahs are welcome to attend.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE
From Heloise's Kitchen

Listen, Ladies, I had a bright idea the other day that hit me like a ton of bricks (yes, tons of bricks do fall on my head once in a while!)

We all get tired of using white store-bought bread all the time, but sometimes we don't have money enough in our budget to buy a loaf of raisin bread or brown bread. BUT, we do have freezers or freezer compartments in our refrigerators!

Once in a while, buy a loaf of dark or raisin bread along with your other loaves of white bread. When you get home, open the wrappers on a couple of loaves of ordinary bread and insert one piece of the special bread between every "two" or "three" slices of white bread, re-cap the wrappers and put them in your home freezer. It's fantabulous!

The one - out - of - every - three - or - four times that someone in your family wants a piece of raisin bread, he has it or is "reminded" to eat some raisin bread just because it is there!

Also, this keeps that loaf of more expensive raisin bread from drying out or going to waste. And, my is that good for breakfast or a snack with a dash of cinnamon. —Heloise

Letter Of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

What does one do with the "mother" in the vinegar?

I have often been told to ask for "father," but that was no answer either!—A Reader

---

Anybody know how to control "Mother"? In the "vinegar" . . . !! I guess I just use so much vinegar that I don't find it any more.

If you have an answer please write to Heloise in care of this paper. We would love to know your answer. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Please tell mothers not to throw away those bassinets.

They make marvelous ironing baskets, are lightweight and hold enough ironing for "two" families!

They can be used for soiled clothes as well. —Mrs. W.O.S.

Dear Heloise:

Just a tip for keeping up on mending:

Buy a variety of iron-on patch materials, including the small, round, already cut patches, in different colors.

Slip these into a plastic bag and pin it to the square end of your ironing board.

Then when you are ironing and find a snagged place in a garment, or a thin place, select the matching colored patch and —presto—it's all done. —Mrs. R.L. Brandt

Dear Heloise:

I use your nylon net as a patch for repairing torn or snagged lace.

I cut a strip or square a little larger than the place to be repaired, pin or baste the net in place on the wrong side of the garment, then work the lace back together with blind stitch, or just whip it.

When finished, the patch is not noticed. This is fine for lace on dresses, blouses, underwear, and where slip straps pull off lace edges.

I repaired a good blue lace dress with blue net and a pink one with pink net. —Mrs. W.G.W.

Dear Heloise:

Try putting clear fingernail polish on all those rhinestone buttons before sending your dress or blouse to the cleaners.

By doing this, all the stones will still be on when the garment is returned.

The dry cleaning never has loosened the fingernail polish for me, although it often had loosened the glue on the back of the stones and lost them. —Joan

Dear Heloise:

I have no trouble keeping nylon quilts on our twin beds since I have been using a cotton sheet blanket between the quilt and the wool blanket.

The nylon quitl adheres beautifully and is never on the floor. —Mrs. Ernest P. Wilkins

Dear Heloise:

Just found another use for Heloise net!

I have some rather elaborate plastic toothpicks I use for serving shrimp, olives, etc., and I always hate to discard them after a party.

This year I gathered them all up after our guests had gone and tied them in a square of nylon net.

I dunked them in real hot, soapy water with some disinfectant and rubbed them back and forth in the net, then rinsed them in clear, very hot water and laid them on a paper towel until they were dry.

They are now back in the box and ready for the next party.

How cheap can you get? —D. Perry

Honey, you're not cheap . . . just smart! —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I line the inside bottom of waste baskets with adhesive-backed paper, leaving a quarter of an inch turn-up to stick to the sides.

It keeps the inside of good waste baskets (like leather or painted ones) from being scratched, and makes them easy to clean and wipe out if anything sticky is thrown into them. — Jean Garnsey

Ladies, What's Your Color Key

Half a century back, Henry Ford made a classic comment on color choice. He said, "You can buy any color Ford you want, as long as it's black."

Nearly every purchase the modern woman makes involves a color choice, ranging from an automobile down to a small utensil or the paint for the exterior of her home.

In fact, to many women, this cornucopia of color is too overwhelming to manage. So many color decisions are required to harmonize and fraternize with hues and shades already in the home, is it any wonder that many women are inclined to hit clinkers again and again. For proof, open the average female closet.

Even the most fastidious homemaker has dresses she never wears, unfinished lipstick she won't use or a pillow, a painting, table linens, vases, shoes, or a bathing suit all tucked out of sight . . . and the majority of these are not being used because of mistakes in color.

Errors increase as the number of color choices increase and unfortunately, many poor choices aren't easily hidden. For example, the wrong color on the walls can be depressing or the wrong color upholstery repelling. Why psychologists say the wrong color can even ruin appetites.

Fortunately, however, this problem need no longer vex the busy homemaker. The inescapable rainbow has been harnessed by a classically simple plan called the Color Key. This system enables a woman to choose harmonizing colors that complement both her own coloring and existing decor. And Valspar Corporation has incorporated this system into a handy purse size guide book.

Based on the fact that every person is classified into one of two color spectrums, the Color Key Dictionary presents 300 swatches for use as an on-the-spot shopping guide.

Once a woman has chosen one of the two Color Keys her color worries are over. Every one of the 300 colors harmonize with every other one giving the homemaker practically an unlimited range.

Key Number One tends toward a blue cast as opposed to the yellow cast of Key Number Two.

Supposing a woman with Key Number One decided to paint her living room walls green, but wanted to use blues in her room furnishings. Color Key would solve her problem, for no matter what green she chose if she stuck to the blues in her category, they would be sure to harmonize with the green in every instance.

In the same way, she could select lampshades, picture frames, upholstery, tables, even flowers and objects d'art.

Color Key Number One contains 20 different shades of blue plus as many bluegreens and violet shades.

Color Key was developed by Robert C. Dorr, a California designer and veteran color authority, by applying well established color truths to everyday use. "You start," Dorr said, "By selecting the Color Key best suited to your own coloring and personality, an easy decision to anyone who sees the two keys together. Then you make all selections from the 300 alternatives in your Key."

Color Key decisions last a lifetime, according to Dorr. Not even graying hair or tanned skin change the basic harmony.

Slip these into a plastic bag and pin it to the square end of your ironing board.

Then when you are ironing and find a snagged place in a garment, or a thin place, select the matching colored patch and —presto—it's all done. —Mrs. R.L. Brandt

Dear Heloise:

I use your nylon net as a patch for repairing torn or snagged lace.

I cut a strip or square a little larger than the place to be repaired, pin or baste the net in place on the wrong side of the garment, then work the lace back together with blind stitch, or just whip it.

When finished, the patch is not noticed. This is fine for lace on dresses, blouses, underwear, and where slip straps pull off lace edges.

I repaired a good blue lace dress with blue net and a pink one with pink net. —Mrs. W.G.W.

Dear Heloise:

Try putting clear fingernail polish on all those rhinestone buttons before sending your dress or blouse to the cleaners.

By doing this, all the stones will still be on when the garment is returned.

The dry cleaning never has loosened the fingernail polish for me, although it often had loosened the glue on the back of the stones and lost them. —Joan

Dear Heloise:

I have no trouble keeping nylon quilts on our twin beds since I have been using a cotton sheet blanket between the quilt and the wool blanket.

The nylon quitl adheres beautifully and is never on the floor. —Mrs. Ernest P. Wilkins

Dear Heloise:

Just found another use for Heloise net!

I have some rather elaborate plastic toothpicks I use for serving shrimp, olives, etc., and I always hate to discard them after a party.

This year I gathered them all up after our guests had gone and tied them in a square of nylon net.

I dunked them in real hot, soapy water with some disinfectant and rubbed them back and forth in the net, then rinsed them in clear, very hot water and laid them on a paper towel until they were dry.

They are now back in the box and ready for the next party.

How cheap can you get? —D. Perry

Honey, you're not cheap . . . just smart! —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I line the inside bottom of waste baskets with adhesive-backed paper, leaving a quarter of an inch turn-up to stick to the sides.

It keeps the inside of good waste baskets (like leather or painted ones) from being scratched, and makes them easy to clean and wipe out if anything sticky is thrown into them. — Jean Garnsey

Ladies, What's Your Color Key

Half a century back, Henry Ford made a classic comment on color choice. He said, "You can buy any color Ford you want, as long as it's black."

Nearly every purchase the modern woman makes involves a color choice, ranging from an automobile down to a small utensil or the paint for the exterior of her home.

In fact, to many women, this cornucopia of color is too overwhelming to manage. So many color decisions are required to harmonize and fraternize with hues and shades already in the home, is it any wonder that many women are inclined to hit clinkers again and again. For proof, open the average female closet.

Even the most fastidious homemaker has dresses she never wears, unfinished lipstick she won't use or a pillow, a painting, table linens, vases, shoes, or a bathing suit all tucked out of sight . . . and the majority of these are not being used because of mistakes in color.

Errors increase as the number of color choices increase and unfortunately, many poor choices aren't easily hidden. For example, the wrong color on the walls can be depressing or the wrong color upholstery repelling. Why psychologists say the wrong color can even ruin appetites.

Fortunately, however, this problem need no longer vex the busy homemaker. The inescapable rainbow has been harnessed by a classically simple plan called the Color Key. This system enables a woman to choose harmonizing colors that complement both her own coloring and existing decor. And Valspar Corporation has incorporated this system into a handy purse size guide book.

Based on the fact that every person is classified into one of two color spectrums, the Color Key Dictionary presents 300 swatches for use as an on-the-spot shopping guide.

Once a woman has chosen one of the two Color Keys her color worries are over. Every one of the 300 colors harmonize with every other one giving the homemaker practically an unlimited range.

Key Number One tends toward a blue cast as opposed to the yellow cast of Key Number Two.

Supposing a woman with Key Number One decided to paint her living room walls green, but wanted to use blues in her room furnishings. Color Key would solve her problem, for no matter what green she chose if she stuck to the blues in her category, they would be sure to harmonize with the green in every instance.

In the same way, she could select lampshades, picture frames, upholstery, tables, even flowers and objects d'art.

Color Key Number One contains 20 different shades of blue plus as many bluegreens and violet shades.

Color Key was developed by Robert C. Dorr, a California designer and veteran color authority, by applying well established color truths to everyday use. "You start," Dorr said, "By selecting the Color Key best suited to your own coloring and personality, an easy decision to anyone who sees the two keys together. Then you make all selections from the 300 alternatives in your Key."

Color Key decisions last a lifetime, according to Dorr. Not even graying hair or tanned skin change the basic harmony.

Youngsters' Shoes Take On Frisky, Light Look

For hop-scotch, rope jumping or party-going, a-foot this spring for little girls are gay, colorful lightweat leather shoes with a more-opened look than in the season past.

Most important from the juvenile point of view is the lighter look and the great variety of lively leather textures available.

Polished smooth and patent leathers, sturdy grained and brushed leathers, sporty waxed leathers and silky suedes will step out in grand style this spring.

Little misses will love the sassy strapped pumps with T-straps, double T's, slit or spanned with a wide sabot strap to spice them.

The love affair between subteen girls and sporty saddle oxfords or moccasins continues. New for '65 saddle oxfords combine dazzling white patent leather and colored patent inserts. Suede leather saddle shoes are tops, too.

The moccasin is most popular this spring in glove leather and a new waxed leather in natural tan or brassy tones. Pliant leather soles, somewhat extended beyond the moccasin's silk silhouette, frame the shoe even as they give wanted support to the foot.

For everyday wear, the leather oxford takes on a new image in combinations of two textures of leather. An appliqued effect or cutouts displays the second color or leather as highlight.

Party time shoes will surely thrill every little miss. Yellow, coral, bright red, as well as black and white shoes dazzle the scene in smooth leathers or gleaming patents, in trim sling sandals or shell pump styles.

Straps, small bows, neat appliques, cut - out designs or nail head trims help give little girls' shoes a very grown - up look.

Like the lassies, boys like to follow the fashion lead set by elder brothers and their dads. This spring, the fashion byword with fashion-conscious boys is — brogues.

In grained and smooth leather, brogues are top scorers with the young set and their leather oxfords and slip ons take on "broguey" styling, too. Ruggedly good-looking but light weight, these shoes are the perfect all-around wear footgear.

Perforations, pinking and wing tips add style to shoes for pre - teen young men in solid masculine brogues. Junior's oxfords and slip-ons repeat the same smart fashion detailing found in the true brogue.

The hand-sewn leather moccasin is as popular with the boys as with the girls. For dress-up, the young man will step out in sleek slip-ons of smooth or grained leather and sometimes in shoes that combine them both.

Trim fashion touches for swinging young fellows are visible side gores, monk strap detailing or side closings. Deep and medium browns, alpine tans, and of course, black, are favored colors.

For boy and girl, the shoe showings for spring indicate smart, high stepping.

Fashion Tips On This'n'That

Recent interviews of the nation's top beauty editors show that the popular new look in hair styles is short but not shingled, wavey, but not "marcelled". The most important new words, according to Lilt Reference Service, are fluffy, ruffled and casual curls.

Hair accessories will stage a big comeback in the next few months. New feminine hairstyles are ideal for bows, barrettes, tiaras and hair bands. Interesting new materials are being used for these such as leather-look plastics, braided and embroidered weaves and stretch knits for bands, according to the Lilt Reference Service.

Other hair fashion news includes shorter cuts, and an emphasis on well-brushed, "swinging" shiny hair which complements today's feminine picture.

Handbags have taken a cue are reminiscent of the twenties. Shoulder bags continue in popularity, while others are dangled on short straps or chains. Often bags have both, for versatility and double duty.

Spring Fashions for Men Stress Grooming

A wedding present that a couple in Germany received nearly 200 years ago might be just what you're looking for in a Spring pick-me-up.

The cologne, now a classic the world over, is called "4711" and has been popular with men in Europe since the late 18th century. It has been manufactured in Cologne, Germany, since 1792, when a Carthusian monk presented its secret formula to a young banker named Mulhens for a wedding present. This is not a usual men's cologne but a refreshant cologne. As its name implies, its major purpose is to invigorate and refresh. Men who have tried it delight in the cool, tingling feeling it produces on the skin.

Although it has been produced in its present form since 1792, the formula can be traced back to the days of the alchemists who accidentally discovered the refreshing qualities in this blend of ingredients while looking for the "elixir of life". Early-day travelers passing through the old city of Cologne, Germany, would purchase a bottle to refresh themselves on their trip.

And it is still used today. Men enjoy it on a business trip or after a hard game of golf. Pour a little on your hands and inhale it to get the benefit of its invigorating qualities.

Used lavishly after a bath or shower, it produces a clean, fresh feeling all over. Women also enjoy this quality of 4711 as much as men.

That's how Mr. Mulhen's wedding present can help to solve your Spring "tonic" needs.

Here's how to make a shoe rack to fit any closet. Cut two lengths of three-eight inch curtain rod, each the width of your closet. Get inside casing brackets from your hardware store. Install the first rod eight inches up from floor and a few inches out from the back wall. Place the second rod several inches lower and farther out from back wall. Hook heels of shoes over top rod and rest toes on lower one. This leaves room for cleaning underneath.

LATE SUMMER WEDDING PLANNED—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Martinez, formerly of Colorado Springs, now of Denver, announce the engagement of their daughter, Cecelia Jean, to William J. Pfalmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Pfalmer of 2029 N. Royer St. The wedding date has been set for Aug. 21, at St. Mary's Catholic Church. Both are graduates of St. Mary's High School. Miss Martinez is employed as a secretary in Denver. Mr. Pfalmer is a junior at Creighton University, Omaha, where he is majoring in Business Administration.

TO MARRY IN JUNE—Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Olson of Colorado Springs announced the engagement of their daughter, Mary Marguerite, to Norman James Lester at a family brunch held recently at the Lakewood Country Club. Mr. Lester is the son of Raymond J. Lester and the late Mrs. Lester. Miss Olson attended Colorado State University and was graduated from Denver University where her sorority was Pi Beta Phi. She is teaching in Denver. Mr. Lester was graduated from CSU where his fraternity was Alpha Tau Omega. He is an engineer with Ideal Cement Co., Denver. The wedding will take place June 17. Miss Olson is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Walker and the late Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Olson, Denver. Mr. Lester's grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Franson, and Mr. and Mrs. William Lester of Worland, Wyo.

Gift Time Coming Up? Some Ideas

To help alleviate the problem of what to give the men in your life at Easter, Father's Day or graduation, consider these timely suggestions together with tips on how to key your purchase to his personal tastes from the American Institute of Men's and Boy's Wear.

Neckties are a good old standby provided they're his favorite types. If he is a contemporary style dresser give him grenadines, satins and imaginative woven patterns. Traditionalists favor reps, foulards in paisley prints, neat all - over designs and colorful wool challis.

Both dress and sport shirts are always a welcome gift. Again cue them to the styles he wears and you can't go wrong.

Ascots, those neat silk, cotton or synthetic fiber scarfs worn under sport shirts are zooming in popularity.

To add a bit of dash to his business and casual outfits give him some handsome foulard pocket squares.

Lightweight sweaters such as V-neck pullovers, cardigans and sweater vests will serve him all through the spring and summer. There are attractive cashmeres, lambs wools, mohairs, shetlands and alpacas to choose from.

Many men never have enough cuff links, tie clasps, tie tacs and collar pis and if you wish to go all out, they are available with precious stones and precious metals. Add to these such jewelry as rings and watches.

And in the boutique department, there are such delights as decanters, shoe polishers, jewelry boxes and bar accessories.

All men appreciate fine leather goods. So please your man with a fine wallet, pocket secretary or belt.

With all these to choose from, gift giving need not be a problem after all.

Austin Bluffs Club Plans Spring Workshop

Spring Fashions for Men Stress Grooming

The reason men no longer possess the fashionable elegance they one displayed is most likely due to the influence of the female of our species, according to a well known men's wear designer.

He points out that Nature's plan calls for the male to be more resplendent in the various species of animals, but the human animal has reversed the scheme so that the male now shows up as a pretty dull bird.

The male is allowed a short period of flamboyance when he is adorned with cowboy and Indian suits, but once the colorful age is past, his mother "lowers the boom", the designer comments.

She informs him that he is not supposed to be preoccupied with clothes and thus he is made to feel that it is sissified to care about them. The logical outcome which follows is that he subdues his inherent instinct for bright apparel.

This designer suggests that men aim to reverse this handicap. He advocates that, " . . . men should throw off dull shackles". He encourages men to develop their own fashion education, then select and buy what they like and feel comfortable in.

Some of the fashion innovations introduced by said designer are the one - button suit and pleatless trousers among many others.

His forecast for the newest look in men's wear is the "open" look originating from wider-spread collars, elimination of top suit buttons, allowing more linen to show and wide ties.

Keep your daily supply of bread in a clean dry breadbox in a handy spot in the kitchen. Keep it, too, in its own wrapper. As you use it, refold the paper snugly over the open end so the slices fit close to one another. In really hot, humid weather take special care to see that the breadbox is well ventilated to keep the bread fresh and prevent it from molding.

Spring Fashions for Men Stress Grooming

A wedding present that a couple in Germany received nearly 200 years ago might be just what you're looking for in a Spring pick-me-up.

The cologne, now a classic the world over, is called "4711" and has been popular with men in Europe since the late 18th century. It has been manufactured in Cologne, Germany, since 1792, when a Carthusian monk presented its secret formula to a young banker named Mulhens for a wedding present. This is not a usual men's cologne but a refreshant cologne. As its name implies, its major purpose is to invigorate and refresh. Men who have tried it delight in the cool, tingling feeling it produces on the skin.

Although it has been produced in its present form since 1792, the formula can be traced back to the days of the alchemists who accidentally discovered the refreshing qualities in this blend of ingredients while looking for the "elixir of life". Early-day travelers passing through the old city of Cologne, Germany, would purchase a bottle to refresh themselves on their trip.

And it is still used today. Men enjoy it on a business trip or after a hard game of golf. Pour a little on your hands and inhale it to get the benefit of its invigorating qualities.

Used lavishly after a bath or shower, it produces a clean, fresh feeling all over. Women also enjoy this quality of 4711 as much as men.

That's how Mr. Mulhen's wedding present can help to solve your Spring "tonic" needs.

Here's how to make a shoe rack to fit any closet. Cut two lengths of three-eight inch curtain rod, each the width of your closet. Get inside casing brackets from your hardware store. Install the first rod eight inches up from floor and a few inches out from the back wall. Place the second rod several inches lower and farther out from back wall. Hook heels of shoes over top rod and rest toes on lower one. This leaves room for cleaning underneath.

Miss Martinez is employed as a secretary in Denver. Mr. Pfalmer is a junior at Creighton University, Omaha, where he is majoring in Business Administration.

TO MARRY IN JUNE—Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Olson of Colorado Springs announced the engagement of their daughter, Mary Marguerite, to Norman James Lester at a family brunch held recently at the Lakewood Country Club. Mr. Lester is the son of Raymond J. Lester and the late Mrs. Lester. Miss Olson attended Colorado State University and was graduated from Denver University where her sorority was Pi Beta Phi. She is teaching in Denver. Mr. Lester was graduated from CSU where his fraternity was Alpha Tau Omega. He is an engineer with Ideal Cement Co., Denver. The wedding will take place June 17. Miss Olson is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Walker and the late Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Olson, Denver. Mr. Lester's grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Franson, and Mr. and Mrs. William Lester of Worland, Wyo.

Gift Time Coming Up? Some Ideas

To help alleviate the problem of what to give the men in your life at Easter, Father's Day or graduation, consider these timely suggestions together with tips on how to key your purchase to his personal tastes from the American Institute of Men's and Boy's Wear.

Neckties are a good old standby provided they're his favorite types. If he is a contemporary style dresser give him grenadines, satins and imaginative woven patterns. Traditionalists favor reps, foulards in paisley prints, neat all - over designs and colorful wool challis.

Both dress and sport shirts are always a welcome gift. Again cue them to the styles he wears and you can't go wrong.

Ascots, those neat silk, cotton or synthetic fiber scarfs worn under sport shirts are zooming in popularity.

To add a bit of dash to his business and casual outfits give him some handsome foulard pocket squares.

Lightweight sweaters such as V-neck pullovers, cardigans and sweater vests will serve him all through the spring and summer. There are attractive cashmeres, lambs wools, mohairs, shetlands and alpacas to choose from.

Many men never have enough cuff links, tie clasps, tie tacs and collar pis and if you wish to go all out, they are available with precious stones and precious metals. Add to these such jewelry as rings and watches.

Put Some 'Spring' Into Their Room

How does your boy's or girl's day begin? With a sunny look in pretty curtains, bright spreads, etc.? Or, are their rooms for slumber only, suffering from a winter hangover? Just as their wardrobes change from dark woolens to light silks and cottons, their bedrooms will benefit by following the mood of the season.

Decorative and fresh-looking redos are easy to achieve with a new selection of ready-made ensembles by Morgan-Jones, which run the gamut from sophisticated tailored designs of textured fabrics for boys to the feminine look in a lovely printed toile motif for girls. The bedroom, of all rooms in the house, is dependent upon pretty fabrics.

This retreat calls for color, window flourishes and an attractively dressed bed. And with the decorative go-togethers (bedspreads, coverlets, dust ruffles, cafe curtains or full draperies) in this collection, you'll find the project of furnishing a bedroom is about as easy and foolproof as can be. And before you know it, you'll have a bedroom with a look of "done-by-a-decorator" elegance!

Since color sets a room's mood, it's important to decide on your color scheme before you start out on your shopping spree. If the room is limited in size, consider a monochromatic color scheme, in which the sensitive use of color will unite the entire room. If it's a large room, perhaps you will want the bright color excitement of a contrasting color scheme, which will afford a very special vitality and personality.

To be sure the bedspread you purchase is the correct size, take along measurements for both top and amount of overhang you want. This is particularly important for bedspreads, tailored with a box-like fit. Happily, the new collection comes in a variety of sizes to fit twin, double, queen and king-size beds. If you decide on a quilted bedspread, check on the fiberfill to make sure it is made of quality polyster.

TO BE HONORED ON ANNIVERSARY — Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Cornelius of 2442 LaFayette Rd. will be honored at an open house to be given at the Patty Jewett Golf Club from 2 until 5 p.m. Sunday, March 21, on the occasion of their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Hosting the party will be their three sons and their wives: Mr. and Mrs. Gerbing Cornelius of Lamar; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cornelius, LaJunta, and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Cornelius of Littleton. Assisting will be their seven grandchildren and two great grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius were married March 18, 1915 in a home ceremony performed by the Rev. Warner, in Rocky Ford. Both are natives of Rocky Ford where their sons were also born. They moved to Colorado Springs in 1951. Friends are cordially invited to attend the open house. Mrs. Cornelius' mother, Mrs. Emma Gerbing, 94, of Rocky Ford, plans to attend. Mr. Cornelius' only sister, Helen Vessels of Salinas, Calif. cannot be present. (Spaulding Boy Photo)

Keep Cool Head During Summer

During the hot summer months life rushes on in temperatures that would wilt many a lesser, more primitive animal. Men, especially, suffer from May to September in clothes that are hardly appropriate to the steaming concrete jungle of a city.

In an effort to cool off, men's hats are often the first item of clothing shed. Obviously the lesson learned by earlier inhabitants of tropical climes has been forgotten.

The Englishman's Calcutta pith helmet and the desert nomad's turban served an important purpose — they sheltered his head from the sun's direct rays and created an "air cooled" pocket of insulation.

Designers, though, of men's hats are taking "air conditioning" to heart in the newest summer hats. One manufacturer, Resistol, is coming out with a straw hat weighing only two and three - quarters ounces. Called the "Lightweight Macora", it is made of a soft braid fashioned in Ecuador from an unbreakable panama fiber called Macora. The braid is then sewn into a smart, featherlight hat in Resistol's workrooms at Garland, Texas — in a part of the country where men are well acquainted with the need for hot-weather gear.

Another of Resistol's hats is called the "Dude Rancher". This is the typical planter's hat with a rather wide three and three-quarters inch brim that has a distinctive roll to the front. The panama hat body is woven tight and even in Ecuador, then it is shaped and finished at the Texas factory. The "crowning touch" is a colorful band, hand-woven of native threads by the Guatemalan Indians.

For men who prefer a "hattier" hat, this is the answer, either in the city or for resort wear. And to verify its air-conditioning properties, just ask the man who owns one

You can finish cooking the top of a puffy omelet by placing the skillet in the oven or by covering the skillet and keeping it over the surface heat. If you use the oven method, make sure the frying pan has a heat-resistant handle.

TO BE HONORED ON ANNIVERSARY — Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Keep Cool Head During Summer

During the hot summer months life rushes on in temperatures that would wilt many a lesser, more primitive animal. Men, especially, suffer from May to September in clothes that are hardly appropriate to the steaming concrete jungle of a city.

In an effort to cool off, men's hats are often the first item of clothing shed. Obviously the lesson learned by earlier inhabitants of tropical climes has been forgotten.

The Englishman's Calcutta pith helmet and the desert nomad's turban served an important purpose — they sheltered his head from the sun's direct rays and created an "air cooled" pocket of insulation.

Designers, though, of men's hats are taking "air conditioning" to heart in the newest summer hats. One manufacturer, Resistol, is coming out with a straw hat weighing only two and three - quarters ounces. Called the "Lightweight Macora", it is made of a soft braid fashioned in Ecuador from an unbreakable panama fiber called Macora. The braid is then sewn into a smart, featherlight hat in Resistol's workrooms at Garland, Texas — in a part of the country where men are well acquainted with the need for hot-weather gear.

Another of Resistol's hats is called the "Dude Rancher". This is the typical planter's hat with a rather wide three and three-quarters inch brim that has a distinctive roll to the front. The panama hat body is woven tight and even in Ecuador, then it is shaped and finished at the Texas factory. The "crowning touch" is a colorful band, hand-woven of native threads by the Guatemalan Indians.

For men who prefer a "hattier" hat, this is the answer, either in the city or for resort wear. And to verify its air-conditioning properties, just ask the man who owns one

Paint is Miracle Worker

By POLLY CRAMER
Newspaper Enterprise Columnist

House cleaning time is often paint-up, fix-up, perk-up time, too. When curtains are down and the furniture is moved out, those streaked walls and chipped woodwork are clear reminders that more than washing is needed.

Readers of my daily column have suggested many easy ways to make your home fresh and crisp again.

Put several soft paper towels by the telephone before starting a painting project. If it's necessary to answer the phone while you're working, pick up a towel and then the phone.

When painting closet or bookcase shelves, drive two narrow nails into each end of the shelf, letting them extend an inch or so. Then paint both sides at one time and prop the shelves against the wall to dry.

Use "hot" vinegar on glass to remove dabs of paint. This is much quicker than scraping with a razor—much safer, too.

An old automobile license plate serves as an efficient shield for wall-to-wall carpeting when painting baseboards. Bend the plate along its length to form a slight curve. Hold the plate firmly over the edge of the carpet next to the baseboard and proceed to paint. Wipe excess paint spatter off the plate each time it is moved.

The tedious task of painting louvered shutters can be simplified by wearing rubber gloves and using a sponge the size of a bar of soap to cover all the tiny, hard-to-get-at surfaces. Apply as if you're polishing shoes. This prevents dripping and produces a smooth finish.

Indoor black wrought iron stair banusters and railing take on a new look when painted with blackboard slating. The slating will not chip and is fast-drying.

To avoid spattering the bathtub when painting the bathroom, run some water in the tub and lay open newspapers in the water, thoroughly soaking them. Place the wet sheets on the bottom and along the sides of the tub, covering all the surfaces. This method eliminates drop cloths and masking tape. When finished, roll up papers and throw away.

A soft-bristled toothbrush is much easier than a regular paint brush for painting window moldings around the panes — no messy paint to be scraped from the glass.

When removing wall pictures, unsightly nail holes and rough plaster often appear. The small paint color chips on paint charts provide an excellent cover-up when pasted over the holes. Use the chip that matches painted wall.

Cooking chicken wings? If you like, you can fry the "drumstick" half of the wings and use the remaining chicken for stock.

Exciting New Colors and Design in Durable Leather

For the American family, romance begins at home this spring with the new leather furnishings. They are so soft in texture, so light in color and so easy to care for, you're bound to fall in love with them.

With leading interior designers turning their attention to the new leathers for coordinated room interiors, home-makers can now find an unusually wide selection of leather upholstered furniture. And for the first time, a super palette of hundreds of colors are available offering luxurious leather furniture for every taste.

For example, the young homemaker with a contemporary decor in mind will find such excitingly new colors as hot pinks, cool turquoise or grassy greens that set off handsome hand rubbed wood frames. Tradition-minded? There are new jet blacks in mirror polished finishes, soft antiqued finishes or delicately etched leathers that make a wingback chair the center of a tastefully refurnished living room or den.

The marriage of a modern chemistry with the ancient art of leather tanning has produced brand new leathers that snap back to their original shape when you raise from your chair. New finishes help leather shed water like a duck . . . in fact a damp cloth is the only cleaning tool you need when Junior spills something on your new leather dining chairs.

If your problem is decorating his room . . . relax, let leather do it. There's nothing that goes together better than a man and leather. In den or study, or even just his favorite corner of the living room, a traditional leather armchair keeps him happy and close to the fireside. If you add a matching leather ottoman, it's double delight.

Need an odd chair? How about a wide armless chair covered in a colorful shade with tufting where the back becomes the seat? Or a leather sling chair? One of the leather's positive advantages is its ability to be draped, tucked, quilted or otherwise worked into designs . . . all without surrendering its essential character.

A new twist on an old favorite is the cocktail, end or lamp table inlaid with leather in geometric shapes. In place of the traditional green, black or brown, these table tops now glow in bright shades of coral, blue and gold or reflect subtle tones such as ivory, bronze-green and taupe. You can also add a note of distinction to your living room or den with a tall columnar or jug-shaped lamp of rich leather.

No matter how leather is used in your home . . . whether for one panel or a group of pieces . . . you'll find the new upholstery leathers resistant to scuffs and scratches and as easily cleaned as a wipe with a soapy cloth. And the longer you own it, the finer the patina it takes on . . . and the deeper your love grows for it.

Chapter Y, PEO, will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the home of Mrs. R. J. Schweiger, 305 Maplewood. Mrs. William H. Steele will assist the hostess.

Mrs. Grant Winne will present the program.

Chapter EL, PEO, will meet at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. John Saxon, quarters 4518 H. at the Air Force Academy.

Dear Abby—

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Learning Facts of Life

DEAR ABBY: Country girls should not be allowed to come to the city until they have had a course in The Facts of Life. I mean the traps, temptations and tricks of married men and that sort of thing.) Isn't there some way to make a course like this compulsory for all the senior girls in the country schools?

—WORRIED FOR THE COUNTRY GIRLS

DEAR WORRIED: Spare yourself further worry. Most "country schools" are on a par with city schools. Besides, city boys write that they learn the facts of life from country girls.

DEAR ABBY: Last week my brother found a boy's sweater on his way home from school. The name of the boy was on it, so my brother took the sweater to school and put it in his locker because he was almost late to class and didn't have time to find the boy. He saw the boy's pal and told him that he had the sweater in his locker. Right in the middle of class, the vice principal came in and got my brother and made him get the sweater. Then he gave him a long lecture on "stealing." My brother told him how it happened, but the vice principal gave him three days' detention anyway.

Later that day my brother was called into the principal's fice and they asked him a lot of questions about other stolen property. He didn't even know what they were talking about. When he told my mother about all this she came to school and got the detention cancelled. Now my brother says that as long as he lives he will never try to help anybody because you only stick our neck out and it's not appreciated. You make things so plain about right and wrong, Abby. I think my brother is wrong, but I can't explain. Can you?

—YOUNGER BROTHER

DEAR YOUNGER: Tell your brother that the vice principal may have been misinformed about how the sweater happened to be in your brother's possession. And he was disciplined because of the misunderstanding. One who goes through life trusting no one is rarely trusted himself. And that, my young friend, is a very miserable way to live.

DEAR ABBY: How does one tell a 60-year-old sister that stretch pants are not for her? My sister wears a size 18 or 20 and she has a protruding stomach, too. Her children and grandchildren all laugh behind her back, but they won't tell her to her face how unbecoming those stretch pants are on her. Why do clothing manufacturers make stretch pants in such large sizes? —NOT LAUGHING

DEAR NOT: Manufacturers will make anything they think will sell. Tell your sister that she's stretching things too far, and maybe she'll snap back to something more appropriate for the shape she's in.

DEAR ABBY: Apropos your column presenting complaints from wives, daughters, in-laws and others who are obliged to listen to oft-repeated stories told by some of us oldsters, I should like to come to the defense of some of my fellow raconteurs with the following:

During the delivery of a prepared speech, a British humorist once said, "Don't stop me if you have heard this one. There is no reason why a joke should not be enjoyed more than once. Imagine how little good music there would be in the world if, for example, a conductor refused to play Beethoven's Fifth Symphony on the grounds that his audience had heard it before." Sincerely, —BURKE W. TAYLOR

Sconces Shed New Light!

A lighting device that goes as far back as the cave dweller is the wall fixture.

Out of vogue in decorating schemes for some time now, wall fixtures, particularly sconces or ornamental candle-holders, are once again enjoying acceptaince.

Of the ones made in Italy, the designs are inspired from numerous sources in addition to those inherently Italian. Sconces are historically meant to hold candles, but most nowadays are ready for electrical use.

Some are manufactured with channels for wiring and space for sockets permitting an option in lighting methods. Being 3-dimensional, they give a special allure — lift as well as light to walls.

The varied materials employed in sconces provide appealing textural contrasts. The range of substances used is as extensive as the design selection. Wood, gilded or antiqued, is a fashion favorite today. Wrought iron, brass, tole and gilded bronze are most commonly used metals. Majolica, faience and other ceramic forms are popular as well as the classic crystal.

Italy has been the chief source of small handcrafted items such as sconces since time immemorial. Medieval and Renaissance sconces made in Italy are still seen in antique shops as well as museums.

Exciting New Colors and Design in Durable Leather

For the American family, romance begins at home this spring with the new leather furnishings. They are so soft in texture, so light in color and so easy to care for, you're bound to fall in love with them.

With leading interior designers turning their attention to the new leathers for coordinated room interiors, home-makers can now find an unusually wide selection of leather upholstered furniture. And for the first time, a super palette of hundreds of colors are available offering luxurious leather furniture for every taste.

For example, the young homemaker with a contemporary decor in mind will find such excitingly new colors as hot pinks, cool turquoise or grassy greens that set off handsome hand rubbed wood frames. Tradition-minded? There are new jet blacks in mirror polished finishes, soft antiqued finishes or delicately etched leathers that make a wingback chair the center of a tastefully refurnished living room or den.

The marriage of a modern chemistry with the ancient art of leather tanning has produced brand new leathers that snap back to their original shape when you raise from your chair. New finishes help leather shed water like a duck . . . in fact a damp cloth is the only cleaning tool you need when Junior spills something on your new leather dining chairs.

If your problem is decorating his room . . . relax, let leather do it. There's nothing that goes together better than a man and leather. In den or study, or even just his favorite corner of the living room, a traditional leather armchair keeps him happy and close to the fireside. If you add a matching leather ottoman, it's double delight.

Need an odd chair? How about a wide armless chair covered in a colorful shade with tufting where the back becomes the seat? Or a leather sling chair? One of the leather's positive advantages is its ability to be draped, tucked, quilted or otherwise worked into designs . . . all without surrendering its essential character.

A new twist on an old favorite is the cocktail, end or lamp table inlaid with leather in geometric shapes. In place of the traditional green, black or brown, these table tops now glow in bright shades of coral, blue and gold or reflect subtle tones such as ivory, bronze-green and taupe. You can also add a note of distinction to your living room or den with a tall columnar or jug-shaped lamp of rich leather.

No matter how leather is used in your home . . . whether for one panel or a group of pieces . . . you'll find the new upholstery leathers resistant to scuffs and scratches and as easily cleaned as a wipe with a soapy cloth. And the longer you own it, the finer the patina it takes on . . . and the deeper your love grows for it.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Learning Facts of Life

DEAR ABBY: Country girls should not be allowed to come to the city until they have had a course in The Facts of Life. I mean the traps, temptations and tricks of married men and that sort of thing.) Isn't there some way to make a course like this compulsory for all the senior girls in the country schools?

—WORRIED FOR THE COUNTRY GIRLS

DEAR WORRIED: Spare yourself further worry. Most "country schools" are on a par with city schools. Besides, city boys write that they learn the facts of life from country girls.

DEAR ABBY: Last week my brother found a boy's sweater on his way home from school. The name of the boy was on it, so my brother took the sweater to school and put it in his locker because he was almost late to class and didn't have time to find the boy. He saw the boy's pal and told him that he had the sweater in his locker. Right in the middle of class, the vice principal came in and got my brother and made him get the sweater. Then he gave him a long lecture on "stealing." My brother told him how it happened, but the vice principal gave him three days' detention anyway.

Later that day my brother was called into the principal's fice and they asked him a lot of questions about other stolen property. He didn't even know what they were talking about. When he told my mother about all this she came to school and got the detention cancelled. Now my brother says that as long as he lives he will never try to help anybody because you only stick our neck out and it's not appreciated. You make things so plain about right and wrong, Abby. I think my brother is wrong, but I can't explain. Can you?

—YOUNGER BROTHER

DEAR YOUNGER: Tell your brother that the vice principal may have been misinformed about how the sweater happened to be in your brother's possession. And he was disciplined because of the misunderstanding. One who goes through life trusting no one is rarely trusted himself. And that, my young friend, is a very miserable way to live.

DEAR ABBY: How does one tell a 60-year-old sister that stretch pants are not for her? My sister wears a size 18 or 20 and she has a protruding stomach, too. Her children and grandchildren all laugh behind her back, but they won't tell her to her face how unbecoming those stretch pants are on her. Why do clothing manufacturers make stretch pants in such large sizes? —NOT LAUGHING

DEAR NOT: Manufacturers will make anything they think will sell. Tell your sister that she's stretching things too far, and maybe she'll snap back to something more appropriate for the shape she's in.

DEAR ABBY: Apropos your column presenting complaints from wives, daughters, in-laws and others who are obliged to listen to oft-repeated stories told by some of us oldsters, I should like to come to the defense of some of my fellow raconteurs with the following:

During the delivery of a prepared speech, a British humorist once said, "Don't stop me if you have heard this one. There is no reason why a joke should not be enjoyed more than once. Imagine how little good music there would be in the world if, for example, a conductor refused to play Beethoven's Fifth Symphony on the grounds that his audience had heard it before." Sincerely, —BURKE W. TAYLOR

Sconces Shed New Light!

A lighting device that goes as far back as the cave dweller is the wall fixture.

Out of vogue in decorating schemes for some time now, wall fixtures, particularly sconces or ornamental candle-holders, are once again enjoying acceptaince.

Of the ones made in Italy, the designs are inspired from numerous sources in addition to those inherently Italian. Sconces are historically meant to hold candles, but most nowadays are ready for electrical use.

Some are manufactured with channels for wiring and space for sockets permitting an option in lighting methods. Being 3-dimensional, they give a special allure — lift as well as light to walls.

The varied materials employed in sconces provide appealing textural contrasts. The range of substances used is as extensive as the design selection. Wood, gilded or antiqued, is a fashion favorite today. Wrought iron, brass, tole and gilded bronze are most commonly used metals. Majolica, faience and other ceramic forms are popular as well as the classic crystal.

Italy has been the chief source of small handcrafted items such as sconces since time immemorial. Medieval and Renaissance sconces made in Italy are still seen in antique shops as well as museums.

Flowers Add Fresh Note to Spring Styles

As far back as ancient Greece, flowers have been worn to accent ladies' fashions. The Greeks adorned themselves with garlands, and women ever since have been wise to the romantic effect of flowers. Empress Josephine of France selected the rose as her official flower, and bouquets played a courtly role in the reign of Louis XIV.

In spring of 1965, flowers are still delighting viewers and smart gals are still wearing them to compliment their fashions. This season's new styles lend themselves especially well to floral accessories; their look is young and vital, their effect like a breath of fresh air.

A round collar looks even more charming, for instance, when pinned with miniature carnations in a soft spring shade. And high-standing pockets on suits or blazers take on new freshness with a trio of yellow daisies tucked inside.

Practically any of the new styles can be shown to better advantage with spring bossoms.

And, if you're looking for a springtime gift, a tiny nose-gay or corsage is always welcome.

Wilhelm Wolfgang Goethe was born Aug. 28, 1749.

Shorter Hair Styles Long On Fashion

Short, sleek and curbed is the forecast for spring hairdos.

Hairstyles follow fashion, and the designers discovered that the little head coif is most becoming with their new creations. The neat, shaped hairdo complements the total look of easy elegance.

Gone are the long, flyaway, untamed tresses. They are unsuitable today for even casual clothes because these fashions too, strike a note of distinction, more appropriate with a chic, well-managed coif.

The short, sleek hairstyles are carved and sculptured, curving at sides and back with ends just folded under. For these smooth coifs the hair needs body to hold the line and to give a set real staying power.

Toni Hair-Styling Center recommends Smooth 'n Sleek, the uncurly permanent created for smooth hairstyles; it gives just body and curves to hair, but no curls. The kit is complete with jumbo size curlers and a special waving lotion.

Other short hairdos for '65 feature swirls, wispy fringe bangs, soft curls over the ears. A cluster of petaled curls may crown an otherwise all straight-looking cap coif. One very feminine new hairdo combines big, loopy curls all over the head with straight bangs. This combination part smooth and part curly hairstyle is exciting and very new. It can easily be achieved by having a home wave for curl on those sections of the hair you want either curled or fluffy.

Today there's a home permanent available for every fashion look from sculptured lines to real, rounded curls. Read the package labels carefully to be sure you're choosing the one that's right for the effect you want: A Smooth 'n Sleek for body and curve or a standard Toni for both body and curl.

To enjoy a gay, new hairdo this spring '65 start with a trim to a short or medium length. You'll be in the swing!

Trends — Are caps coming back? The swing to caps is being heightened due to the smart headpieces now being offered. There's a wide variety of seersucker caps, cool and comfortable and others, in linen and denim, in a good range of pastels and deeper shades. India Madras, in its light and brighter colorings, heads for even greater acceptance.

ORIGINALS FROM ITALY—Just arrived! Posh designer wool knits for spring, the fabulous exclusives made expressly for Fashion Bar. Two-piecers and three-piecers with hand embroideries and hand finishing. Priced lightly as possible to bring you the fashion buys you want for Easter and spring. Some knit suits have silk blouses, silk linings! Solids, plaids, stripes, and iridescents in sizes 8 to 18, in white pink, blue, yellow, beige, gold, cream, grey and many more.

Lightweight Champ Shoes

At ease, men. It's goodbye to foot care and forward march into a relaxing spring with new lightweight leather casuals and dress shoes.

Today's men's apparel story is one of the lightness in weight, in color and in styling. Following this lead, men's footwear has a wonderfully soft and easy-going look, whether in smooth, waxy, grained or brushed leathers.

Leading style favorites in the new trend, reports Shoe Fashion Service, are the leather moccasin and its many variations; leather boots, slipons and kilties. For dressier occasions leather brogues, oxfords and dress slipons will be in evidence.

Your feet are care free in these easy walking spring styles. This buoyant feeling springs not only from the shoes' fashionably relaxed lines, but from the supple leather uppers, the flexible leather soles and the natural porosity of the leather.

The trim, up-dated version of the leather brogue continues to hold its own as a favorite dress shoe. While medium weight leather soles, fine gains and slimmer lines generally have lightened the brogue's heft and appearance, traditional perforations, pinking effects and five and six eyelet ties carry through its classic masculine character.

Another dress favorite is the leather oxford, with a host of styling features to make for individuality. Moccasin toes with closed seam effects, wing tips and hand stitching details are some of the fashion touches bringing a look of variety to the oxford.

Continuing in popularity this spring are polished leather dress slipons with plain toes or wing tips. Many feature hidden side gores for a smoother look and closer fit.

You'll be at leisure in leather when your off hours find you unwinding in a pair of new spring casuals. Soft as a spaniel's ear are the hand sewn moccasins in waxy natural leathers or glossy smooth leathers, set on lightweight leather soles.

Spring's leather slipons styled for casual wear, have sleek simple lines. Occasional strap treatments are seen, such as the slotted strap or the half strap and buckle. Leather mocs and slipons are fashion right with males of all ages, from grade schoolers to grandpas.

Tough, but oh so gentle, are brushed leather casuals. Particularly good looking in ties and chukkas, brushed leather stands up to punishing wear without losing its smart appearance.

Color interest this spring centers on the brown family. Deep brown, cordovan, mulberry and of course, black are seen most frequently for dress wear.

Spring Fashion Theme: Soft Lines, For Worlds of Feminine Flattery

There's a slightly prim and proper feeling to new spring fashions, and it's underscored by the Victorian and Edwardian mood of many of the latest accessories. It's all part of the feminine movement in fashion look for spring aided and abetted by such touches as trapunto detailing on coats, ruffles and bows on shirts, soft sectioning and shirring on dresses and the soft, drapery look of many new hats.

If fashion for Spring 1965 could be summed up in one word (which it couldn't) the best word to select would be soft.

To illustrate the variety to be found on the spring scene, coats are both shaped and skinny for spring — take your choice! Many of them feature hidden closings, new beltings and deep armholes. Wrap coats are an important new look, while above - the - ankle coats are making a spectacular appearance.

Suit styles also vary, from the dirndl to the lean silhouette. Special interest is focused on the big little suit with its flare skirt, precision-shaped jacket and soft, ruffled shirt, with the 3-piece suit continuing to gain attention. Skirts are often fuller or gathered on a bias band, and topped with longer or hip-tipping jackets. Pantsuits echo the excitement over pants in a refined way by camouflaging them with a neat overskirt, while the Mary Poppins suit typifies spring's prim and proper look at its most becoming.

Dresses for spring favor swinging pleats and go to extremes with either low belting or high skimmer styling. Enveloping collars and bulky loose jackets top many of the new designs and the popularity of a A-mod style reflects the Victorian influence on spring fashions in general. New too, is the cape dress . . . another reflection of the same mood.

Spring hats are prettier than ever and more feminine than ever! The soft look is seen everywhere in turbans, or little hats with ostrich sweeps and leather swaggers. But the "small head" look prevails, often featuring back interest such as bows or drapes. Many hats have a tied-up kerchief effect and softer fabrics such as velvet, wool jersey or silk have come into their own.

In sportswear, everyone's jumping into stretch jumpsuits and of course, the big news is the pantskirt. Culottes have been citified and are seen not only in skirt form but also as culotte-dresses. Here the look is still snappy and young, mode and yeye, bringing the new English chic into prominence. Sometimes copying the English school boy, this look features delicate little detailings, miniature prints and foulards, longer jackets and swinging skirts, plus crisp white collars.

The new units for spring are featuring distinctive patterns and interesting textures: ridges, lacy looks, airy and open weaves, "smoke rings," crinkly stripes, accented diagonals, herringbones, and chenilles. Bootleggers, or up-to-the-knee stockings that are cuffed closed with shoe laces, provide new excitement, along with stretch nylons. knee garter tops . . . all are designed to make a woman feel more like a woman and to make a man notice!

No sportswear story would be complete without sweaters and this season the variety is greater than ever. There are skinny ribbed styles that hug the body . . . sissified sweaters with crocheted lace edging . . . long, like T-shirts . . . styles that feature enormous zippers . . . and the long-waisted look everywhere!

For evening, elegant crepes and delicately patterned cotton laces set the stage for both little dresses and the important costume look and the disco dress is still going strong, whether shaped simply, like a slip or flirtatiously ruffled.

The new spring look doesn't stop there . . . it goes all the way to milady's toes with shoes that feature soft and fragile silk straps for stretch sides and backs of elasticized peau de soie. And the little T-bone cut shoe is busy making its mark everywhere.

In fabrics, the trend is toward brush stroke patterns, fine-line piques, dashing diagonals and small-scale prints. Good news for travelers is the emergence of new linen-look fabrics that keep their fresh appearance from morning until night, and travel with ease.

Toni Hair-Styling Center recommends Smooth 'n Sleek, the uncurly permanent created for smooth hairstyles; it gives just body and curves to hair, but no curls. The kit is complete with jumbo size curlers and a special waving lotion.

Other short hairdos for '65 feature swirls, wispy fringe bangs, soft curls over the ears. A cluster of petaled curls may crown an otherwise all straight-looking cap coif. One very feminine new hairdo combines big, loopy curls all over the head with straight bangs. This combination part smooth and part curly hairstyle is exciting and very new. It can easily be achieved by having a home wave for curl on those sections of the hair you want either curled or fluffy.

Today there's a home permanent available for every fashion look from sculptured lines to real, rounded curls. Read the package labels carefully to be sure you're choosing the one that's right for the effect you want: A Smooth 'n Sleek for body and curve or a standard Toni for both body and curl.

To enjoy a gay, new hairdo this spring '65 start with a trim to a short or medium length. You'll be in the swing!

Trends — Are caps coming back? The swing to caps is being heightened due to the smart headpieces now being offered. There's a wide variety of seersucker caps, cool and comfortable and others, in linen and denim, in a good range of pastels and deeper shades. India Madras, in its light and brighter colorings, heads for even greater acceptance.

ORIGINALS FROM ITALY—Just arrived! Posh designer wool knits for spring, the fabulous exclusives made expressly for Fashion Bar. Two-piecers and three-piecers with hand embroideries and hand finishing. Priced lightly as possible to bring you the fashion buys you want for Easter and spring. Some knit suits have silk blouses, silk linings! Solids, plaids, stripes, and iridescents in sizes 8 to 18, in white pink, blue, yellow, beige, gold, cream, grey and many more.

Lightweight Champ Shoes

At ease, men. It's goodbye to foot care and forward march into a relaxing spring with new lightweight leather casuals and dress shoes.

Today's men's apparel story is one of the lightness in weight, in color and in styling. Following this lead, men's footwear has a wonderfully soft and easy-going look, whether in smooth, waxy, grained or brushed leathers.

Leading style favorites in the new trend, reports Shoe Fashion Service, are the leather moccasin and its many variations; leather boots, slipons and kilties. For dressier occasions, leather brogues, oxfords and dress slipons will be in evidence.

Your feet are care free in these easy walking spring styles. This buoyant feeling springs not only from the shoes' fashionably relaxed lines, but from the supple leather uppers, the flexible leather soles and the natural porosity of the leather.

The trim, up-dated version of the leather brogue continues to hold its own as a favorite dress shoe. While medium weight leather soles, fine gains and slimmer lines generally have lightened the brogue's heft and appearance, traditional perforations, pinking effects and five and six eyelet ties carry through its classic masculine character.

Another dress favorite is the leather oxford, with a host of styling features to make for individuality. Moccasin toes with closed seam effects, wing tips and hand stitching details are some of the fashion touches bringing a look of variety to the oxford.

Continuing in popularity this spring are polished leather dress slipons with plain toes or wing tips. Many feature hidden side gores for a smoother look and closer fit.

You'll be at leisure in leather when your off hours find you unwinding in a pair of new spring casuals. Soft as a spaniel's ear are the hand sewn moccasins in waxy natural leathers or glossy smooth leathers, set on lightweight leather soles.

Spring's leather slipons styled for casual wear, have sleek simple lines. Occasional strap treatments are seen, such as the slotted strap or the half strap and buckle. Leather mocs and slipons are fashion right with males of all ages, from grade schoolers to grandpas.

Tough, but oh so gentle, are brushed leather casuals. Particularly good looking in ties and chukkas, brushed leather stands up to punishing wear without losing its smart appearance.

Color interest this spring centers on the brown family. Deep brown, cordovan, mulberry and of course, black are seen most frequently for dress wear.

Spring Fashion Theme: Soft Lines, For Worlds of Feminine Flattery

There's a slightly prim and proper feeling to new spring fashions, and it's underscored by the Victorian and Edwardian mood of many of the latest accessories. It's all part of the feminine movement in fashion look for spring aided and abetted by such touches as trapunto detailing on coats, ruffles and bows on shirts, soft sectioning and shirring on dresses and the soft, drapery look of many new hats.

If fashion for Spring 1965 could be summed up in one word (which it couldn't) the best word to select would be soft.

To illustrate the variety to be found on the spring scene, coats are both shaped and skinny for spring — take your choice! Many of them feature hidden closings, new beltings and deep armholes. Wrap coats are an important new look, while above - the - ankle coats are making a spectacular appearance.

Suit styles also vary, from the dirndl to the lean silhouette. Special interest is focused on the big little suit with its flare skirt, precision-shaped jacket and soft, ruffled shirt, with the 3-piece suit continuing to gain attention. Skirts are often fuller or gathered on a bias band, and topped with longer or hip-tipping jackets. Pantsuits echo the excitement over pants in a refined way by camouflaging them with a neat overskirt, while the Mary Poppins suit typifies spring's prim and proper look at its most becoming.

Dresses for spring favor swinging pleats and go to extremes with either low belting or high skimmer styling. Enveloping collars and bulky loose jackets top many of the new designs and the popularity of a A-mod style reflects the Victorian influence on spring fashions in general. New too, is the cape dress . . . another reflection of the same mood.

Spring hats are prettier than ever and more feminine than ever! The soft look is seen everywhere in turbans, or little hats with ostrich sweeps and leather swaggers. But the "small head" look prevails, often featuring back interest such as bows or drapes. Many hats have a tied-up kerchief effect and softer fabrics such as velvet, wool jersey or silk have come into their own.

In sportswear, everyone's jumping into stretch jumpsuits and of course, the big news is the pantskirt. Culottes have been citified and are seen not only in skirt form but also as culotte-dresses. Here the look is still snappy and young, mode and yeye, bringing the new English chic into prominence. Sometimes copying the English school boy, this look features delicate little detailings, miniature prints and foulards, longer jackets and swinging skirts, plus crisp white collars.

The new units for spring are featuring distinctive patterns and interesting textures: ridges, lacy looks, airy and open weaves, "smoke rings," crinkly stripes, accented diagonals, herringbones, and chenilles. Bootleggers, or up-to-the-knee stockings that are cuffed closed with shoe laces, provide new excitement, along with stretch nylons. knee garter tops . . . all are designed to make a woman feel more like a woman and to make a man notice!

No sportswear story would be complete without sweaters and this season the variety is greater than ever. There are skinny ribbed styles that hug the body . . . sissified sweaters with crocheted lace edging . . . long, like T-shirts . . . styles that feature enormous zippers . . . and the long-waisted look everywhere!

For evening, elegant crepes and delicately patterned cotton laces set the stage for both little dresses and the important costume look and the disco dress is still going strong, whether shaped simply, like a slip or flirtatiously ruffled.

The new spring look doesn't stop there . . . it goes all the way to milady's toes with shoes that feature soft and fragile silk straps for stretch sides and backs of elasticized peau de soie. And the little T-bone cut shoe is busy making its mark everywhere.

In fabrics, the trend is toward brush stroke patterns, fine-line piques, dashing diagonals and small-scale prints. Good news for travelers is the emergence of new linen-look fabrics that keep their fresh appearance from morning until night, and travel with ease.

Girls, Look Party-Perfect Every Day!

If you've been invited to a big party this Spring holiday season, getting ready for it can be half the fun because the fashion forecasts are all fresh, young and swinging.

Organize your plans for what to wear a few weeks in advance, so there'll be time for alterations, mending and shopping details. Decide on a dress around it, coordinating your accessories.

About your dress; experiment with the whipped-creamy pastel shades, skinny disco dresses, wedding cake - tiered ones or some with ruffled accents. If you think a long gown may be appropriate, try that, too.

Then, take an honest, hard look in the shop mirror and let fashion guide — not mislead — you to select the dress that reflects your most flattering image. A word of caution about its hemline: the short, short skirts look best on girls with long, slender legs —so take it from there.

While you're still in the launching stages, be careful that you don't get so carried away with the project of dressing-up that you neglect your complexion's future appearance. Plan on having your skin glow along with what you're wearing. The best way is to start putting your skin in the right mood about two weeks in advance. This would include proper cleansing, a sensible diet and plenty of rest. Put yourself on schedule — then follow it faithfully.

Thorough skin cleansing is essential, otherwise pore openings may get clogged and if they become infected, blemishes can result. Wash your face at least twice a day. A greaseless gel cleanses away excess oils and cleans pore openings — the breeding ground for "trouble spots". At the same time its anti-bacterial action aids in reducing surface bacteria. For extra help between cleansings, wear a thin film to medicate and protect your skin.

White shadow is used on the eyelids, brown in the fold of the eye, with eyelashes cut in half and placed at the outer corner for emphasis. Blue pencil is used above the lower lashes to whiten the eyes and the brow is penciled in very naturally with gray brown liner. Lipstick is a soft hue, with just a hint of sharpness. The result is a wide-eyed, glowing look of innocence —perfect for the prim and proper new spring fashions.

Alumnae Will Have Program On New Fabrics

Stereo Units In Tune With Decor

The sound of music creates a new dimension a fourth dimension in today's interiors.

With 35 million amateur musicians making their own music and millions more enjoying radio, stereo and hi-fi, the modern home assumes the character of a series of miniature concert halls. Engineers of Wurlitzer, known for pianos, organs and stereo radio-phonos, provide some basic tips on making them compatible to the eye as well as the ear.

Sound plenums may be formed on long, long walls by the use of built-in bookcases or free-standing shelving. When flanking a piano, organ or stereo set, the sides of the shelving tend to concentrate sound for optimum projection, much as the short wall does.

Books, objects of art or other smaller instruments displayed on the shelves enhance the decor. Enclosed shelving may be used to store additional records or tape records on which the family may capture its own home-made music.

Quality cabinet backs for stereos and decorator backs for pianos and organs provide new placement opportunities for these instruments in long narrow rooms. Decorator backs for pianos and organs usually are made of loosely woven cloth in designs and colors that blend with other fabrics in the room.

Engineers of Wurlitzer, makers of pianos, organs and radio-stereo phonographs are happy to provide basic tips on making the most of music for the eye as well as the ear. Variety of music settings range from alcove sound plenums to decorator backs on piano dividers.

Placing the end of the instrument against the wall conserves precious wall space, provides an attractive setting and optimum tone projection.

Finally, Wurlitzer engineers suggest that you not heavily drape and carpet the music center. Heavy use of material and overstuffed furniture mute music quality. Area rugs, caneback chairs and similar arrangements that provide some hard surfaces for sound reflection provide the best in listening enjoyment.

LOOK OF AMERICANA — There's an exciting new look in town this spring! Fresh, frisky, fashionable Americanas —brand-new fashion shoes—have just been introduced at Whetstone Shoes, 123 N. Tejon St. Every type of shoe for the busy life of today's active young woman is included in this new line. Pictured is Americana's Trotter, and the collection includes little heels, high heels, and low walking heels, in a wide price range. See the new Americanas at Whetstone Shoes!

Do's and Don'ts Of Dress for Success Look

The beatnik look is gone, and good riddance. Even a poetic genius can ill afford to look sloppy, this spring.

Jonathan Swift once remarked that he had a friend who wore clothes as if they were thrown on with a pitchfork.

Unless you're a member of that vanishing breed known as beatniks, a sloppy appearance has absolutely nothing going for it . . . and there's no future in it.

Good grooming and proper dress help create an impression for you and about you, even before you have an opportunity to speak. Indeed, your dress often says many things about you that you don't and can't.

Although there are definite guide lines for good dress, there is still ample latitude to express your own personal taste and preferences.

The essential factor for any well-dressed man is that he chooses a quality suit or sports ensemble which has been properly fitted. Hart Schaffner & Marx points out that men today have a choice of three varied "looks": natural shoulder, for the man who wants his styling classic and restrained; moderate, contemporary styling expressed with tasteful, slim lines; and advance fashion, for men who seek the newest and best of tomorrow's style ideas.

It's helpful to know some of the "do's" and "don'ts" in men's fashions. Here are a few:

Jacket — Make certain it covers you adequately in the rear. A jacket thats too long makes the garment look dated; one that's too short dates the garment, too . . . it looks like you've outgrown it. Judge jacket length on the basis of what looks good on you and for your proportions. However, note that some suit styles are supposed to be shorter than others.

Trousers — Here again, length is crucial. Too long or too short makes the wearer look considerably less than well is to let the trouser cuff just touch the shoe without an actual "break." You may prefer trousers slightly longer or shorter . . . it's all a matter of taste. Don't wear trousers that are too baggy. Today's trend is to trimness, but don't go to extremes. No well dressed man ever looked like he was ladled into his pants.

Hats — Hair may be a woman's crowning glory but for a man, it's a hat. It adds dignity, maturity and completes the well dressed look. There's no such thing as a man who doesn't look good in a hat. That man just hasn't been fitted with the proper hat for his build and the configuration of his head.

Check brim width, general hat style and how it relates to you . . . your head, shoulders, body. For square or round faces, better stick with a fuller crown and a slightly wider brim. In every instance make certain the hat comes well down on the head . . . It should never perch precariously on top of the head.

A half inch is a good general rule for the amount of shirt cuff to extend beyond the jacket, too. You may be bold and want to show more linen and cuff links.

Ties — Live a little. Use color. Don't be afraid to mix them in shirt and tie combinations. And don't be timid about mixing patterns . . . with taste of course. Nothing wrong with a striped tie on a striped shirt . . . provided they're the right stripes.

Old Lacers to Discuss Gold, Silver Laces

The Colorado Springs Chapter of National Old Lacers will meet at 11 a.m. Thursday at the YWCA.

All members are to bring displays gold lace.

Mrs. Elizabeth Porter will present the program on "Gold and Silver Laces."

Visitors are welcome to attend.

Mrs. Goff to Entertain Green Thumb Group

The Green Thumb meeting of the Pikes Peak Garden Club will meet at 1 p.m. Friday with Mrs. W. E. Goff, 1253 E. Madison.

Mrs. F. A. Pelson and Mrs. W. E. Sallee will be the hostesses.

Mrs. D. W. Walker will present a lesson on "Planting of Spring Seeds."

When you are serving a chicken curry, you may enjoy adding an embellishment to the accompanying rice. To do so, soak raisins in orange juice and stir into the hot cooked rice along with a little grated orange rind.

'Fair Lady' Look

A new undergarment for girls of grammar school age is a camisole - type pullover called "the demisole".

Young mademoiselles will like the rib-cage covering top and matching panty. It is being shown in boucle - knit cotton trimmed with braid to make this undercover story a bright one.

Chanel's nautical theme is almost as strong as it was last season, with the grade school set. Washable white sharkskin is most important here. A blazer jacket with brass buttons may become a "can't do without"! Middies come forward in gay, new guises.

Quality cabinet backs for stereos and decorator backs for pianos and organs provide new placement opportunities for these instruments in long narrow rooms. Decorator backs for pianos and organs usually are made of loosely woven cloth in designs and colors that blend with other fabrics in the room.

Engineers of Wurlitzer, makers of pianos, organs and radio-stereo phonographs are happy to provide basic tips on making the most of music for the eye as well as the ear. Variety of music settings range from alcove sound plenums to decorator backs on piano dividers.

Placing the end of the instrument against the wall conserves precious wall space, provides an attractive setting and optimum tone projection.

Finally, Wurlitzer engineers suggest that you not heavily drape and carpet the music center. Heavy use of material and overstuffed furniture mute music quality. Area rugs, caneback chairs and similar arrangements that provide some hard surfaces for sound reflection provide the best in listening enjoyment.

Do's and Don'ts Of Dress for Success Look

The beatnik look is gone, and good riddance. Even a poetic genius can ill afford to look sloppy, this spring.

Jonathan Swift once remarked that he had a friend who wore clothes as if they were thrown on with a pitchfork.

Unless you're a member of that vanishing breed known as beatniks, a sloppy appearance has absolutely nothing going for it . . . and there's no future in it.

Good grooming and proper dress help create an impression for you and about you, even before you have an opportunity to speak. Indeed, your dress often says many things about you that you don't and can't.

Although there are definite guide lines for good dress, there is still ample latitude to express your own personal taste and preferences.

The essential factor for any well-dressed man is that he chooses a quality suit or sports ensemble which has been properly fitted. Hart Schaffner & Marx points out that men today have a choice of three varied "looks": natural shoulder, for the man who wants his styling classic and restrained; moderate, contemporary styling expressed with tasteful, slim lines; and advance fashion, for men who seek the newest and best of tomorrow's style ideas.

It's helpful to know some of the "do's" and "don'ts" in men's fashions. Here are a few:

Jacket — Make certain it covers you adequately in the rear. A jacket thats too long makes the garment look dated; one that's too short dates the garment, too . . . it looks like you've outgrown it. Judge jacket length on the basis of what looks good on you and for your proportions. However, note that some suit styles are supposed to be shorter than others.

Trousers — Here again, length is crucial. Too long or too short makes the wearer look considerably less than well is to let the trouser cuff just touch the shoe without an actual "break." You may prefer trousers slightly longer or shorter . . . it's all a matter of taste. Don't wear trousers that are too baggy. Today's trend is to trimness, but don't go to extremes. No well dressed man ever looked like he was ladled into his pants.

Hats — Hair may be a woman's crowning glory but for a man, it's a hat. It adds dignity, maturity and completes the well dressed look. There's no such thing as a man who doesn't look good in a hat. That man just hasn't been fitted with the proper hat for his build and the configuration of his head.

Check brim width, general hat style and how it relates to you . . . your head, shoulders, body. For square or round faces, better stick with a fuller crown and a slightly wider brim. In every instance make certain the hat comes well down on the head . . . It should never perch precariously on top of the head.

A half inch is a good general rule for the amount of shirt cuff to extend beyond the jacket, too. You may be bold and want to show more linen and cuff links.

Ties — Live a little. Use color. Don't be afraid to mix them in shirt and tie combinations. And don't be timid about mixing patterns . . . with taste of course. Nothing wrong with a striped tie on a striped shirt . . . provided they're the right stripes.

When you are serving a chicken curry, you may enjoy adding an embellishment to the accompanying rice. To do so, soak raisins in orange juice and stir into the hot cooked rice along with a little grated orange rind.

'Fair Lady' Look

A new undergarment for girls of grammar school age is a camisole - type pullover called "the demisole".

Young mademoiselles will like the rib-cage covering top and matching panty. It is being shown in boucle - knit cotton trimmed with braid to make this undercover story a bright one.

Chanel's nautical theme is almost as strong as it was last season, with the grade school set. Washable white sharkskin is most important here. A blazer jacket with brass buttons may become a "can't do without"! Middies come forward in gay, new guises.

Decorate Indoors On Budget

With the big new family of versatile hardboard panels, budget-minded homemakers can now combine glamour with practicality from basement to attic.

For visual interest, the American Hardboard Association suggests that homeowners choose from a wide range of woodgrain finished panels toned in walnut, cherry, teak, oak, birch, pecan and other species.

All are grooved for realistic plank effect. Luxurious panels, textured by embossing, also enhance interior decoration with their woven, diamond-like, louvered, wicker or cane patterns and the more familiar striated and corrugated surfaces.

Other embossed hardboards look and feel like burlap or travertine marble.

Designed primarily for accent use, they can be used for the entire room. Die perforated hardboard in lacy filigree patterns is also usable for room dividers, window shutters or radiator covers. Easily painted the grillework patterns add beauty to any decorative theme.

Because hardboard is tough it is the ideal wood panel product for children's rooms, family room or other hard-use areas, particularly laundry rooms where high humidity can play havoc with paneling.

Now available in several wood grain finishes, familiar perforated hardboard paneling adds beauty too, in the home areas previously used only for utilitarian purposes. Hard to dent, easy to clean with the wipe of a damp cloth or sponge, hardboard's beauty is truly practical.

Versatile hardboard is ideal for weekend do-it-yourself projects. Finishing ideal space found in attics, basements, porches or garages for better appearance and greater function can be done with a modest expenditure for materials. Hardboard panels are practical for the apartment-dweller or house-renter to install, too, because of their economy and ease of installation.

Doing the job with husband power is a further economy, if he is even the least bit able to wield hammer and saw, for hardboard can be worked with the usual carpentry tools.

The use of hardboard paneling in your home is limited only by the imagination of the home owner. The large variety of panels makes the choice easy for hardboard is "At Home" in any decor.

ARRESTED

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — A Yugoslav writer has been arrested after writing that the Soviet Union used concentration camps and practiced genocide before Hitler did. A spokesman for the Ministry of Information said the writer, Mihavlo Mihajlov, under investigation for offenses of the Yugoslav criminal code.

Mihajlov criticized the Soviet Union in a series of articles in Yugoslavia's most important literary magazine.

LINEN-LIKE ENSEMBLE — As changeable as the weather, is this lineny rayon ensemble by Kate Greenaway, one of many featured at Andrea's Tot Shop, 1508 N. Hancock St. in the Golf Acres Shopping Center. The dress alone is an elegant party shift with a double row of pearl-like buttons down the front. It's demure A-line coat has a detachable scalloped cape collar that switches from coat to dress. It comes in a choice of pink cloud or pale blue.

Glove Magic In Variety of Chic Styles

This year, it's a gay, young Spring marked by prettiness and an aura of school girlishness. And to "hand" you a look that is as fresh as a new crocus are a bevy of bright and sprightly new gloves.

Short, snappy and sure to make a special exclamation point on the clothes they accompany are the pert little gloves that contrast snowy whiteness with the touch of shiny patent leather. In crisp double-woven cotton is the gay shortie that bands its wrist-high inverted V-shaped notch with a slick ribbon of leather.

Other "briefers" are frankly feminine with buttons, bows and embroidery adding a light and lovely touch. Ideal to partner with any of the pastel tints so smart this year are the nylon shorties, their backs completely spattered with eyelets in pink, blue, yellow or white. Another nylon glove, scooped to a gentle curve at the wrist, takes its eyelets as a border trim. Then there are cotton lovelies threaded just at wrist-level with an embroidered ribbon ending in a flirty bow.

All of these styles are by Miss Aris who also provides glove magic with a variety of versatile designs in Wizard, a lizard-textured nylon that might almost be the real thing. They go well with the bubbly tweeds and flat-surfaced woolens of Spring or the silks and linens of Summer, just ahead. The "Wizards" can be had in either the smart shortie buttoned inside the wrist with a single pearl or the wrist-skimmer, wearing its pearl on top of a shallow scoop and self-piped at its slightly curved top.

Last, there are new crisp white pique-textured nylon gloves to spark the pleated school-girl-inspired navy blue fashions this season. They have pearl button closings, elastic banding to snug the wrist and eyelet cuffing.

Furniture of Casual Ease

Elegance, style and comfort are the rule in casual furniture this spring and summer.

The patio or terrace is more than just a spot to soak up sun these days. It is part of the home and is furnished accordingly.

The most popular styles of outdoor furniture are made of wrought iron, cast aluminum, California redwood and rattan or cane featuring thick, plush foam rubber cushions with waterproof, fade-resistant covers.

One firm just introduced an outdoor recliner with a wrought iron frame and deep foam rubber cushions on back, seat and footrest.

Another firm has a glass top, wrought iron hunt table. It comes in four curved sections that fit together to make a circular table or can be placed end-to-end to make a sinuous buffet.

Patio carts or chuck wagons are fun. They usually include a barbecue grill, a spot for bottles and cooking utensils and enough work space to make outdoor cooking a lot easier.

Even the lightweight aluminum tubing casual furniture has been made more luxurious. Chaises that once had plastic webbing now offer latex foam rubber mattresses for greater comfort.

Color News is Bright

Candy colors are sweetening every line with their exciting hues. Orange, yellow, blue and green tones come, this year, from different vats — combining in brilliant ways.

White gains status as a color alone or with the shades of nautical red and blue. Surprise combination is yellow, orange and deep pink.

OSAKA — Japan has dropped her copper import quota.

Disposer No Longer Luxury

"Would you take out the garbage now?" is a familiar request which may not be heard in a few years. In 1965, alone, 1,400,000 garbage disposers were manufactured in the United States. If sales continue to increase as rapidly as in the past, the garbage can may become a quaint, useless antique.

During the last few years the disposer has come to be regarded as a necessity in good homemaking. And as one official of the Waste King Corporation noted, "Some housewives tell us they'd give up almost any other convenience before they'd be without their disposer."

The first significant acceptance of the disposer did not occur until 1951. Before that units were considered costly, and most installations were in expensive custom homes.

The NLRB Reversed

Glory be, the U.S. Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals has reversed an NLRB decision! This happens once in a great while, but it has happened again and the occasion is one for rejoicing.

The affair boiled up in Virginia, where the AFL-CIO Meat Cutters Union sought to organize the workers in the retail food stores of a particular food chain. The company had refused to bargain with the union. However, an election was held to determine whether or not a majority of the workers wished to be "represented" by the union. The company lost the election and the NLRB ordered collective bargaining.

The employer objected, refused to bargain with the union and took the matter to the appellate court. The objection was raised over the fact that on the date of the election, the union circulated handbills among employees, which handbills listed provisions in regard to vacations, holidays, insurance, pension plans, overtime, seniority and six other "benefits," all of which, the handbill said, "are in all Meat Cutters contracts in this and other areas."

These statements were false. Further, there was no dispute, even by the union, that the statements were false. However, the union contended and the NLRB supported the contention, that (1) "the circular is not a material misrepresentation but is merely an exaggeration." (2) the circular "could not reasonably be expected to have a significant impact on the election, being only a minor distortion," and (3) the union's misrepresentations were minor compared to "the extravagant promises so often made by and in behalf of candidates for public office."

The court, however, took a different view. It decided that the misrepresentations and falsehoods were of "highest importance," because the cleverly worded and distorted information purported to be an assertion of existing facts "carrying an implicit promise to obtain similar benefits for employees if the union is accepted as their bargaining representative."

Then the court added: "It is clear that the promises contained in the circular went far beyond the bounds of permissible hyperbole sometimes indulged in during pre-election campaigns for public office. They were substantial misrepresentations of material facts of vital concern to employees voting in the election. In fact, it is difficult to conceive of more important misrepresentations."

Accordingly, "because of the impropriety of this piece of campaign literature which was sufficient to mislead the electorate when casting their votes," the court reversed the NLRB and granted that the employer did not have to bargain with the union as a result of this election.

If we ever get to the place where unions are compelled to tell the truth to workers and their own members, we may find the tide of unionism sharply ebbing.

The entire structure of unionism rests upon misrepresentations and interpretations of economics which are false and misleading at best. The path left by union organizing efforts from coast to coast is strewed with the wreckage of blasted lives and hopes, destruction of business, increased prices, unemployment and even bloodshed. If the truth were ever known by the rank and file of workers, they would avoid unionizing as they would avoid leprosy. They would, themselves, without any assist from management, give the union organizer the old "heave-ho" and toss him out when he comes trespassing.

The whole story of the union is the extension of the story of socialist anarchy imposed on this country by economic gangsters intent on getting something for nothing. Without the Marxian fallacy of antagonism to profits, unionism would not exist. And yet it is the existence of profits and their return in the form of investments that makes all jobs possible and gives us whatever we have in the form of a standard of living.

Gradually, and in a marginal way, the workers have been learning some of the facts concerning economics. As they learn, the union membership lists shrink. The process is slow but it seems to be moving in the right direction. But let the courts insist that economic truths be uttered to union members and we would see a rapid deterioration of all union efforts.

However, this happy solution is unlikely. Governments are instruments which in themselves are also inimical to economic truths. Thus, the processes of education, conducted outside of governmentally dominated schools, remain the best if not the only way to proceed.

Supreme Court Critics

There are those who say anyone who criticizes the rulings of the august members of the U.S. Supreme Court, headed by Earl Warren, are "extremists."

Professor Paul C. Bartholomew of the University of Notre Dame in a recent issue of National Review did a study of statements made by some of the members of the court relative to the court. He finds in dissenting opinions of eight past and present justices of the Warren Court about as strong words of condemnation as has come from any source. The dissents are by such stalwarts of the court as Justices Black, Clark, Frankfurter, Harlan, Stewart, White and Whittaker. Apparently the only non-critics on the bench are Warren, Douglas, Brennan and the AFL-CIO representative, Justice Goldberg.

The article, "The Warren Court by the Warren Court," is well worth reading in its entirety. However, a few quotations are of especial interest. We reproduce a few:

Justice Frankfurter, joined by Justice Harlan, in Baker vs Carr (1962): ". . .In effect, today's decision empowers the courts of the country to devise what should constitute the proper composition of the legislatures of the fifty states. If state courts should for one reason or another find themselves unable to discharge this task, the duty of doing so is put on the federal courts or on this court. . .There is nothing judicially more unseemly nor more self-defeating than for this court to make in terrorem (by way of a threat) pronouncements, to indulge in merely empty rhetoric, sounding a word of promise to the ear, sure to be disappointing to the hope. . .To find such a political conception legally enforceable in the broad and unspecific guarantee of equal protection is to rewrite the Constitution. . ."

Justice Stewart in Escobedo vs. State of Illinois (1962): "Supported by no stronger authority than its own rhetoric, the court today converts a routine police investigation of an unsolved murder into a distorted analogue of a judicial trial . . . I think that court perverts those precious constitutional guarantees, and frustrates the vital interests of society in preserving the legitimate and proper function of honest and purposeful police investigation."

Justice White, joined by Justice Clark and Justice Stewart in the same case: ". . .Today's decision cannot be squared with other provisions of the Constitution which, in my view, define the system of criminal justice this court is empowered to administer."

Justice Black, joined by Justice Clark, in Jackson vs. Denno (1964): ". . . My wide difference with the court is in its constitutional power to change trial procedures because of its belief that they are not fair. There is no constitutional provision which gives this court any such lawmaking power. I think that the New York law here held invalid is in full accord with all the guarantees of the federal Constitution and that it should not be held invalid by this court because of a belief that the court can improve on the Constitution."

Justice Harlan in Wesberry vs. Sanders (1964): ". . .The authority to step into every situation where the political branch may be thought to have fallen short. The stability of this institution ultimately depends not only upon its being alert to keep the other branches of government without constitutional bounds, but equally upon recognition of the limitations on the court's own functions in the constitutional system.

"What is done today saps the political process. . ."

Justice Harlan in Reynolds vs. Sims (1964): "I know of no principle of logic or practical or theoretical politics, still less any constitutional principle, which establishes all or any of these exclusions. Certain it is that the court's opinion does not establish them.

". . .What is done today deepens my conviction that judicial entry into this realm is profoundly ill-advised and constitutionally impermissible."

Justice Black in Hamm vs. Rock Hill (1964): ". . .I do not find one paragraph, one sentence, one clause, or one word in the 1964 act on which the most strained efforts of the most fertile imagination could support such a conclusion."

Quiz 'N Quote

By DENNIS E. FAULK

QUESTION: Should Colorado abolish capital punishment?

Mig Black Charles DePuy

MIG BLACK, Puerto Ordaz, Venezuela, "I'm in favor of abolishing capital punishment, anywhere. It is impossible to obtain an ultimate justice. It is wrong to punish a murder with yet another murder. . .it would be better to rehabilitate as best it can be done. At least to restore the man's usefulness to himself, if not to the rest of society."

CHARLES DePUY, 1611 Wood, "It is difficult to find myself, as a citizen, daily represented in our highest temples of justice by some anomolous District Attorney who seeks the ultimate of sacrifices of some unfortunate whose possibly uncontrollable actions have earned him the distinction of an indictment of 'murder-one', or whatever. I disavow myself of any responsibility for this man's death."

Polly Miller Joe Macy

POLLY MILLER, Phoenix, Arizona, "Yes. . .everybody everywhere should abolish capital punishment. . .public murder is no less forgiveable than the trangression of one person. It subjects judges, juries, attorneys, and citizens to the position of murderers. Furthermore, it has not been demonstrated that capital punishment acts as an effective deterrent to murder, often a crime of passion."

JOE MACY, 1210 N. Tejon, "No, I don't think it should be abolished. . .It is an effective deterrent to capital crimes. . .I think this kind of crime would increase if it weren't for this deterrent."

Dave Helms Chris Furkovich

DAVE HELMS, 116 E. San Rafael, "Yes. . .it hasn't been demonstrated that execution has deterred the capital crimes . . .therefore my value system says we ought not to take the life of another person. . .I think that rehabilitation is the real answer to the problem . . .the murderer can become of some use to himself and to society, even if he never leaves prison."

CHRIS FURKOVICH, 533 N. Nevada, "I think it should be abolished. The offender may have been insane. What is proved by the murder of yet another person? I think he should be punished, but not by another murder."

Question Box

Question No. 658: "The recent Dorado decision states that a person taken into custody must be advised of "his rights" — yet these same courts will say that ignorance of the law is no excuse to a defense.

"Why then the difference that a person could be ignorant of 'his rights'? The assumption should be equal." Jerome Stewart.

Answer:

Each of these instances involves man - made rules for conduct of political agencies.

While legally, it long has been held that ignorance of the law is no defense, it would seem that an individual should not be held accountable for violation of a man-made law he does not know is in existence, especially if it is not a violation of the common law or natural law.

In the case of informing a person taken into custody on a criminal charge of his "rights," as we understand it the court has ruled that an individual being investigated must be told that he is entitled to a lawyer, and that what he says can be used against him. These are not rights, but rules of conduct set up by a court or by legislators.

If the Dorado court decision is carried to its logical conclusion, every government employe who has the authority to charge an individual with a crime, say a zoning violation, then must notify the individual that he is entitled to have a lawyer and that any statements he makes may be used against him before he can question the individual.

We think Mr. Stewart has a point when he says "The assumption should be equal." If a man is entitled to be told of his "rights," he should be entitled to be told about the man-made law he is accused of violating.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

The Local Scene

Who Protects What?

By RUFUS L. PORTER

"That to secure these rights governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed;"

There are two words in the above quotation from the Declaration of Independence that deserve more thought than is ordinarily given them. The word secure, for instance, was not used in the sense of obtaining or getting, as it is often used nowadays, but "to make safe; protect guarantee; make fast."

The founding fathers did not expect any government to "gain possession of" their rights for them. They have just finished declaring that "they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." The word "among" implies that there are other rights not mentioned that are unalienable, and they would include every right pertaining to property, its ownership and disposition. It also meant every citizen's right to raise and educate his family as he saw fit and without interference from the government in any manner whatsoever.

To secure (make fast, protect, guarantee) these rights the government of the United States was founded after the war of independence was won. But our rights have not been secured by the government. They were placed in mortal jeopardy the day the new government was accepted by the people. Governments cannot protect anything belonging to the people because governments are predators.

In the very beginning, politicians claimed it was necessary for the people and the several states to surrender some of their rights in order to establish a government to protect the others. The founding fathers knew governments are evil, but they thought a "limited" government was a necessary evil and they hoped to keep it limited. But it was really unlimited from the start, since Congress was given the power to levy and collect taxes — with no limit of the amount of taxation mentioned. Taxation can be total and it is rapidly approaching that point.

"Deriving their JUST powers from the consent of the governed." Here the founding fathers showed very clearly their distrust of government. They understood the nature of governments and knew that any government would usurp unjust powers unto themselves. But they set up a "limited" government — and FORGOT to limit taxation.

But that is all water over the dam long ago. The government's unjust powers, seized without consent of the governed now have no boundaries. And most of our unalienable rights have been nullified by an unjust government.

There have been times when the people have organized into groups in an effort to hold a check-rein on governmental activities. And for a short while they have been successful in staying the government's hand. But never for long.

An instance of a predatory government in action is not difficult to find. During the late forties the Colorado Education Association decided that all the small schools throughout the state should be consolidated And schools that were already consolidated were to be re-consolidated into even larger districts. In fact they wanted each county made into a single school district and keep the kids in dormitories for six weeks at a stretch.

It was at this time that the "Colorado Schools Protective Association" was revived and revitalized. It had been organized years before and had more or less succeeded in its purpose and had then been allowed to fade out. The reorganization took place in El Paso County, out on the plains east of the Springs. I had been writing against the schemes of the CEA and their professional lobbyists in the state capitol and for this reason I was asked to join the movement and to make a talk at the first meeting. Which I did in the Ellicott School. The response to the call for members was most enthusiastic. The movement grew and spread to the rural sections throughout the state. The upshot of it was that we "fit 'em and we whupped 'em," but not for long.

In a few years the enemy had pushed a bill through the legislature (the people were never allowed to vote on it) that set up a commissar of education who has the power to tell two or a dozen rural districts to consolidate. He gives them a little time and if they take no action, he does the job himself, or herself.

This all in the name of "better education," the idea, with which the CEA seems to be obsessed, is that the bigger the better.

About People and Pigs

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

The longer I study the subject of freedom and human behavior and individualism, the stronger are my convictions regarding the simple issues inherent in the freedom philosophy. Among these principles are courtesy, simple good manners. If a man believes a human being has the right to own property, courtesy demands a respect for property rights. If a man is a thief, he has no respect for the property of others. Most thieves do not exhibit the manners of pigs feeding at a common trough. Others may equal pigs in good manners, bad mannered pigs, that is.

Let's take a look at a few examples of bad manners; pushing or shoving in a crowd or otherwise. Deliberately interrupting a conversation. Making use of another person's property without their consent. Taking the property of another person without consent. Opening the mail which is addressed to another person. Reading opened mail addressed to another person without their consent. Refusing to respect the privacy of another person. Intruding into the private lives of others. Are you beginning to see the picture? Do you see a connection between good manners and the violations of good manners to which every bureaucrat is dedicated?

Obviously every bureaucrat believes your right to own property is limited by what the bureaucrat "needs" for his bureau and himself and let's pause right here for a moment. Do you wish to argue the point I have just made? I have made a strong and positive statement of fact and while you may argue the merit of the attitude of the bureaucrat, the facts will remain intact.

Every bureaucrat believes he has a right to intrude into your private life — even for your own good. If you doubt this statement, look at the facts and examples which abound and then back off, quickly. Bureaucrats are not the only people who are guilty of this breech, of course.

Pushing or shoving in a crowd or otherwise, physically or mentally constitute bad manners not limited to the bureaucracy and that's for sure. This is a sign of discourtesy to which I personally am particularly sensitive and I face the fact and do my best not to retaliate. I admit I am not always successful but I do work at it. Once upon a time an acquaintance of mine displayed a strong addiction to the pushing and shoving technique. I accepted this as a sign of immaturity and tried to wait him out. One day he started to lecture me on the subject of authoritarianism in a manner which indicated he was shoving and pushing. When he finished, I found a method of showing him what he was doing and why and because I did not retaliate, in kind, we are now friends.

Discourtesy displayed by opening mail belonging to another person is indicative of several character traits which I find offensive. Beyond this, it also indicates a lack of understanding of the private property concept. From a psychological perspective, such an unfortunate prediction is indicative of a basically disturbed emotional reaction which may bring the unwise letter opener face to face with some mighty unpleasant facts of life, eventually. To a person who believes in the freedom philosophy, such a display of bad manners is unthinkable.

I have been discussing many of these points with an astute student of human behavior and he asked this question, "But, what about the person who wishes to avoid dealing with others as much as possible, the man who says he hasn't time to bother with good manners?" I believe the answer is simple; if he wants to track filth into his own home, it's his business. If he tracks filth into my home, it is my business and I'll ask him to clean up the mess of his own making. It's just that simple, as is every aspect of the philosophy of freedom.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

THE BELL TOLLS

To the Editor:

The Union Printers Home (ITU) is tolling the bell for all Colorado Springs merchants. Impossible? not in our times where taxation is the power to destroy.

The Union Printers Home has owned for the past 60 odd years the tract of land at Union and Pikes Peak Ave. where the Retirement home is located. This tract of land consists of over 200 acres located in the middle of Colorado Springs. It has been operated as a Dairy Farm and Retirement home for retired printers over the years until it became unprofitable to operate as a dairy business recently. THE PROPERTY IS NOT NOW NOR HAS EVER BEEN TAXED, except for the new buildings recently erected. As a Benevolent organization like Churches, Hospitals and other eleemosynary institutions the ITU comes under Sec. 501 IRB tax exempt status.

Now the repugnance of the situation is that after other private enterprising investors and builders have taken the risk to develop the area around ITU's land and having paid property taxes on their speculations and income taxes on their profits if any, the ITU has decided that they want to develop their land to its highest use, not for homes, not for recreation but for commercial ventures. They presently have three tracts zoned business and one of these approximately 40 acres planned business center where K Marts is located, this zoned business center has not used all of the allowed land and they are now asking for another 40 odd acres for new proposed business center. This total business zoned ground if granted is more than the entire down town business center.

How does this zoning of land for business purposes put other business people out of business? Quote from 1965 United States Master Tax Guide. Under section 501 tax exempt organizations (513) "Exempt Types of Unrelated Income. (9) Unrelated business taxable income of labor unions and agricultural or horticultural organizations if the income (a) is used to establish, maintain or operate a retirement home, hospital or similar facility for the exclusive use of aged or infirm members; is derived from agricultural pursuits conducted on grounds contiguous to the institution and (c) does not represent more than 75 per cent of the cost of maintaining and operation of the institution."

It would seem to me this is the section they have been operating under for the past several years tax EXEMPT. Now they say they can't make a profit so they want to rezone the land and promote business buildings which they will ground lease or lease the entire building. Just 40 acres of business land could bring in approximately $400,000 per month gross income on land and buildings. This they already have and now want another 40 acres rezoned. They have a potential of over 200 acres to do this with which could give them a total income of $2,000,000 per month. These buildings would be put on the property tax rolls but what about the income tax? Quote sec. 501 - 513 Exempt types of unrelated income. (3) Rents from real property. Except some types of "leaseback income" Leaseback would not apply in their case because they are not buying the property and leasing it back. Quote sec. 520 "A lease is not a business lease if it is entered into for purposes which are substantially related to the exercise or performance by the organization of its charitable or other function leading to its exemption."

I can't conceive that our legislators intended to give preferential tax treatment through sec. 501 to this extent, however it's being done elsewhere, and if our planning commission and City Council approve ITU's request the other businessmen of Colorado Springs will be put to a great disadvantage, because any business venture today is predicated on how much of a dividend through taxation their partner Uncle Sam will take. Further implications are that the surplus which could be very substantial for ITU would find its way to COPE the Political action organization for AFL-CIO. ITU has miled the cows dry now they want to milk the people.

Editor's Note: We have gone on record many times as being opposed to taxes per se. Taxation is robbery and the income tax is the most pernicious of all tax forms, for it is a socialistic "share the wealth" tax that places more burden on one man than on the next. A graduated income tax is one of the planks in Karl Marx' Communist Manifesto.

Every tax, by its nature, is unfair. Mr. Chestnut brings out the unfairness inherent in the income tax. However, this is one question and the right of the property owner to control his property is another. We favor the right of all property owners, including the Printers Home, to control their property.

PRIVATE VS PUBLIC

To the Editor:

The views expressed in a letter by Ann Wischhusen and your editorial response in the March 3, Gazette Telegraph were very interesting. In her letter she asked, "Would you prefer to be billed monthly to pay the salaries of each teacher your children have? Would you like to bargain to have your garbage removed each week?"

I concur wholeheartedly with your response to her letter and may I say my children have been in private, parochial, correspondence and tax - supported schools. Never have I paid each teacher separately while attending private, parochial or correspondence schools. As a matter of fact most of these schools offer the parents a choice of plans to pay full tuition, monthly or quarterly. Conversely the tax - supported schools require payments and fees of many sorts all during the school year aside from the money collected through taxes to support them.

I live in an area outside the city limits of Dayton, Ohio where we have private competitive garbage collectors. The service is excellent and I receive a bill every three months. There is no necessity for bargaining each week. If a collector did not give me good service, I would simple stop doing business with him and call another garbage collector for service.

Water is also furnished by a private utility company. Compare it to other areas I have lived, where the water is under city control, the rates of the private company are much lower. And may I add I have lived in many areas of the United States and foreign countries.

FORGOTTEN FACTS

To the Editor:

The National Security Seminar brought together a large amount of facts about world communism. However, this work is not completed if we review some of the facts, but ignore others. By this I mean facts of communist aggression in the formerly free nations of the Baltic States in Europe: Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia. In reviewing facts about "Captive Europe," U. S. A. F. Lt. Col. Waterman ignored the fact, that the Baltic States were the first victims of soviet aggression in Europe, 1940. A million people in the Baltic States were enslaved by Russian communists before Albania, Bulgaria, Rumania, Hungary, Checkosovania and East Germany were made part of "Captive Europe" (See Gazette Telegraph Mar. 4, 1965, under the title of "Lt. Col. Waterman reviews 'Captive Europe' at Seminar meeting here").

I am sure that the U. S. A. F. Lt. Col. knows the facts about the Baltic States. But if he doesn't know, I would be pleased to furnish him with all the facts about soviet aggression in the Baltic States of Europe, because I myself witnessed those happenings.

READER PROTESTS

To the Editor:

That open letter of someone by the name of Frank Welsh is too misleading to go without an answer. When Kansas was considered a dry state there was an alcohol content consumption of one point two gallons per capita. Since the state has gone into the bootlegging business the consumption has steadily raised until it is now beyond two point nine gallons per capita and still going up.

There is another point that irks me almost as much. I have a television and use it somewhere around two hours per week. Now, I will flatfootedly state that I have the willpower to leave the one eyed idiot turned off. However there are those who will tell me that because of this I do not have the victory. These same people will drive by many churches in Security and go to town to church. If I did this I would feel like I was a hypocrite.

The NLRB Reversed

Glory be, the U.S. Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals has reversed an NLRB decision! This happens once in a great while, but it has happened again and the occasion is one for rejoicing.

The affair boiled up in Virginia, where the AFL-CIO Meat Cutters Union sought to organize the workers in the retail food stores of a particular food chain. The company had refused to bargain with the union. However, an election was held to determine whether or not a majority of the workers wished to be "represented" by the union. The company lost the election and the NLRB ordered collective bargaining.

The employer objected, refused to bargain with the union and took the matter to the appellate court. The objection was raised over the fact that on the date of the election, the union circulated handbills among employees, which handbills listed provisions in regard to vacations, holidays, insurance, pension plans, overtime, seniority and six other "benefits," all of which, the handbill said, "are in all Meat Cutters contracts in this and other areas."

These statements were false. Further, there was no dispute, even by the union, that the statements were false. However, the union contended and the NLRB supported the contention, that (1) "the circular is not a material misrepresentation but is merely an exaggeration." (2) the circular "could not reasonably be expected to have a significant impact on the election, being only a minor distortion," and (3) the union's misrepresentations were minor compared to "the extravagant promises so often made by and in behalf of candidates for public office."

The court, however, took a different view. It decided that the misrepresentations and falsehoods were of "highest importance," because the cleverly worded and distorted information purported to be an assertion of existing facts "carrying an implicit promise to obtain similar benefits for employees if the union is accepted as their bargaining representative."

Then the court added: "It is clear that the promises contained in the circular went far beyond the bounds of permissible hyperbole sometimes indulged in during pre-election campaigns for public office. They were substantial misrepresentations of material facts of vital concern to employees voting in the election. In fact, it is difficult to conceive of more important misrepresentations."

Accordingly, "because of the impropriety of this piece of campaign literature which was sufficient to mislead the electorate when casting their votes," the court reversed the NLRB and granted that the employer did not have to bargain with the union as a result of this election.

If we ever get to the place where unions are compelled to tell the truth to workers and their own members, we may find the tide of unionism sharply ebbing.

The entire structure of unionism rests upon misrepresentations and interpretations of economics which are false and misleading at best. The path left by union organizing efforts from coast to coast is strewed with the wreckage of blasted lives and hopes, destruction of business, increased prices, unemployment and even bloodshed. If the truth were ever known by the rank and file of workers, they would avoid unionizing as they would avoid leprosy. They would, themselves, without any assist from management, give the union organizer the old "heave-ho" and toss him out when he comes trespassing.

The whole story of the union is the extension of the story of socialist anarchy imposed on this country by economic gangsters intent on getting something for nothing. Without the Marxian fallacy of antagonism to profits, unionism would not exist. And yet it is the existence of profits and their return in the form of investments that makes all jobs possible and gives us whatever we have in the form of a standard of living.

Gradually, and in a marginal way, the workers have been learning some of the facts concerning economics. As they learn, the union membership lists shrink. The process is slow but it seems to be moving in the right direction. But let the courts insist that economic truths be uttered to union members and we would see a rapid deterioration of all union efforts.

However, this happy solution is unlikely. Governments are instruments which in themselves are also inimical to economic truths. Thus, the processes of education, conducted outside of governmentally dominated schools, remain the best if not the only way to proceed.

Supreme Court Critics

There are those who say anyone who criticizes the rulings of the august members of the U.S. Supreme Court, headed by Earl Warren, are "extremists."

Professor Paul C. Bartholomew of the University of Notre Dame in a recent issue of National Review did a study of statements made by some of the members of the court relative to the court. He finds in dissenting opinions of eight past and present justices of the Warren Court about as strong words of condemnation as has come from any source. The dissents are by such stalwarts of the court as Justices Black, Clark, Frankfurter, Harlan, Stewart, White and Whittaker. Apparently the only non-critics on the bench are Warren, Douglas, Brennan and the AFL-CIO representative, Justice Goldberg.

The article, "The Warren Court by the Warren Court," is well worth reading in its entirety. However, a few quotations are of especial interest. We reproduce a few:

Justice Frankfurter, joined by Justice Harlan, in Baker vs Carr (1962): ". . .In effect, today's decision empowers the courts of the country to devise what should constitute the proper composition of the legislatures of the fifty states. If state courts should for one reason or another find themselves unable to discharge this task, the duty of doing so is put on the federal courts or on this court. . .There is nothing judicially more unseemly nor more self-defeating than for this court to make in terrorem (by way of a threat) pronouncements, to indulge in merely empty rhetoric, sounding a word of promise to the ear, sure to be disappointing to the hope. . .To find such a political conception legally enforceable in the broad and unspecific guarantee of equal protection is to rewrite the Constitution. . ."

Justice Stewart in Escobedo vs. State of Illinois (1962): "Supported by no stronger authority than its own rhetoric, the court today converts a routine police investigation of an unsolved murder into a distorted analogue of a judicial trial . . . I think that court perverts those precious constitutional guarantees, and frustrates the vital interests of society in preserving the legitimate and proper function of honest and purposeful police investigation."

Justice White, joined by Justice Clark and Justice Stewart in the same case: ". . .Today's decision cannot be squared with other provisions of the Constitution which, in my view, define the system of criminal justice this court is empowered to administer."

Justice Black, joined by Justice Clark, in Jackson vs. Denno (1964): ". . . My wide difference with the court is in its constitutional power to change trial procedures because of its belief that they are not fair. There is no constitutional provision which gives this court any such lawmaking power. I think that the New York law here held invalid is in full accord with all the guarantees of the federal Constitution and that it should not be held invalid by this court because of a belief that the court can improve on the Constitution."

Justice Harlan in Wesberry vs. Sanders (1964): ". . .The authority to step into every situation where the political branch may be thought to have fallen short. The stability of this institution ultimately depends not only upon its being alert to keep the other branches of government without constitutional bounds, but equally upon recognition of the limitations on the court's own functions in the constitutional system.

"What is done today saps the political process. . ."

Justice Harlan in Reynolds vs. Sims (1964): "I know of no principle of logic or practical or theoretical politics, still less any constitutional principle, which establishes all or any of these exclusions. Certain it is that the court's opinion does not establish them.

". . .What is done today deepens my conviction that judicial entry into this realm is profoundly ill-advised and constitutionally impermissible."

Justice Black in Hamm vs. Rock Hill (1964): ". . .I do not find one paragraph, one sentence, one clause, or one word in the 1964 act on which the most strained efforts of the most fertile imagination could support such a conclusion."

Quiz 'N Quote

By DENNIS E. FAULK

QUESTION: Should Colorado abolish capital punishment?

Mig Black Charles DePuy

MIG BLACK, Puerto Ordaz, Venezuela, "I'm in favor of abolishing capital punishment, anywhere. It is impossible to obtain an ultimate justice. It is wrong to punish a murder with yet another murder. . .it would be better to rehabilitate as best it can be done. At least to restore the man's usefulness to himself, if not to the rest of society."

CHARLES DePUY, 1611 Wood, "It is difficult to find myself, as a citizen, daily represented in our highest temples of justice by some anomolous District Attorney who seeks the ultimate of sacrifices of some unfortunate whose possibly uncontrollable actions have earned him the distinction of an indictment of 'murder-one', or whatever. I disavow myself of any responsibility for this man's death."

Polly Miller Joe Macy

POLLY MILLER, Phoenix, Arizona, "Yes. . .everybody everywhere should abolish capital punishment. . .public murder is no less forgiveable than the trangression of one person. It subjects judges, juries, attorneys, and citizens to the position of murderers. Furthermore, it has not been demonstrated that capital punishment acts as an effective deterrent to murder, often a crime of passion."

JOE MACY, 1210 N. Tejon, "No, I don't think it should be abolished. . .It is an effective deterrent to capital crimes. . .I think this kind of crime would increase if it weren't for this deterrent."

Dave Helms Chris Furkovich

DAVE HELMS, 116 E. San Rafael, "Yes. . .it hasn't been demonstrated that execution has deterred the capital crimes . . .therefore my value system says we ought not to take the life of another person. . .I think that rehabilitation is the real answer to the problem . . .the murderer can become of some use to himself and to society, even if he never leaves prison."

CHRIS FURKOVICH, 533 N. Nevada, "I think it should be abolished. The offender may have been insane. What is proved by the murder of yet another person? I think he should be punished, but not by another murder."

Question Box

Question No. 638: "The recent Dorado decision states that a person taken into custody must be advised of "his rights" — yet these same courts will say that ignorance of the law is no excuse to a defense.

"Why then the difference that a person could be ignorant of 'his rights'? The assumption should be equal." Jerome Stewart.

Answer:

Each of these instances involves man - made rules for conduct of political agencies.

While legally, it long has been held that ignorance of the law is no defense, it would seem that an individual should not be held accountable for violation of a man-made law he does not know is in existence, especially if it is not a violation of the common law or natural law.

In the case of informing a person taken into custody on a criminal charge of his "rights," as we understand it the court has ruled that an individual being investigated must be told that he is entitled to a lawyer, and that what he says can be used against him. These are not rights, but rules of conduct set up by a court or by legislators.

If the Dorado court decision is carried to its logical conclusion, every government employe who has the authority to charge an individual with a crime, say a zoning violation, then must notify the individual that he is entitled to have a lawyer and that any statements he makes may be used against him before he can question the individual.

We think Mr. Stewart has a point when he says "The assumption should be equal." If a man is entitled to be told of his "rights," he should be entitled to be told about the man-made law he is accused of violating.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

The Local Scene

Who Protects What?

By RUFUS L. PORTER

"That to secure these rights governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed;"

There are two words in the above quotation from the Declaration of Independence that deserve more thought than is ordinarily given them. The word secure, for instance, was not used in the sense of obtaining or getting, as it is often used nowadays, but "to make safe; protect guarantee; make fast."

The founding fathers did not expect any government to "gain possession of" their rights for them. They have just finished declaring that "they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." The word "among" implies that there are other rights not mentioned that are unalienable, and they would include every right pertaining to property, its ownership and disposition. It also meant every citizen's right to raise and educate his family as he saw fit and without interference from the government in any manner whatsoever.

To secure (make fast, protect, guarantee) these rights the government of the United States was founded after the war of independence was won. But our rights have not been secured by the government. They were placed in mortal jeopardy the day the new government was accepted by the people. Governments cannot protect anything belonging to the people because governments are predators.

In the very beginning, politicians claimed it was necessary for the people and the several states to surrender some of their rights in order to establish a government to protect the others. The founding fathers knew governments are evil, but they thought a "limited" government was a necessary evil and they hoped to keep it limited. But it was really unlimited from the start, since Congress was given the power to levy and collect taxes — with no limit of the amount of taxation mentioned. Taxation can be total and it is rapidly approaching that point.

"Deriving their JUST powers from the consent of the governed." Here the founding fathers showed very clearly their distrust of government. They understood the nature of governments and knew that any government would usurp unjust powers unto themselves. But they set up a "limited" government — and FORGOT to limit taxation.

But that is all water over the dam long ago. The government's unjust powers, seized without consent of the governed now have no boundaries. And most of our unalienable rights have been nullified by an unjust government.

There have been times when the people have organized into groups in an effort to hold a check-rein on governmental activities. And for a short while they have been successful in staying the government's hand. But never for long.

An instance of a predatory government in action is not difficult to find. During the late forties the Colorado Education Association decided that all the small schools throughout the state should be consolidated And schools that were already consolidated were to be re-consolidated into even larger districts. In fact they wanted each county made into a single school district and keep the kids in dormitories for six weeks at a stretch.

It was at this time that the "Colorado Schools Protective Association" was revived and revitalized. It had been organized years before and had more or less succeeded in its purpose and had then been allowed to fade out. The reorganization took place in El Paso County, out on the plains east of the Springs. I had been writing against the schemes of the CEA and their professional lobbyists in the state capitol and for this reason I was asked to join the movement and to make a talk at the first meeting. Which I did in the Ellicott School. The response to the call for members was most enthusiastic. The movement grew and spread to the rural sections throughout the state. The upshot of it was that we "fit 'em and we whupped 'em," but not for long.

In a few years the enemy had pushed a bill through the legislature (the people were never allowed to vote on it) that set up a commissar of education who has the power to tell two or a dozen rural districts to consolidate. He gives them a little time and if they take no action, he does the job himself, or herself.

This all in the name of "better education," the idea, with which the CEA seems to be obsessed, is that the bigger the better.

About People and Pigs

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

The longer I study the subject of freedom and human behavior and individualism, the stronger are my convictions regarding the simple issues inherent in the freedom philosophy. Among these principles are courtesy, simple good manners. If a man believes a human being has the right to own property, courtesy demands a respect for property rights. If a man is a thief, he has no respect for the property of others. Most thieves do not exhibit the manners of pigs feeding at a common trough. Others may equal pigs in good manners, bad mannered pigs, that is.

Let's take a look at a few examples of bad manners; pushing or shoving in a crowd or otherwise. Deliberately interrupting a conversation. Making use of another person's property without their consent. Taking the property of another person without consent. Opening the mail which is addressed to another person. Reading opened mail addressed to another person without their consent. Refusing to respect the privacy of another person. Intruding into the private lives of others. Are you beginning to see the picture? Do you see a connection between good manners and the violations of good manners to which every bureaucrat is dedicated?

Obviously every bureaucrat believes your right to own property is limited by what the bureaucrat "needs" for his bureau and himself and let's pause right here for a moment. Do you wish to argue the point I have just made? I have made a strong and positive statement of fact and while you may argue the merit of the attitude of the bureaucrat, the facts will remain intact.

Every bureaucrat believes he has a right to intrude into your private life — even for your own good. If you doubt this statement, look at the facts and examples which abound and then back off, quickly. Bureaucrats are not the only people who are guilty of this breech, of course.

Pushing or shoving in a crowd or otherwise, physically or mentally constitute bad manners not limited to the bureaucracy and that's for sure. This is a sign of discourtesy to which I personally am particularly sensitive and I face the fact and do my best not to retaliate. I admit I am not always successful but I do work at it. Once upon a time an acquaintance of mine displayed a strong addiction to the pushing and shoving technique. I accepted this as a sign of immaturity and tried to wait him out. One day he started to lecture me on the subject of authoritarianism in a manner which indicated he was shoving and pushing. When he finished, I found a method of showing him what he was doing and why and because I did not retaliate, in kind, we are now friends.

Discourtesy displayed by opening mail belonging to another person is indicative of several character traits which I find offensive. Beyond this, it also indicates a lack of understanding of the private property concept. From a psychological perspective, such an unfortunate prediction is indicative of a basically disturbed emotional reaction which may bring the unwise letter opener face to face with some mighty unpleasant facts of life, eventually. To a person who believes in the freedom philosophy, such a display of bad manners is unthinkable.

I have been discussing many of these points with an astute student of human behavior and he asked this question, "But, what about the person who wishes to avoid dealing with others as much as possible, the man who says he hasn't time to bother with good manners?" I believe the answer is simple; if he wants to track filth into his own home, it's his business. If he tracks filth into my home, it is my business and I'll ask him to clean up the mess of his own making. It's just that simple, as is every aspect of the philosophy of freedom.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

THE BELL TOLLS

To the Editor:

The Union Printers Home (ITU) is tolling the bell for all Colorado Springs merchants. Impossible? not in our times where taxation is the power to destroy.

The Union Printers Home has owned for the past 60 odd years the tract of land at Union and Pikes Peak Ave. where the Retirement home is located. This tract of land consists of over 200 acres located in the middle of Colorado Springs. It has been operated as a Dairy Farm and Retirement home for retired printers over the years until it became unprofitable to operate as a dairy business recently. THE PROPERTY IS NOT NOW NOR HAS EVER BEEN TAXED, except for the new buildings recently erected. As a Benevolent organization like Churches, Hospitals and other eleemosynary institutions the ITU comes under Sec. 501 IRB tax exempt status.

Now the repugnance of the situation is that after other private enterprising investors and builders have taken the risk to develop the area around ITU's land and having paid property taxes on their speculations and income taxes on their profits if any, the ITU has decided that they want to develop their land to its highest use, not for homes, not for recreation but for commercial ventures. They presently have three tracts zoned business and one of these approximately 40 acres planned business center where K Marts is located, this zoned business center has not used all of the allowed land and they are now asking for another 40 odd acres for new proposed business center. This total business zoned ground if granted is more than the entire down town business center.

How does this zoning of land for business purposes put other business people out of business? Quote from 1965 United States Master Tax Guide. Under section 501 tax exempt organizations (513) "Exempt Types of Unrelated Income. (9) Unrelated business taxable income of labor unions and agricultural or horticultural organizations if the income (a) is used to establish, maintain or operate a retirement home, hospital or similar facility for the exclusive use of aged or infirm members; is derived from agricultural pursuits conducted on grounds contiguous to the institution and (c) does not represent more than 75 per cent of the cost of maintaining and operation of the institution."

It would seem to me this is the section they have been operating under for the past several years tax EXEMPT. Now they say they can't make a profit so they want to rezone the land and promote business buildings which they will ground lease or lease the entire building. Just 40 acres of business land could bring in approximately $400,000 per month gross income on land and buildings. This they already have and now want another 40 acres rezoned. They have a potential of over 200 acres to do this with which could give them a total income of $2,000,000 per month. These buildings would be put on the property tax rolls but what about the income tax? Quote sec. 501 - 513 Exempt types of unrelated income. (3) Rents from real property. Except some types of "leaseback income" Leaseback would not apply in their case because they are not buying the property and leasing it back. Quote sec. 520 "A lease is not a business lease if it is entered into for purposes which are substantially related to the exercise or performance by the organization of its charitable or other function leading to its exemption."

I can't conceive that our legislators intended to give preferential tax treatment through sec. 501 to this extent, however it's being done elsewhere, and if our planning commission and City Council approve ITU's request the other businessmen of Colorado Springs will be put to a great disadvantage, because any business venture today is predicated on how much of a dividend through taxation their partner Uncle Sam will take. Further implications are that the surplus which could be very substantial for ITU would find its way to COPE the Political action organization for AFL-CIO. ITU has miled the cows dry now they want to milk the people.

Editor's Note: We have gone on record many times as being opposed to taxes per se. Taxation is robbery and the income tax is the most pernicious of all tax forms, for it is a socialistic "share the wealth" tax that places more burden on one man than on the next. A graduated income tax is one of the planks in Karl Marx' Communist Manifesto.

Every tax, by its nature, is unfair. Mr. Chestnut brings out the unfairness inherent in the income tax. However, this is one question and the right of the property owner to control his property is another. We favor the right of all property owners, including the Printers Home, to control their property.

PRIVATE VS PUBLIC

To the Editor:

The views expressed in a letter by Ann Wischhusen and your editorial response in the March 3, Gazette Telegraph were very interesting. In her letter she asked, "Would you prefer to be billed monthly to pay the salaries of each teacher your children have? Would you like to bargain to have your garbage removed each week?"

I concur wholeheartedly with your response to her letter and may I say my children have been in private, parochial, correspondence and tax - supported schools. Never have I paid each teacher separately while attending private, parochial or correspondence schools. As a matter of fact most of these schools offer the parents a choice of plans to pay full tuition, monthly or quarterly. Conversely the tax - supported schools require payments and fees of many sorts all during the school year aside from the money collected through taxes to support them.

I live in an area outside the city limits of Dayton, Ohio where we have private competitive garbage collectors. The service is excellent and I receive a bill every three months. There is no necessity for bargaining each week. If a collector did not give me good service, I would simple stop doing business with him and call another garbage collector for service.

Water is also furnished by a private utility company. Compare it to other areas I have lived, where the water is under city control, the rates of the private company are much lower. And may I add I have lived in many areas of the United States and foreign countries.

FORGOTTEN FACTS

To the Editor:

The National Security Seminar brought together a large amount of facts about world communism. However, this work is not completed if we review some of the facts, but ignore others. By this I mean facts of communist aggression in the formerly free nations of the Baltic States in Europe: Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia. In reviewing facts about "Captive Europe," U. S. A. F. Lt. Col. Waterman ignored the fact, that the Baltic States were the first victims of soviet aggression in Europe, 1940. A million people in the Baltic States were enslaved by Russian communists before Albania, Bulgaria, Rumania, Hungary, Checkosovania and East Germany were made part of "Captive Europe" (See Gazette Telegraph Mar. 4, 1965, under the title of "Lt. Col. Waterman reviews 'Captive Europe' at Seminar meeting here").

I am sure that the U. S. A. F. Lt. Col. knows the facts about the Baltic States. But if he doesn't know, I would be pleased to furnish him with all the facts about soviet aggression in the Baltic States of Europe, because I myself witnessed those happenings.

READER PROTESTS

To the Editor:

That open letter of someone by the name of Frank Welsh is too misleading to go without an answer. When Kansas was considered a dry state there was an alcohol content consumption of one point two gallons per capita. Since the state has gone into the bootlegging business the consumption has steadily raised until it is now beyond two point nine gallons per capita and still going up.

There is another point that irks me almost as much. I have a television and use it somewhere around two hours per week. Now, I will flatfootedly state that I have the willpower to leave the one eyed idiot turned off. However there are those who will tell me that because of this I do not have the victory. These same people will drive by many churches in Security and go to town to church. If I did this I would feel like I was a hypocrite.

Supervisors Operate Struck Santa Fe

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Crews of supervisory personnel began to take over operation of all trains on the Santa Fe Railway's coast lines Friday night after firemen and engineers struck over an alleged contract violation.

A Santa Fe spokesman said today the supervisory crews would bring into Los Angeles all trains on the road at the time of the strike but said he could not predict just how future service would be affected.

The coast lines run from San Francisco to Isleta, N.M.

P. H. Adams, Santa Fe's assistant general manager at Los Angeles, termed the action a "wildcat strike." He said passenger trains would be arriving at their destinations on time, but freights would be slightly d layed.

Supervisors Operate Struck Santa Fe

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Crews of supervisory personnel began to take over operation of all trains on the Santa Fe Railway's coast lines Friday night after firemen and engineers struck over an alleged contract violation.

A Santa Fe spokesman said today the supervisory crews would bring into Los Angeles all trains on the road at the time of the strike but said he could not predict just how future service would be affected.

The coast lines run from San Francisco to Isleta, N.M.

P. H. Adams, Santa Fe's assistant general manager at Los Angeles, termed the action a "wildcat strike." He said passenger trains would be arriving at their destinations on time, but freights would be slightly d layed.

East, Brush, Wiggins Win State Cage Titles

Brush Wins AA; Stops Highland

DENVER (AP) — Brush, using its speed to overcome its opponent's height, beat Highland 69-64 Saturday night and won the state Class AA basketball championship.

In earlier games, Salida won third place by whipping Lafayette 80-49 and Glenwood Springs took the consolation title with a 69-55 victory over Hotchkiss.

Brush and Highland played on nearly even terms for the first period of their title game, and the winning Beetdiggers kept only a two-to-four point lead until the last 21 seconds of the half. Then Larry Skinner and Dean Giauque hit two baskets to make the halftime margin 42-34 for Brush.

After intermission, Highland quickly cut into the Brush lead, making it 42-38 with baskets by 6-foot-4 Bill Obenchain and guard Jess Lucero. Then the Huskies cooled off and let Brush have a nine-point lead, 47-38.

An overpowering rally by Highland late in the third period carried into the last quarter and gave the Huskies their only lead of the game, 54-53, with 5:35 to go. A field goal and a pair of free throws by Brush's Sid Davis put his team ahead to stay at 57-54 with barely more than five minutes left.

Wiggins Cops State 'A' Title

DENVER (AP)—Sluggish in the first quarter, Wiggins' Tigers shot back with three 16-point periods for a 57-44 victory over Wiley that won them the Colorado Class A basketball championship Saturday night.

Earlier, Plainview made its first appearance in the state tournement a triumph by whipping last year's champion, Bennet, 61-57 for third place.

In Class A consolation finals, Bayfield upset Fleming 74-72.

The championship game started as what appeared to be a cinch for Wiley, which took a 10-2 lead. But Wiggins knocked out eight straight points to open the second quarter, taking a 17-16 lead. In that period, Wiley managed only four points, all by Richard Wollert.

Plainview Cops 'A' 3rd Place

DENVER .AP)—The first appearance in a state tournament for Plainview was a triumph Saturday as the Hawks whipped last year's state champion Bennett, 61-57 to capture third place in Class A competition.

In Class A consolation finals earlier, Bayfield upset Fleming 74-72.

The battling Plainview team had to overcome a 10-point first-period disadvantage to pull even with the Tigers from Bennett, then made a late surge for the victory.

Salida Cops 3rd In State

DENVER (AP) — An earlier spell of illness overcome, the Salida Spartans won third place in the state Class AA basketball finals Saturday with an easy 80-49 victory over Lafayette.

In an afternoon game, Glenwood Springs had won the consolation Class AA title by whipping Hotchkiss 69-55.

Salida's players had been hampered by an outbreak of diarrhea when they lost to Brush 74-62 in semifinals Friday. But they seemed more like last year's state champions in the final, rushing to a 43-24 halftime lead and scoring 27 points in the last quarter to 13 for Lafayette.

The last - quarter difference was accentuated by Lafayette's loss of John Torres

UCLA Nips S. F. in Far West

PROVO, Utah (AP) — UCLA got the scare of its season Saturday night but recovered in time to beat San Francisco 101-93 for the NCAA Far West basketball championship.

The victory will send the Bruins against Wichita next Friday night at Portland, Ore., in the national semifinals.

Oklahoma City upset Brigham Young 112-102 in the consolation game.

The UCLA triumph, in doubt until the final minute, was achieved despite a magnificent performance by San Francisco's Ollie Johnson, the tournament's most valuable player.

Johnson scored 37 points, breaking his own career high of 35 set last night.

Michigan Tops Vanderbilt Five

By BILL BAXTER

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — All-America Cazzie Russell hit 11 crucial points in the stretch bringing top-ranked Michigan from behind for an 87-85 basketball victory over fifth-ranked Vanderbilt in finals of the NCAA Mideast regional tournament Saturday night.

Dayton beat DePaul 75-69 for third place.

Vanderbilt, 10-point underdog, beat the Wolverines on the backboards 49-43 and had a 69-66 lead with seven minutes left. But Russell hit five field goals and a free throw and his jump with 1:30 left gave Michigan the lead for the last time at 81-80.

Oliver Darden hit two free throws with three seconds left sealing Vandy's doom. Vandy's Wayne Calvert connected on a set shot at the gun for the Commodores' final points.

The victory offset a stellar performance by Vanderbilt's 6-foot-9 Clyde Lee who riddled the Michigan defense with 28 points and 20 rebounds, through he carried four fouls through the entire second half.

East Cops AAA; Nips Central in Overtime

DENVER (AP) — Denver East, requiring an overtime to do it, beat Pueblo Central 66-64 Saturday night for a second successive victory in the Colorado Class AAA championship basketball game.

The Angels won the repeat title before a crowd of more than 12,000 at the Denver Coliseum in a replay of last year's championship match.

Earlier, Arvada won third place in the class with an 85-72 victory over Greeley Central, and Aurora Hinkley took the consolation title by defeating Westminster 64-62.

The closely played championship game was decided on a field goal by reserve guard Keith Rausch with 52 seconds left in the overtime.

East thus beat back the Wildcats' hopes for revenge for last year's title game, which the Denver team won 103-83.

Saturday's victory made the Angels the first team to win successive championships in the class since Greeley's squads of 1959 and 1960. It was East's fifth championship since the first tournament in 1922.

Pueblo Central failed not only to avenge the 1964 game but to take the title home to the South Central League, which has not won in 25 years.

In the last 16 minutes of Saturday's game, the lead changed hands six times in the last 16 minutes of play and the score was tied five times during that time.

With 2 minutes and 22 seconds left, Central had opened a six-point lead, 60-54, with big field goals by Rick Perryman and Dan Kochevar. It was the biggest deficit for East.

Rausch led a comeback by the Angeles with two field goals, one of which tied the score at 62-62 with 38 seconds left.

For East, the high-point players were Rayford Tillis, with 17, and Rausch with 16 points. Central's Kochevar hit 16.

Arvada Dumps Greeley for Third

DENVER (AP) — Playing the entire second half without its ace forward, Dave Carpenter, Arvada kept rolling after intermission for an 85-72 victory over Greeley Central in the Class AAA state basketball contest for third place Saturday night.

In the third-place game, Arvada's Carpenter cut his eye on the floor late in the second period when he fell on a driving layup attempt. He returned to the game briefly before intermission but was forced to leave for good as the cut continued to bleed.

The winning Redskins held nothing below a nine-point lead throughout the last 16 minutes of the game. Greeley's Wildcats had been out of contention since failing to score a point in the last three minutes of the first half. During that time, Arvada moved from a 36-36 tie to a 49-36 lead.

John Naugle was Arvada's top scorer, with 25 points—19 of them in the first half. For Greeley, Jack Slapper's 18 points was the best.

Hinkley Topples Westminster, 64-62

DENVER (AP)—Aurora Hinkly won the Class AAA consolation title in the State High School Basketball Tournament Saturday by defeating Westminstr 64-62 despite a 31-point performance by the losers' Bob Cook.

Hinkley's Mike Davis made the difference with his clutch play. He was held to 15 points by Westminster's collapsing two-man defense, however. His decisive plays included a field goal with 2:45 left and another with only 45 seconds to go.

After Davis's last goal, which gave Hinkley a 64 - 58 lead, Westminster fought back with two more field goals but the final buzzer halted the rally.

Cook, Westminster's 6-foot-6 star, got his points on 12 field goals and seven of eight free throws. For Hinkley, the 18 points of Norbert Beddow was tops.

Sullivan Selected Coach of the Year

Norman Sullivan, who in his first term as Harrison's basketball bossman, was selected the All-City Coach of the Year by the Gazette Telegraph and KRDO-TV and radio sports staffs.

Coach Sullivan led the Harrison basketball team to the Will Rogers League championship going undefeated in the conference round-robin. This was the first league title a Harrison athletic team has won in the school's 10-year history.

Before coming to Harrison, Sullivan coached at Center High School. His 1964-65 WRL championship team won eight straight conference games and compiled a 14-3 won-loss record, losing the third outing to La Junta in the State AAA playoff game.

Sullivan was instrumental in developing the basketball skills of his 6-4 center Mike Obert, who established a new WRL single game scoring record by tallying 39 points. Obert was among the top 10 scorers in the state with 344 points for 17 games.

The All-City Coach of the Year annual award takes in all the schools in the Colorado Springs area including: Wasson, Palmer, St. Mary's, Cheyenne Mountain, Widefield, Air Academy High, Manitou Springs, Fountain and Harrison.

GRAND FORKS (AP)—Michigan Tech scored two quick second period goals to break a 4-4 tie and defeat the University of North Dakota 6-4 in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association championship playoff Saturday.

Al Holm fired in the tie-breaking goal with 12:39 elapsed in the second period. Steve Yoshino followed with another score less than two minutes later.

There was no scoring in the final period. UND Coach Bob Peters pulled his goalie with 88 seconds remaining, but the Sioux failed to dent the Tech net.

Princeton Bombards Providence, 109-69

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) Underdog Princeton, paced by All-America Bill Bradley's 41-point effort, demolished fourth-ranked Providence 109-69 Saturday night for the NCAA Eastern regional basketball championship.

Bradley was superb as he carried the Ivy League champions into the four-team NCAA national finals at Portland, Ore., next Friday.

The college Player of the Year sank 14 of 20 field goal attempts, grabbed nine rebounds and was credited with eight assists.

North Carolina State won the consolation round game from third-ranked St. Joseph's 103-81, as Larry Lakins scored 33 points.

Providence, an at-large entry in the tournament, started with a zone defense and Mike Riordan floating to concentrate on Bradley. That was soon discarded and Jim Walker was put on the Tigers' star.

BETWEEN THE LINES

by Loy Holman

State's Most Famed

It was an easy task this year for the state-wide selection committee in casting votes for the inaugural members of the newly formed Colorado Hall of Fame.

Just off hand, the names of the original three pop into mind with hardly a second thought. And the Hall should have a tremendous start with the induction of Jack Dempsey, Byron (Whizzer) White and Dutch Clark.

As of this date, all are expected to make the annual awards dinner at Denver's Hilton Hotel. So it might be wise to reserve the evening of April 2 and get reservations in early. Locally, the 10-buck tickets can be obtained from Vern Brook, 217 Cascade Ave., or by contacting the Denver Chamber of Commerce.

Nominations poured in from all over Colorado and there was a lengthy list to pick from. Se- from three-fourths of the committee and only the above mentioned trio drew that many ballots. They were nearly unanimous.

Dempsey, considered by many boxing experts as the greatest heavyweight champion of all time, now lives in New York after starting his ring carrer in Colorado as the "Manassa Mauler" and a colorful character of brawls from bar rooms to marathon fights all over the state.

White was the first All-America from Colorado University and his exploits contributed greatly towards boosting the Buffs into the big time of athletics. I can still remember well watching the Wellington whiz leave empty arms of would-be tacklers all over the field as he made one of his famed dashes down the sidelines. He, of course, is now a U. S. Supreme Court Judge and one of the most respected men in the nation.

People of this area need no reminder of the greatness of Clark, an All-America from the early days of Colorado College and one of the all-time sensations of the professional football leagues. Clark, originally from Pueblo, now lives in the Detroit region, and has also promised to attend the Hall of Fame awards banquet.

See you there?

In this modern era of basketball, it seems that nearly all the major schools are coming up with about equal talent. The collegiates find those sky-scraping giants from one place or another, and even the high schools are more balanced in scoring talent that ever before.

The big divider, apparently, comes down to defense—when matching a pair of teams that can shoot with near equal ability. It's seen more in the playoffs, as currently on the national and state level, than anywhere else.

Among the colleges, UCLA has just about built a dynasty on this one phase of the game. The defending national champs proved that with a convincing victory over offensive-minded BYU this weekend. Oklahoma State used its sticky defense to go all the way in the Big Eight. And Michigan parlays greatness in both departments to rule the favorite to win the NCAA crown.

In the high schools its perhaps even more apparent. The state tournament, which wound up Saturday night, is the best example.

Fine shooting teams come into Denver from all over the state. But it's usually the ones who can apply the most defensive pressure that come out on top. Individuals who have slipped by with little difficulty in getting their shots away suddenly come up against boys who are just as adept at blocking same or pressing so close that the hot-shot never gets the chance to fire.

It's only a sign of better all-round skill in the sport. Which is nothing but good.

Over the years, sports have been designated as "major" and "minor" — with the distinction none too clear, depending on the personal likes of those involved. Perhaps it would be much better if they could be categorized as "youthful" and "life-long" sports.

Those depending largely on physical force, such as football and to some extent basketball and baseball, are pretty much restricted to school days, with a few exceptions. But others like golf, tennis, handball and swimming can be carried on long past the vigorous years of the teens and early twenties.

Some communities have tried to keep up with the trend toward staying active in middle age and beyond. But few can accomplish this, and thus many have turned to the "country club" facilities.

Now Colorado Springs has a new twist to this, and one that many can more reasonably afford than the plush country club. It's the Racquet Club planned for northeast Colorado Springs.

Details of the project can be found in the business section of today's Gazette Telegraph, but the point here is that the organizers are seeking the alloted first-year membership by the cutoff date of April 1. If they can't fill the list by then the plan will have to be delayed for another year . . . or longer.

For those who want the availability of a private club but don't happen to play golf, this is the ideal setup. Without the maintenance of a golf course, the expenses will be about one-fourth. And still there will be swimming, tennis, handball and squash, an area for the less strenuous activities like sunbathing, picnics, parties and shuffleboard, and in the future perhaps even a dining area with swank atmosphere.

There must be many who would be interested in such a plan, and I would suggest quick contact with one of the organizers. You can call board president George F. Fredrick, 3814 Marilyn Rd.; or W. D. Corley, 114 W. Del Norte, for particulars.

Corley has been known hereabouts as Mr. Tennis for years, and there are prospects for a fine program in this sport for the future. You can bet that if Doug has his hand in it, everything will be first class.

Falcons Face Rebuilding Year in Baseball

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

Hit with both barrels by graduation and resignations, the Air Force Academy's baseball team has been forced into a "building year" — like it or not.

This comes on the heels of the school's finest season in the erstwhile national pastime, but unexpected losses to the roster have whittled what might have been an even more balanced club into an inexperienced questionmark of a squad.

That is not to say the Falcons won't win their share of games this spring. With a fast start from some of their sophomores and should the pitching be up to its potential, the Air Force could still make a run at regional honors and another possible berth in the NCAA playoffs.

Last year, Coach Connie Sparks' first as head of the Academy baseball program, the Falcons sizzled through their regular season with a fancy 20-3 mark and into the District 7 playoffs .They finally lost to Arizona State University in a rain-delayed playoff, eventually switched from Colorado Springs to Arizona because of the weather ,but in the meantime made a strong bid for a second straight national team batting title.

As a squad the Academy hit a resounding .340 and had an iron-armed stint by a pair of hurlers who combined to win 17 games. However, all but one of the top seven hitters from among the regulars will be missed this spring, and both of those leading pitchers have used up their eligibility.

That leaves an untested mound corps and only one senior in the probably starting lineup. As many as four sophomores — depending on the battery — could be on the diamond when the Air Force opens its home schedule April 14 against Denver University.

The Falcons will travel south next week for early training against a pair of military teams and two civilian schools in the San Antonio, Tex., area, and then open the season officially in two weeks, March 27, with a double-header at the University of New Mexico at Albuquerque. The AFA then plays at Stanford in California, at Denver U. and Southern Colorado State in Pueblo before their home opener.

As announced Saturday, the Academy has lost the services of four seniors who were to be the nucleus of this year's team. Third baseman Jim Steed ,who had one of the nation's highest averages at .421; catcher Larry Tollstam, who was also a football regular; second baseman Blaine Brownlow; and outfielder Mike Summerbell all have left the school and are assumed to have resigned in the wake of the recent cheating scandal.

In addition, five regulars have graduated. Among those were shortstop Darryl Bloodworth, who hit at .356; lefty pitcher Fred Olmsted, who compiled a 8-0 record during the regular season; usual catcher Al McArtor a .342 hitter; and reliable center fielder Frank Packer.

The other hurler used so often by Sparks was right hander Pete Bracci, and although he remains in school the hard-throwing senior is not eligible because of playing a year of varsity ball before entering the Academy. Bracci will act as an assistant coach this spring, helping the pitchers.

CONNIE SPARKS
Second Year Coach

The only real veterans back for this season are first baseman Bruce Huneke, a two-year letterman; pitcher Al McClure, who appeared in six games and had a 4-2 record; outfielder John Ollila; and part-time outfielder Paul Stein. Stein, however ,divided his time between the baseball team and spring football practice last year, just as he will be doing this spring as defensive safety with the AFA gridders.

Huneke, a 205-pound senior from Hanford, Calif., should supply the long ball for the Cadets this year and his hitting will have to carry much of the Fliers' attack. Last year he finished off with a .392 average, with seven home runs and as many doubles.

"With pitching counting so much in this game, we'll have to rely on some sophomores to hold us up," Sparks said this this week. "And we definitely won't have the hitting of last year to help them out."

The Falcons mentor, in his soph season at the helm, still is somewhat optimistic over his team's chances, but admits a lot will depend on how some of the newcomers respond to the responsibility and added pressure.

"I guess we'll have to do considerably more running than in the past," Sparks continued. "Over the last few years we could more or less depend on the hitters to drive 'em in, but now we'll have to be running the base paths to get around."

The AFA coach feels that overall he has good speed, with just a couple exceptions, but the Falcons face a rugged 24-game schedule that sees them going against nearly all the better teams in the region. With a rather shaky pitching staff, they may need all the base stealing they can get.

Heading the hurlers is McClure, a 6-1, 175 pound product of Bangor, Me., who was used only occasionally as a starter. Sparks feels that he may have to pitch half the Air Force games this spring.

BRUCE HUNEKE
Team's Top Hitter

"I've told him (McClure) to be ready to pitch every Wednesday and Saturday or maybe Sunday. We'll fill in with somebody in between," Sparks said.

Of the others, sophomore Jim Hogarty probably will be the No. 2 starter for the Cadets. He's a big 6-2, 195-pounder from Mt. Prospect ,Ill. and a right-hander to go with McClure's lefty slants. Behind these two will be Bill Landes, a senior who failed to appear in any of last year's games but can be of service in relief, and junior Dick Guido, half of the AFA's "twin battery" from Glen Cove, N.Y.

Guido's twin brother, Bob, is slated to be the top catcher, especially after the sudden departure of Tollstam. Bob is rather small for a backstop at 165-pounds, but can call on relief from Paul Hanson, a sophomore catcher from San Antonio.

Around the horn, besides Huneke at first, the Falcons probably will field Dick Lee at second, Keith Withycombe at shortstop and letterman Ollila at third, replacing Steed. Lee and Withycombe are both local products with the second-sacker coming from Wasson High here in Colorado Springs and Withycombe a grad of Air Academy High. Both are sons of high-ranking Air Force officers.

In reserve for the infield are junior Pete Merrelli at first, and sophomores Tom Calvanelli at short and Dick Reitan at third.

The outfield will be made up of Stein, a junior who will have to divide time with the spring football workouts, and a trio of sophomores. The most promising of these newcomers is Gary May, a 165-pounder from Prairie du Chien, Wis., who most likely will man center field. He has had a season of varsity ball before coming to the AFA.

John Ondrejko, another footballer who will spend part of the spring working at fullback for Coach Ben Martin's gridders, and Tipp Simpson, the only lefty hitter on the squad outside of the pitchers, will fill the outfield. Simpson is a 170-pounder from Holtville, Mo.

Hogarty, the chief new face on the mound staff ,is still another who will be running back and forth between the diamond and football field. He is a good prospect at end, especially with the depletion of Martin's troops at that position.

Other pitchers listed are all sophomores. They are Tom Lindahl 185-pound right-hander from Clinton, Md., who was a top prospect until suffering a shoulder dislocation while playing basketball recently; John McBroom, a 190-pound righty from Prince George Co., Va., who has shown slightly wild; and John Snow from Cotten Valley, La., primarily a relief artist.

East, Brush, Wiggins Win State Cage Titles

Brush Wins AA; Stops Highland

DENVER (AP) — Brush, using its speed to overcome its opponent's height, beat Highland 69-64 Saturday night and won the state Class AA basketball championship.

In earlier games, Salida won third place by whipping Lafayette 80-49 and Glenwood Springs took the consolation title with a 69-55 victory over Hotchkiss.

Brush and Highland played on nearly even terms for the first period of their title game, and the winning Beetdiggers kept only a two-to-four point lead until the last 21 seconds of the half. Then Larry Skinner and Dean Giauque hit two baskets to make the halftime margin 42-34 for Brush.

After intermission, Highland quickly cut into the Brush lead, making it 42-38 with baskets by 6-foot-4 Bill Obenchain and guard Jess Lucero. Then the Huskies cooled off and let Brush have a nine-point lead, 47-38.

An overpowering rally by Highland late in the third period carried into the last quarter and gave the Huskies their only lead of the game, 54-53, with 5:35 to go. A field goal and a pair of free throws by Brush's Sid Davis put his team ahead to stay at 57-54 with barely more than five minutes left.

Wiggins Cops State 'A' Title

DENVER (AP)—Sluggish in the first quarter, Wiggins' Tigers shot back with three 16-point periods for a 57-44 victory over Wiley that won them the Colorado Class A basketball championship Saturday night.

Earlier, Plainview made its first appearance in the state tournement a triumph by whipping last year's champion, Bennet, 61-57 for third place.

In Class A consolation finals, Bayfield upset Fleming 74-72.

The championship game started as what appeared to be a cinch for Wiley, which took a 10-2 lead. But Wiggins knocked out eight straight points to open the second quarter, taking a 17-16 lead. In that period, Wiley managed only four points, all by Richard Wollert.

Plainview Cops 'A' 3rd Place

DENVER .AP)—The first appearance in a state tournament for Plainview was a triumph Saturday as the Hawks whipped last year's state champion Bennett, 61-57 to capture third place in Class A competition.

In Class A consolation finals earlier, Bayfield upset Fleming 74-72.

The battling Plainview team had to overcome a 10-point first-period disadvantage to pull even with the Tigers from Bennett, then made a late surge for the victory.

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Kelly Pete and his Wichita Shocker teammates turned the tables on Oklahoma State with their own slowdown offense Friday night and captured the NCAA Midwest regional basketball championship with a 54-46 triumph over the Cowboys.

Salida Cops 3rd In State

DENVER (AP) — An earlier spell of illness overcome, the Salida Spartans won third place in the state Class AA basketball finals Saturday with an easy 80-49 victory over Lafayette.

In an afternoon game, Glenwood Springs had won the consolation Class AA title by whipping Hotchkiss 69-55.

Salida's players had been hampered by an outbreak of diarrhea when they lost to Brush 74-62 in semifinals Friday. But they seemed more like last year's state champions in the final, rushing to a 43-24 halftime lead and scoring 27 points in the last quarter to 13 for Lafayette.

The last - quarter difference was accentuated by Lafayette's loss of John Torres

UCLA Nips S. F. in Far West

PROVO, Utah (AP) — UCLA got the scare of its season Saturday night but recovered in time to beat San Francisco 101-93 for the NCAA Far West basketball championship.

The victory will send the Bruins against Wichita next Friday night at Portland, Ore., in the national semifinals.

Oklahoma City upset Brigham Young 112-102 in the consolation game.

The UCLA triumph, in doubt until the final minute, was achieved despite a magnificent performance by San Francisco's Ollie Johnson, the tournament's most valuable player.

Johnson scored 37 points, breaking his own career high of 35 set last night.

Michigan Tops Vanderbilt Five

By BILL BAXTER

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — All-America Cazzie Russell hit 11 crucial points in the stretch bringing top-ranked Michigan from behind for an 87-85 basketball victory over fifth-ranked Vanderbilt in finals of the NCAA Mideast regional tournament Saturday night.

Dayton beat DePaul 75-69 for third place.

Vanderbilt, 10-point underdog, beat the Wolverines on the backboards 49-43 and had a 69-66 lead with seven minutes left. But Russell hit five field goals and a free throw and his jump with 1:30 left gave Michigan the lead for the last time at 81-80.

Oliver Darden hit two free throws with three seconds left sealing Vandy's doom. Vandy's Wayne Calvert connected on a set shot at the gun for the Commodores' final points.

The victory offset a stellar performance by Vanderbilt's 6-foot-9 Clyde Lee who riddled the Michigan defense with 28 points and 20 rebounds, through he carried four fouls through the entire second half.

East Cops AAA; Nips Central in Overtime

DENVER (AP) — Denver East, requiring an overtime to do it, beat Pueblo Central 66-64 Saturday night for a second successive victory in the Colorado Class AAA championship basketball game.

The Angels won the repeat title before a crowd of more than 12,000 at the Denver Coliseum and Aurora Hinkley took the consolation title by defeating Westminster 64-62.

The closely played championship game was decided on a field goal by reserve guard Keith Rausch with 52 seconds left in the overtime.

East thus beat back the Wildcats' hopes for revenge for last year's title game, which the Denver team won 103-83.

Saturday's victory made the Angels the first team to win successive championships in the class since Greeley's squads of 1959 and 1960. It was East's fifth championship since the first tournament in 1922.

Pueblo Central failed not only to avenge the 1964 game but to take the title home to the South Central League, which has not won in 25 years.

In the last 16 minutes of Saturday's game, the lead changed hands six times in the last 16 minutes of play and the score was tied five times during that time.

With 2 minutes and 22 seconds left, Central had opened a six-point lead, 60-54, with big field goals by Rick Perryman and Dan Kochevar. It was the biggest deficit for East.

Rausch led a comeback by the Angeles with two field goals, one of which tied the score at 62-62 with 38 seconds left.

For East, the high-point players were Rayford Tillis, with 17, and Rausch with 16 points. Central's Kochevar hit 16.

Arvada Dumps Greeley for Third

DENVER (AP) — Playing the entire second half without its ace forward, Dave Carpenter, Arvada kept rolling after intermission for an 85-72 victory over Greeley Central in the Class AAA state basketball contest for third place Saturday night.

In the third-place game, Arvada's Carpenter cut his eye on the floor late in the second period when he fell on a driving layup attempt. He returned to the game briefly before intermission but was forced to leave for good as the cut continued to bleed.

The winning Redskins held nothing below a nine-point lead throughout the last 16 minutes of the game. Greeley's Wildcats had been out of contention since failing to score a point in the last three minutes of the first half. During that time, Arvada moved from a 36-36 tie to a 49-36 lead.

John Naugle was Arvada's top scorer, with 25 points—19 of them in the first half. For Greeley, Jack Slapper's 18 points was the best.

Hinkley Topples Westminster, 64-62

DENVER (AP)—Aurora Hinkly won the Class AAA consolation title in the State High School Basketball Tournament Saturday by defeating Westminstr 64-62 despite a 31-point performance by the losers' Bob Cook.

Hinkley's Mike Davis made the difference with his clutch play. He was held to 15 points by Westminster's collapsing two-man defense, however. His decisive plays included a field goal with 2:45 left and another with only 45 seconds to go.

After Davis's last goal, which gave Hinkley a 64 - 58 lead, Westminster fought back with two more field goals but the final buzzer halted the rally.

Cook, Westminster's 6-foot-6 star, got his points on 12 field goals and seven of eight free throws. For Hinkley, the 18 points of Norbert Beddow was tops.

Sullivan Selected Coach of the Year

Norman Sullivan, who in his first term as Harrison's basketball bossman, was selected the All-City Coach of the Year by the Gazette Telegraph and KRDO-TV and radio sports staffs.

Coach Sullivan led the Harrison basketball team to the Will Rogers League championship going undefeated in the conference round-robin. This was the first league title a Harrison athletic team has won in the school's 10-year history.

Before coming to Harrison, Sullivan coached at Center High School. His 1964-65 WRL championship team won eight straight conference games and compiled a 14-3 won-loss record, losing the third outing to La Junta in the State AAA playoff game.

Sullivan was instrumental in developing the basketball skills of his 6-4 center Mike Obert, who established a new WRL single game scoring record by tallying 39 points. Obert was among the top 10 scorers in the state with 344 points for 17 games.

The All-City Coach of the Year annual award takes in all the schools in the Colorado Springs area including: Wasson, Palmer, St. Mary's, Cheyenne Mountain, Widefield, Air Academy High, Manitou Springs, Fountain and Harrison.

Tech Wins WCHA Playoffs

GRAND FORKS (AP)—Michigan Tech scored two quick second period goals to break a 4-4 tie and defeat the University of North Dakota 6-4 in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association championship playoff Saturday.

Al Holm fired in the tie-breaking goal with 12:39 elapsed in the second period. Steve Yoshino followed with another score less than two minutes later.

There was no scoring in the final period. UND Coach Bob Peters pulled his goalie with 88 seconds remaining, but the Sioux failed to dent the Tech net.

Princeton Bombards Providence, 109-69

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) Underdog Princeton, paced by All-America Bill Bradley's 41-point effort, demolished fourth-ranked Providence 109-69 Saturday night for the NCAA Eastern regional basketball championship.

Bradley was superb as he carried the Ivy League champions into the four-team NCAA national finals at Portland, Ore., next Friday.

The college Player of the Year sank 14 of 20 field goal attempts, grabbed nine rebounds and was credited with eight assists.

North Carolina State won the consolation round game from third-ranked St. Joseph's 103-81, as Larry Lakins scored 33 points.

Providence, an at-large entry in the tournament, started with a zone defense and Mike Riordan floating to concentrate on Bradley. That was soon discarded and Jim Walker was put on the Tigers' star.

BETWEEN THE LINES

by Loy Holman

State's Most Famed

It was an easy task this year for the state-wide selection committee in casting votes for the inaugural members of the newly formed Colorado Hall of Fame.

Just off hand, the names of the original three pop into mind with hardly a second thought. And the Hall should have a tremendous start with the induction of Jack Dempsey, Byron (Whizzer) White and Dutch Clark.

As of this date, all are expected to make the annual awards dinner at Denver's Hilton Hotel. So it might be wise to reserve the evening of April 2 and get reservations in early. Locally, the 10-buck tickets can be obtained from Vern Brook, 217 Cascade Ave., or by contacting the Denver Chamber of Commerce.

Nominations poured in from all over Colorado and there was a lengthy list to pick from. Se- from three-fourths of the committee and only the above mentioned trio drew that many ballots. They were nearly unanimous.

Dempsey, considered by many boxing experts as the greatest heavyweight champion of all time, now lives in New York after starting his ring carrer in Colorado as the "Manassa Mauler" and a colorful character of brawls from bar rooms to marathon fights all over the state.

White was the first All-America from Colorado University and his exploits contributed greatly towards boosting the Buffs into the big time of athletics. I can still remember well watching the Wellington whiz leave empty arms of would-be tacklers all over the field as he made one of his famed dashes down the sidelines. He, of course, is now a U. S. Supreme Court Judge and one of the most respected men in the nation.

People of this area need no reminder of the greatness of Clark, an All-America from the early days of Colorado College and one of the all-time sensations of the professional football leagues. Clark, originally from Pueblo, now lives in the Detroit region, and has also promised to attend the Hall of Fame awards banquet.

See you there?

In this modern era of basketball, it seems that nearly all the major schools are coming up with about equal talent. The collegiates find those sky-scraping giants from one place or another, and even the high schools are more balanced in scoring talent that ever before.

The big divider, apparently, comes down to defense—when matching a pair of teams that can shoot with near equal ability. It's seen more in the playoffs, as currently on the national and state level, than anywhere else.

Among the colleges, UCLA has just about built a dynasty on this one phase of the game. The defending national champs proved that with a convincing victory over offensive-minded BYU this weekend. Oklahoma State used its sticky defense to go all the way in the Big Eight. And Michigan parlays greatness in both departments to rule the favorite to win the NCAA crown.

In the high schools its perhaps even more apparent. The state tournament, which wound up Saturday night, is the best example.

Fine shooting teams come into Denver from all over the state. But it's usually the ones who can apply the most defensive pressure that come out on top. Individuals who have slipped by with little difficulty in getting their shots away suddenly come up against boys who are just as adept at blocking same or pressing so close that the hot-shot never gets the chance to fire.

It's only a sign of better all-round skill in the sport. Which is nothing but good.

Over the years, sports have been designated as "major" and "minor" — with the distinction none too clear, depending on the personal likes of those involved. Perhaps it would be much better if they could be categorized as "youthful" and "life-long" sports.

Those depending largely on physical force, such as football and to some extent basketball and baseball, are pretty much restricted to school days, with a few exceptions. But others like golf, tennis, handball and swimming can be carried on long past the vigorous years of the teens and early twenties.

Some communities have tried to keep up with the trend toward staying active in middle age and beyond. But few can accomplish this, and thus many have turned to the "country club" facilities.

Now Colorado Springs has a new twist to this, and one that many can more reasonably afford than the plush country club. It's the Racquet Club planned for northeast Colorado Springs.

Details of the project can be found in the business section of today's Gazette Telegraph, but the point here is that the organizers are seeking the alloted first-year membership by the cutoff date of April 1. If they can't fill the list by then the plan will have to be delayed for another year . . . or longer.

For those who want the availability of a private club but don't happen to play golf, this is the ideal setup. Without the maintenance of a golf course, the expenses will be about one-fourth. And still there will be swimming, tennis, handball and squash, an area for the less strenuous activities like sunbathing, picnics, parties and shuffleboard, and in the future perhaps even a dining area with swank atmosphere.

There must be many who would be interested in such a plan, and I would suggest quick contact with one of the organizers. You can call board president George F. Fredrick, 3014 Marilyn Rd.; or W. D. Corley, 114 W. Del Norte, for particulars.

Corley has been known hereabouts as Mr. Tennis for years, and there are prospects for a fine program in this sport for the future. You can bet that if Doug has his hand in it, everything will be first class.

Falcons Face Rebuilding Year in Baseball

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

Hit with both barrels by graduation and resignations, the Air Force Academy's baseball team has been forced into a "building year" — like it or not.

This comes on the heels of the school's finest season in the erstwhile national pastime, but unexpected losses to the roster have whittled what might have been an even more balanced club into an inexperienced questionmark of a squad.

That is not to say the Falcons won't win their share of games this spring. With a fast start from some of their sophomores and should the pitching be up to its potential, the Air Force could still make a run at regional honors and another possible berth in the NCAA playoffs.

Last year, Coach Connie Sparks' first as head of the Academy baseball program, the Falcons sizzled through their regular season with a fancy 20-3 mark and into the District 7 playoffs .They finally lost to Arizona State University in a rain-delayed playoff, eventually switched from Colorado Springs to Arizona because of the weather ,but in the meantime made a strong bid for a second straight national team batting title.

As a squad the Academy hit a resounding .340 and had an iron-armed stint by a pair of hurlers who combined to win 17 games. However, all but one of the top seven hitters from among the regulars will be missed this spring, and both of those leading pitchers have used up their eligibility.

That leaves an untested mound corps and only one senior in the probably starting lineup. As many as four sophomores — depending on the battery — could be on the diamond when the Air Force opens its home schedule April 14 against Denver University.

The Falcons will travel south next week for early training against a pair of military teams and two civilian schools in the San Antonio, Tex., area, and then open the season officially in two weeks, March 27, with a double-header at the University of New Mexico at Albuquerque. The AFA then plays at Stanford in California, at Denver U. and Southern Colorado State in Pueblo before their home opener.

As announced Saturday, the Academy has lost the services of four seniors who were to be the nucleus of this year's team. Third baseman Jim Steed ,who had one of the nation's highest averages at .421; catcher Larry Tollstam, who was also a football regular; second baseman Blaine Brownlow; and outfielder Mike Summerbell all have left the school and are assumed to have resigned in the wake of the recent cheating scandal.

In addition, five regulars have graduated. Among those were shortstop Darryl Bloodworth, who hit at .356; lefty pitcher Fred Olmsted, who compiled a 8-0 record during the regular season; usual catcher Al McArtor a .342 hitter; and reliable center fielder Frank Packer.

The other hurler used so often by Sparks was right hander Pete Bracci, and although he remains in school the hard-throwing senior is not eligible because of playing a year of varsity ball before entering the Academy. Bracci will act as an assistant coach this spring, helping the pitchers.

CONNIE SPARKS
Second Year Coach

The only real veterans back for this season are first baseman Bruce Huneke, a two-year letterman; pitcher Al McClure, who appeared in six games and had a 4-2 record; outfielder John Ollila; and part-time outfielder Paul Stein. Stein, however ,divided his time between the baseball team and spring football practice last year, just as he will be doing this spring as defensive safety with the AFA gridders.

Huneke, a 205-pound senior from Hanford, Calif., should supply the long ball for the Cadets this year and his hitting will have to carry much of the Fliers' attack. Last year he finished off with a .392 average, with seven home runs and as many doubles.

"With pitching counting so much in this game, we'll have to rely on some sophomores to hold us up," Sparks said this this week. "And we definitely won't have the hitting of last year to help them out."

The Falcons mentor, in his soph season at the helm, still is somewhat optimistic over his team's chances, but admits a lot will depend on how some of the newcomers respond to the responsibility and added pressure.

PP Auto Hill Climb Feature for QB Club

The annual Pikes Peak Hill Climb will be featured this Monday at the weekly meeting of the Colorado Springs Quarterback Club, according to program chairman George Danskin.

In recent weeks the Quarterback Club has had a variety of special programs, and this Monday auto racing will be spotlighted. Films and other highlights of the yearly race to the clouds up famed Pikes Peak will be presented.

In addition, Buck Elliott, who is in charge of this week's activities, will show films of the annual Indianapolis Speedway Classic.

The Quarterbacks meet each Monday at noon in the dining room of the Acacia Hotel, downtown. Anyone interested in sports of all kinds and the athletes involved is invited to attend.

In the future there will be programs on physical fitness, presented by Bob Peck of the Air Force Academy, a golf clinic, and the AFA's spring football practice highlights by Coach Ben Martin.

Reports from area coaches are given each week, with upcoming spring sports of baseball and track to be presented this Monday. There will also be candid reports from the "Quarterbacks" from the club who viewed last week's action, and they often put the coaches "on the spot" with questions of the latest games.

Lunch is always served at the meeting.

Bruce Devlin Leads Doral Golf Tourney

MIAMI (AP) — Australia's Bruce Devlin shot a 529-under-par 70 Saturday and pulled two strokes ahead of his nearest pursuer, Doug Sanders, in the battle for the $11,000 first prize in the Doral Invitational Golf Tournament.

The 27-year-old Devlin, seeking his first victory since he took the St. Petersburg Open a year ago, went into Sunday's final round 11 strokes under par for Doral's difficult course.

"This is the finest round I have ever played in my life," Devlin said.

Sanders shot a 71 for 207. Jack McGowan, 34-year-old Air Force veteran from Largo, Fla., had a 68 to move into a third-place tie at 209 with Terry Dill, who made Muleshoe, Tex., famous.

Devlin was one under par on each nine. He birdied the 7th with a 12-foot putt and the 10th with two putts from 35 feet.

A bogey at the 13th, where he had his only three-putt green, set him back but he birdied the 15th by running down a 25-footer.

Five Lettermen Anchor Canon City Baseball Club

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sprots Writer

Sam Schimelfenig, who is in his fifth term heading Canon City's baseball program, launches the Tigers into a new era of competition when the Canon City baseballers compete in the Triple-A Will Rogers League.

Last season the Tigers finished in third place in the Double-A Southern League, despite the fact Schimelfenig had the services of fireballer Chuck Stallman who averaged 14 strikeouts per game. The big right-hander compiled a 6-3 won-loss record last baseball season and Stallman's pill-size fast ball took its toll on 210 batters during his senior year at Canon City.

Stallman, who also excelled at the plate hitting at a whopping .505 clip, has signed an outright contract with the Spokane team of the Pacific Coast League.

Even though the Tigers have five returning lettermen including top moundsman Dan Scavarda, who tossed a no-hitter against Alamosa last season, Schimelfenig will field a potentially strong team which will challenge pre-season favorites from Cheyenne Mountain.

Cheyenne's third-sacker Bill Massarand will anchor the Indians' WRL hitting attack. Massarand hit two homers off Stallman in one game last season.

Schimelfenig rates Cheyenne and batter-strong Air Academy High the teams to beat in the forthcoming WRL pennant chase.

In addition to four-year letterman Scavarda, who posted a 5-3 won-loss record last season, the Tigers will have Dee Betts and junior Dave Eslick to round out Canon City's pitching staff.

Schimelfenig, a native of Maysville, Mo. who graduated from Maryville State Teachers College, Mo., feels this year's Canon City baseball edition possesses good team spirit and the Tigers are a potentially strong fielding team. But they are untested.

Scavarda is the top hitter returning from last year's team as the high-hander belted a .380. Other returnees including first baseman Bill Betts, catcher Jerry Roberts and centerfielder Drew Cronk.

Outfielders bidding for a starting berth include sophomores Anthony DiOrio and Chris Aragon. The infielders are second baseman Scavarda and his younger brother sophomore Jerry Scavarda, shortstop Steve Samsel, third baseman Jim McFarland, transfer student Ron Slater, and catcher Dan Goodale.

The Tigers open their WRL campaign against Widefield, April 3.

Shea in Line for Frick's Job

By JOE REICHLER

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — William F. Shea, generally credited with being the man most responsible for bringing National League baseball back to New York, has emerged as a leading candidate to succeed Ford Frick as the next commissioner of baseball.

Shea's name is one of the more than two dozen submitted by the major league club owners for consideration when the magnates meet in Clearwater, Fla., Monday, March 29 to take preliminary steps in electing Frick's successor.

Frick, in office since September, 1951, announced his retirement last summer, the retirement to take effect after the World Series in October.

The new Commissioner, the fourth since Judge K.M. Landis took oath in 1920, is expected to be named some time before the World Series.

The ballots are regarded as top secret. Not all of them are in. Those that have been forwarded are in sealed envelopes which have not yet been opened. They won't be opened until the March 29 meeting.

Yet, the identity of some nominees has been learned. These include, other than Shea, Senators Robert Kennedy of New York, Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota and Philip Hart of Michigan; Justice Byron (Whizzer) White of the Supreme Court; Gen. Maxwell Taylor; Richard Nixon; Judge Robert Cannon of Milwaukee; and Milton Eisenhower, brother of the former president.

Baseball figures nominated include Warren Giles, president of the National League; Joe Cronin, president of the American League; Gabe Paul of the Cleveland Indians and Lee MacPhail of the Baltimore Orioles, club presidents; and Buzzie Bavasi of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Joe L. Brown of the Pittsburgh Pirates, general managers.

While Shea was recommended by the New York Mets, he is known to be held in high esteem by at least four other clubs.

Life With Casey Stengel Is Like A Perpetual Yankee Family Reunion

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —Life with Casey Stengel is like a perpetual family reunion. It might be a park bench in St. Petersburg. An airport in Houston. Or a hotel in Milwaukee. Somebody will pop up who knew the professor in Kankakee or played for him at Toledo.

Casey will be 75 July 30. Even Connie Mack was beginning to show his age at that milestone. But Casey keeps rolling along early and late.

The other morning the phone rang in his room at the Mets' spring training motel. It is customary for the operator to make a wake-up call at 7 a.m. Casey was ready.

"Good morning, 7 o'clock," his gravel voice growled.

"This is Edna," said the voice on the other end. It was his wife calling from their Glendale, Calif., home at 4 a.m., California time, to tell him of an attempted robbery of their home.

Why does he keep on going? Why not take it easy in his beautiful home? Or concentrate on minding the store in the bank?

"I keep busy," said Casey, dismissing the question with one of his shortest answers. "I don't talk about that. You fellows can do the guessing.

"I want to make a real ball club out of this. I am only interested in one thing —making it better. We've got to keep on building. I'd like to have about five ball players and take on that CBS.

"We know we're making money. They do all they can to help. You ask yourself — can you make progress? Do you know anything yourself?

"I can see what's going on. Certain things get done. Nobody seems to know you're getting it done. Later, maybe three or four years from now, some of those fellows realize we helped them overcome some problem.

"We only have a few left from the ones that started. Canizzarro, Hickman, Jackson and a couple more. We had some other bright, lovely fellows. Where did they go? Some of them ain't in the league."

Casey picked up a letter. Some fellow wanted to back a bike trip from the Statue of Liberty to St. Petersburg.

"You'd be amazed at the letters I get," he said. "Some woman wrote about her kid at the university. She said she was a Yankee fan but she was crazy about me and Yogi so she was going to pull for the Mets. She wants the kid to be a ball player.

"One fellow started a Met fan club in Chicago. He bought some trophies and handed them out to our players which wasn't very popular with the Chicago management. When we go to the coast you'll see sailors who got transferred out there to San Diego coming to the game and carrying a Met banner."

In a moment Case was off and running in another direction.

"Did you see Berra out there catching batting practice?" he said. "He can tell those fellows a few things about hitting. And Spahn is working hard. We've got 11 left-handers on the club. If he can teach one or two of them his move to first base, it might be the difference between making the club.

"We might have to find a new way of pwaying for a guy who can't throw in the outfield. If he can't get the first man, maybe he can get the second."

Don Jorgensen Directs Glads Baseball Program

Under the direction of new head coach Don Jorgensen, Widefield's baseball team launches its 1965 campaign next week (weather permitting) when the Gladiators play host to the South Central League veterans from Pueblo Centennial.

Jorgensen's charges have undertaken a Herculean task of playing the defending SCL Centennial kingpins twice this season and the Gladiators face the former perennial champions from Cheyenne Mountain in their quest for baseball honors in Jorgensen's first term.

Widefield, in addition to kicking off the new baseball season for the Colorado Springs area this Tuesday against Centennial, the Gladiators are scheduled for a re-match with Centennial in their 1965 finale on May 7.

Prior to taking over the duties of Widefield's field boss, Jorgensen was an assistant coach at that school for three years in baseball and basketball. Jorgensen replaces Tom Petersen, who resigned his baseball and basketball head coaching jobs at Widefield last year. He was also the head tennis coach at Widefield.

Jorgensen, who hails from Davenport, Iowa, is a graduate of Colorado Springs St. Mary's and Colorado College. He pitched for the varsity baseball team while attending CC.

In previewing the forthcoming Will Rogers League pennant chase, Jorgensen rated Cheyenne the team to beat for the loop's first baseball championsjip. The Widefield coach also felt that battery-strong Air Academy High and bench-strong Harrison would be the top challengers for the WRL crown. Jorgensen didn't know how the team will round out the four teams entered in the one-day double-round Canon City tourney.

The Gladiators open their fifth member of the WRL circuit, Canon City, would fit in the pennant chase picture.

But the Widefield field boss will have the opportunity to see Canon City in action before the WRL race begins next month when the Gladiators compete in annual Canon City Invitational Tournament, March 27. Harrison, Manzanola and the host

WRL slate against Canon City, April 3, in an afternoon contest on their home field.

Jorgensen has leven lettermen back from last year's squad and the Widefield coach assesses his team's strength twofold: base running speed and potentially strong pitching.

Three hurlers will anchor the Gladiators bullpen headed by lefty Gilbert Trujillo. Jorgensen related that Trujillo throws aspirin-type baseballs because of the portside chucker's fast-moving pitches. Trujillo is also a good hitter and will play the outfield when not performing on the mound.

Right-handers Don Romsha and Dave Wieh, who last year upset the PPL runner-up Air Academy High baseballers. Tomsha doubles as an outfielder and the former Widefield football standout hit over .300 last year. Junior left-hander John Gibson is the fourth pitcher on the Widefield squad.

The third .300 hitter back this season is first baseman Bill Alexander, who may also see duty at third base this year.

Other returning lettermen include Don Henson, utility infielder; Rich Sutton outfielder; and second baseman Paul DeLay.

Mick Piotrowski is bidding for the starting catching assignment while Jack Draeger and Dean Humphrey have their eye on positions in the outfield. Warren Knight and Melvin Mier, two junior non-lettermen, will give the Gladiators reserve depth in the infield.

President Defends Rangers

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP) —Bill Jennings, president of the New York Rangers, presents a staunch defense of the National Hockey League club's youth movement and calls recent criticism of management's motives completely irresponsible.

The published critism stems mainly from the trading of veteran Camille Henry to Chicago last month, less than a year after Andy Bathgate, another high scoring wing, was dealt to Toronto.

The Rangers have qualified for the post-season Stanley Cup playoffs only once in the past seven seasons. Despite a fifth-place standing in the six-team circuit this season they probably will finish only a few thousand short of last year's club attendance record. Home attendance through the first 30 games in Madison Square Garden in 1964-65 was 430,048 — an average of 14 300.

"How can anyone say we don't care to win and don't try?" argued Jennings, who is a successful lawyer. "We all care. The only thing that keeps me awake at night is the Rangers. We're trying to build a contender with more youth, more size and more depth.

"I personally made the decision that we had to trade several of our top stars after I realized that we were going no place. I had hoped that the Bathgate trade would do the trick. but when I felt it wouldn't we started working on the Henry deal."

Jess Neely and assistant Joe Davis of Rice have been coaching together for 34 seasons.

Palmer Gymnastics Team Defeats Jefferson

Under the new management of head coach Dave Moulton, the Palmer High gymnastics team scored a dual meet victory over visiting Thomas Jefferson Saturday morning at the Palmer gym, 83-45.

This was the Terrors first dual meet of the season.

Moulton's Tribesmen won all but one of the eight events as they dominated their northern visitors with junior non-lettermen Ken Keaton, who will co-captain the Palmer football team this season, spearheading the dual meet win.

Heaton won first place in three events including the Still Rings, Parellel Bars and Long Horse events.

Palmer has seven returning lettermen on this year's squad and Moulton indicated that two sophomores Tom Wangrin and Bob Dunnman are expected to help the team. They both placed during Saturday's meet with Dunnman placing in three events; Long Horse, Parellel Bars and High Bars.

Russian Icers Win Second World Title

TAMPERE, Finland (AP) — Russia clinched its second successive World Amateur Hockey Championship Saturday by defeating Czechoslovakia 3-1.

The Russians, who won their first title in the 1964 Olympic Games, were assured of another when Sweden beat Canada 6-4 in Saturday's second game. Even if the Russians should lose their final game against Canada Sunday, they still would finish on top under the complicated system of determining ties.

Russia has won all its six games. Czechoslovakia's defeat Saturday was its first of the tournament. The Czechs still could tie on points by beating Sweden Sunday if the Russians should lose. In that case the outcome of their Saturday game would be the deciding factor. Sweden has played a tie with Finland in addition to losing once and Canada has lost two games.

The United States, in seventh place with a 1-5 record, was idle Saturday and meets last place Norway Sunday.

The Soviets got off to a fast start against the Czechs, scoring twice in the first period, and upset the usually smooth Czech attack with tough defensive play.

Nine penalties were handed out—five to the Russians—in the first period. But after taking the lead. The Russians concentrated on defense and keeping out of trouble. They kept one man back on defense at all times and that was enough to upset the timing of the Czech forwards and force them to scramble.

Vyacheshev Starsinov scored the Soviets' first goal at 6:55 of the first period after a series of fast passes around the goal mouth. Kuzkin made it 2-0 with a 12-foot snap shot at 14:07 and that lead stood up until the third period.

Tikal finally scored for Czechoslovakia at 6:06 of the final period. But in the last minute of play the Czechs took out their goalie to attack with six men and Leonid Volkov sent the puck the length of the ice into the Czech net after a face-off in Russian territory.

Gary Aldcorn, a former professional, gave Canada a 1-0 lead over Sweden in the second minute of play, but Nils Nilsson squared accounts on a solo play at 13:58 and from there on the Swedes took charge. They led 5-2 after the second period and added one more goal in the third.

Nilsson got his second goal for Sweden after Gert Blome, Tord Lundstrom and Ebert Maatta had started the Swedish rush. Sven Tumba added the final Swedish goal after Gary Begg, Bob Forhan and Gary Dineen had cut the margin to 5-4 in the final period.

East Germany gained a 3-2 victory over Finland in Saturday's third game on a last-minute goal by Joachim Zieszhe. The victory gave East Germany fifth place in the final standings of Group A with three games won and four lost. Finland is 1-5-1 and can be overtaken by the United States Sunday.

PP Auto Hill Climb Feature for QB Club

The annual Pikes Peak Hill Climb will be featured this Monday at the weekly meeting of the Colorado Springs Quarterback Club, according to program chairmen George Danskin.

In recent weeks the Quarterback Club has had a variety of special programs, and this Monday auto racing will be spotlighted. Films and other highlights of the yearly race to the clouds up famed Pikes Peak will be presented.

In addition, Buck Elliott, who is in charge of this week's activities, will show films of the annual Indianapolis Speedway Classic.

The Quarterbacks meet each Monday at noon in the dining room of the Acacia Hotel, downtown. Anyone interested in sports of all kinds and the athletes involved is invited to attend.

In the future there will be programs on physical fitness, presented by Bob Peck of the Air Force Academy, a golf clinic, and the AFA's spring football practice highlights by Coach Ben Martin.

Reports from area coaches are given each week, with upcoming spring sports of baseball and track to be presented this Monday. There will also be candid reports from the "Quarterbacks" from the club who viewed last week's action, and they often put the coaches "on the spot" with questions of the latest games.

Lunch is always served at the meeting.

Bruce Devlin Leads Doral Golf Tourney

MIAMI (AP) — Australia's Bruce Devlin shot a 529-under-par 70 Saturday and pulled two strokes ahead of his nearest pursuer, Doug Sanders, in the battle for the $11,000 first prize in the Doral Invitational Golf Tournament.

The 27-year-old Devlin, seeking his first victory since he took the St. Petersburg Open a year ago, went into Sunday's final round 11 strokes under par for Doral's difficult course.

"This is the finest round I have ever played in my life," Devlin said.

Sanders shot a 71 for 207. Jack McGowan, 34-year-old Air Force veteran from Largo, Fla., had a 68 to move into a third-place tie at 209 with Terry Dill, who made Muleshoe, Tex., famous.

Devlin was one under par on each nine. He birdied the 7th with a 12-foot putt and the 10th with two putts from 35 feet.

A bogey at the 13th, where he had his only three-putt green, set him back but he birdied the 15th by running down a 25-footer.

Jorgensen didn't know how the team will round out the four teams entered in the one-day double-round Canon City tourney.

The Gladiators open their fifth member of the WRL circuit, Canon City, would fit in the pennant chase picture.

But the Widefield field boss will have the opportunity to see Canon City in action before the WRL race begins next month when the Gladiators compete in annual Canon City Invitational Tournament, March 27. Harrison, Manzanola and the host

WRL slate against Canon City, April 3, in an afternoon contest on their home field.

Jorgensen has leven lettermen back from last year's squad and the Widefield coach assesses his team's strength twofold: base running speed and potentially strong pitching.

Three hurlers will anchor the Gladiators bullpen headed by lefty Gilbert Trujillo. Jorgensen related that Trujillo throws aspirin-type baseballs because of the portside chucker's fast-moving pitches. Trujillo is also a good hitter and will play the outfield when not performing on the mound.

Right-handers Don Romsha and Dave Wieh, who last year upset the PPL runner-up Air Academy High baseballers. Tomsha doubles as an outfielder and the former Widefield football standout hit over .300 last year. Junior left-hander John Gibson is the fourth pitcher on the Widefield squad.

The third .300 hitter back this season is first baseman Bill Alexander, who may also see duty at third base this year.

Other returning lettermen include Don Henson, utility infielder; Rich Sutton outfielder; and second baseman Paul DeLay.

Mick Piotrowski is bidding for the starting catching assignment while Jack Draeger and Dean Humphrey have their eye on positions in the outfield. Warren Knight and Melvin Mier, two junior non-lettermen, will give the Gladiators reserve depth in the infield.

President Defends Rangers

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP) —Bill Jennings, president of the New York Rangers, presents a staunch defense of the National Hockey League club's youth movement and calls recent criticism of management's motives completely irresponsible.

The published critism stems mainly from the trading of veteran Camille Henry to Chicago last month, less than a year after Andy Bathgate, another high scoring wing, was dealt to Toronto.

The Rangers have qualified for the post-season Stanley Cup playoffs only once in the past seven seasons. Despite a fifth-place standing in the six-team circuit this season they probably will finish only a few thousand short of last year's club attendance record. Home attendance through the first 30 games in Madison Square Garden in 1964-65 was 430,048 — an average of 14 300.

"How can anyone say we don't care to win and don't try?" argued Jennings, who is a successful lawyer. "We all care. The only thing that keeps me awake at night is the Rangers. We're trying to build a contender with more youth, more size and more depth.

"I personally made the decision that we had to trade several of our top stars after I realized that we were going no place. I had hoped that the Bathgate trade would do the trick, but when I felt it wouldn't we started working on the Henry deal."

Jess Neely and assistant Joe Davis of Rice have been coaching together for 34 seasons.

Palmer Gymnastics Team Defeats Jefferson

Under the new management of head coach Dave Moulton, the Palmer High gymnastics team scored a dual meet victory over visiting Thomas Jefferson Saturday morning at the Palmer gym, 83-45.

This was the Terrors first dual meet of the season.

Moulton's Tribesmen won all but one of the eight events as they dominated their northern visitors with junior non-lettermen Ken Keaton, who will co-captain the Palmer football team this season, spearheading the dual meet win.

Heaton won first place in three events including the Still Rings, Parellel Bars and Long Horse events.

Palmer has seven returning lettermen on this year's squad and Moulton indicated that two sophomores Tom Wangrin and Bob Dunnman are expected to help the team. They both placed during Saturday's meet with Dunnman placing in three events; Long Horse, Parellel Bars and High Bars.

Russian Icers Win Second World Title

TAMPERE, Finland (AP) — Russia clinched its second successive World Amateur Hockey Championship Saturday by defeating Czechoslovakia 3-1.

The Russians, who won their first title in the 1964 Olympic Games, were assured of another when Sweden beat Canada 6-4 in Saturday's second game. Even if the Russians should lose their final game against Canada Sunday, they still would finish on top under the complicated system of determining ties.

Russia has won all its six games. Czechoslovakia's defeat Saturday was its first of the tournament. The Czechs still could tie on points by beating Sweden Sunday if the Russians should lose. In that case the outcome of their Saturday game would be the deciding factor. Sweden has played a tie with Finland in addition to losing once and Canada has lost two games.

The United States, in seventh place with a 1-5 record, was idle Saturday and meets last place Norway Sunday.

The Soviets got off to a fast start against the Czechs, scoring twice in the first period, and upset the usually smooth Czech attack with tough defensive play.

Nine penalties were handed out—five to the Russians—in the first period. But after taking the lead. The Russians concentrated on defense and keeping out of trouble. They kept one man back on defense at all times and that was enough to upset the timing of the Czech forwards and force them to scramble.

Vyacheshev Starsinov scored the Soviets' first goal at 6:55 of the first period after a series of fast passes around the goal mouth. Kuzkin made it 2-0 with a 12-foot snap shot at 14:07 and that lead stood up until the third period.

Tikal finally scored for Czechoslovakia at 6:06 of the final period. But in the last minute of play the Czechs took out their goalie to attack with six men and Leonid Volkov sent the puck the length of the ice into the Czech net after a face-off in Russian territory.

Gary Aldcorn, a former professional, gave Canada a 1-0 lead over Sweden in the second minute of play, but Nils Nilsson squared accounts on a solo play at 13:58 and from there on the Swedes took charge. They led 5-2 after the second period and added one more goal in the third.

Nilsson got his second goal for Sweden after Gert Blome, Tord Lundstrom and Ebert Maatta had started the Swedish rush. Sven Tumba added the final Swedish goal after Gary Begg, Bob Forhan and Gary Dineen had cut the margin to 5-4 in the final period.

East Germany gained a 3-2 victory over Finland in Saturday's third game on a last-minute goal by Joachim Zieszhe. The victory gave East Germany fifth place in the final standings of Group A with three games won and four lost. Finland is 1-5-1 and can be overtaken by the United States Sunday.

Morgan St. Sets Mile Relay Mark

By GNE SCHROEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Morgan State set an American collegiate record in the mile relay Saturday by edging former record-holder Villanova in the first NCAA indoor track championships.

A capacity crwod of 9,553 at Cobo Arena cheered the Maryland team's victory the time was 3:15.6.

The previous record of 3:16 for a comparable 11-laps-to-the-mile board track was set in 1957 by Villanova.

Morgan State and Villanova won separate sections of the event, with the winner determined on a time basis.

Kentucky State finished third, followed by Oklahoma State and the University of Kansas.

The Morgan State team was comprised of Dennis Edghill, Herman Hawthorne, Timothy Johnson and Nick Lee on the anchor leg.

Morgan State was aware before the start of the race that Villanova had posted a time of 3:16.4 in winning the first section. The Bears set their record despite little opposition in their section.

Missouri captured the team trophy by scoring 14 points on a 5-4-3-2-1 basis. Oklahoma State was second with 12 points and Villanova third with 11

In the mile run, Southern California's Chris Johnson outdistanced the field and posted a 4:08. Johnson was trailed by Rick Cunningham of Miami of Ohio, Bruce Burston of Western Michigan, Ed Dean of Notre Dame and Jim Johnson of William and Mary.

Bob Yard of Washington State won the pole vault with a 15-8¼ effort. His height was matched by another West Coast entry, Marv Radloff of Oregon State, but Yard took first on the basis of fewer misses at that height.

Three other contenders managed 15-4¼ and were ranked third, fourth and fifth in this order: George Canamare of Michigan, Bill Fosdick of Southern Caliornia afnd John Uelses of LaSalle. Their misses decided the placings.

In another two-section race Leland Albright of Louisiana State won the 600-yard run in 1:10. Next were Ed Duchini of Gorgetown and Bob Credle of Holy Cross.

Harold Hadley of Kansas won the two-mile in 8:56.4. A half-second behind Hadley came Notre Dame's Bill Clark trailed by Barry Brown of Providence.

Frank Costello of Maryland won the high jump, final event of the day, by outleaping John Rambo of Long Beach state in a jump-off. Each had cleared 6-10.

Earlier, Oklahoma State won the two-mile relay as Dave Perry overtook Villonova's Noel Carroll on the anchor leg.

"Best indoor track team in the East," is what Army track coach Carleton Crowell says about Harvard.

Cater Says Phillies Didn't Choke Up

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI)—Outfielder Danny Cater, no longer a member of the Phillies, staunchly defended them nevertheless Friday by claiming they "never choked up" last September, although some spent their World Series money too early.

Cater is a pleasant, easy-to-talk-with 25-year-old from Austin, Tex., who created quite a splash in his first season with the Phillies last year, then was traded to the White Sox for pitcher Ray Herbert during the winter meetings in Houston.

Forthright and to the point, young Cater does not exclude himself among those who already were thinking in World Series terms before the Phils dropped 10 straight during the final two weeks of last season.

Looked Good

"Most everyone on the club, myself included, was planning what we were going to do with our World Series money," said Cater, staring at the floor of the White Sox clubhouse. "We knew we hadn't clinched yet but with a 6-1-2 game lead and 11 to go it sure looked good for our side.

"I guess we spent the money a little too early. Some fellows go through their whole career without ever getting into a World Series and here I was so close in my rookie year.

"Anyone who says the Phillies choked up, though, is dead wrong," Cater continued, biting into an apple after finishing his workout.

Complete Reversal

"It's hard to explain what happened, but whatever it was, the players never choked up. Suddenly all the things we were doing right all year we didn't do right the last two weeks. If we got decent pitching, we didn't hit. And when we'd get some runs, we didn't get the pitching, it seemed as if the whole thing just collapsed at once."

Cater, who says he never again will ever take anything for granted in his life, feels last year's disaster will not scar the Phillies permanently.

"That shouldn't hurt them this year," he said. "I'm over here, not over there now, but I'm sure they'll all start fresh. They have a good club. A good manager, too. No reason why they shouldn't do well this year."

Gun Bow Wins Donn Handicap Race

By GENE PLOWDEN

MIAMI (AP) — Gun Bow shot into the lead soon after leaving the gate and was never headed in winning the $56,560 Donn Handicap at Gulfstream Park Saturday.

Gun Bow finished three lengths in front of Temper. Lt. Stevens was third, with Hot Dust fourth, Candy Spots fifth and St. Raphael last in the six-horse field.

Gun Bow, packing top weight of 127 pounds with Walter Blum aboard, raced the 1⅛ mile in 1:50 on a fast track.

The Gedney Farm's star returned $3.40 and $3. Temper, light weight at 108 pounds under jockey Kennard Knapp, returned $10.60 to place. There was no show betting.

Temper was never worse than third and clung to Gun Bow's heels after the first half-mile. He beat Lt. Stevens by one-half length.

Candy Spots, returning to the track where he won the 1963 Florida Derby, was second choice and made a race of it to the stretch turn. He was third as they straightened for home but practically stopped running there and was 17 lengths behind at the end.

Gun Bow, who won eight and finished in the money 14 times in 16 races last year, earned the winners share of $36,650.

"I knew we had the early speed but I rated him along even though he was crying to run," Blum said. "I hit him a couple of times entering the stretch just to keep him moving steadily."

Knapp said it wasn't planned to keep Temper so close to the early pace, "but nobody else seemed to be forcing it."

Willie Shoemaker, who rode Candy Spots, said "We knew Blum would set as slow a pace as possible but there was just nothing we could do about it."

Tommy Barrow said Lt. Stevens "ran a real good race but that one in front (Gun Bow) was too much horse."

"It certainly wasn't an impressive performance but I'm satisfied," said trainer Eddie Neloy of Gun Bow.

Temper earned $10,000 while Lt. Stevens picked up $5,000, with $3,500 going to the owner of Hot Dust and $1,500 to Rex Ellsworth, owner of Candy Spots. St. Raphael, the sixth horse, got nothing.

Junior Tourney Begins Tuesday

The Western Kansas school, undefeated this season by a junior college team, plays Burlington, Iowa, in the first round.

The 16-team double elimination tournament will end Saturday night, March 20.

Spence Wins Auto Race In England

BRANDS HATCH, England (AP) — Mike Spence of Britain, driving a Lotus, won the international formula one Race of the Champions Saturday.

He covered the two 40-lap heats in 2 hours, 11 minutes, 42 seconds, an average speed of 96.58 miles per hour for the 212 miles.

The race included four world champions in the 10-nation lineup. None of the aces finished.

Second was Scotland's Jackie Stewart, in a DRM, in 2:12:41.6. Sweden's Jo Bonnier, driving a Brabham, was third in 2:11:00.6.

The 1963 world champion, Jim Clark of Scotland, smashed his Lotus into a bank during the second heat but escaped with a strained knee.

He won the first heat by a 29-second margin and looked a certain winner until the smash.

Neither Dan Gurney of Riverside, Calif., nor Mustan Gregory of Kansas City finished, Gregory's BRM going out in the very first lap with a broken shaft.

Players Reject NFL Offer

BALTIMORE (AP) — The president of the National Football Lague Players Association said Saturday his group had rejected a bid to meet with club owners next month because of the conference terms.

Ordell Braase, Baltimore Colts defensive end and association head, said he had discussed the proposed meeting with player representatives and "the consensus is that such a meeting. . . is desirable but not under the present terms."

The owners had proposed the meeting for April 10 in Cleveland, Ohio.

Braase said the conference would "be unrealistic and serve no useful purpose" because "officers and legal counsel of the players association were not invited."

Braase added that each owner had invited his team's player representative but the association had not been invited as a unit.

Braase said that NFL Commission Peter Rozelle had invited him, as association president, but other officers were not asked to attend.

"Meeitng the owners as individuals and without legal counsel places the association at a disadvantage," Braase said. "Problems confronting both owners and players directly involve the association.

"To exclude the association as a unit from the April meeting would make solution of the problems impossible."

Braase urged that the owners invite the association "as a group with no restrictions."

The players association has sought unsuccessfully player representation on the league's pension committee. This matter and other player proposals apparently were to be discussed at the April meeting.

Austrian Skiers Take Lead in American International at Vail

By FRANK PITMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — Austrian men swept the first four places and Austrian women took first and third in the downhill events Saturday to push their nation far ahead in the opening competions of the American International Ski Races.

The Austrians led the men's division with 55 points to 16 for France and 13 for the United States. The Austrian women were ahead with 19 points followed by France with 16 and the United States with seven.

Heini Messner, 23, sailed down the two-mile men's course, dropping 2,600 feet, in the slow time of 2 minutes, 21.53 seconds.

An overnight snowfall of more than four inches was swept from the 30-gate course before the races but a warm sun, breaking out of clouds intermittently, softened the surface and slowed the racers.

Traudl Hecher, 22, captured the 1½-mile women's race in 1:52.86. The course, with 33 gates, drops 2,000 feet.

The other three Austrians immediately behind Messner were Franz Digruber in 2:21.93, Karl Schranz in 2:22.10 and Gerhardt Nenning in 2:22.25.

Annie Famose of France surprised by finishing second in women's downhill in 1:57.93. Christl Haas of Austria, the prerace favorite, ran third in 1:58.04.

Jean Saubert of McCall, Idaho gave the United States its highest finish in either race by taking fifth in the women's in 1:59.16.

Bill Marolt of Aspen, Colo. finished highest for the American men with No. 6 placing in 2:25.71. Ni Orsi of Stockton, Calif., was the only other American to break into the first 10, taking ninth in 2:26.73.

Lopopolo Wins Italian Crown

GENOA, Italy (AP) — Sandro Lopopolo stopped Piero Brandi in the eighth round of a scheduled 12-round bout for the Italian junior middleweight boxing title Saturday night.

Lopopolo weighed 140 pounds and Brandi, the defending champion, scaled 160.

Gaetano Dos Santos, 125, of Brazil, drew with Primo Zamparini, 126, of Italy in an eight round preliminary bout.

When TCU won its first Southwest Conference football title in 1929, coach Abe Martin was first-team end.

Wall Ties for Tourney Lead

DORADO, Puerto Rico (AP) — Defending champion Art Wall Jr. wiped out a seven-stroke deficit and caught Al Besselink, creating a two-way deadlock for the top spot in the third round of the Puerto Rico Open Golf Tournament Saturday.

With a 25-foot birdie on the final hole, Wall uncorked a four-under par 68 for 214 while Besselink, complaining about his putting, went three over.

Besselink had been in the lead since this final tournament on the Caribbean circuit got underway Thursday.

Wall's short irons accounted for his improvement after carding previous rounds of 72-74.

Gun Bow, who won eight and finished in the money 14 times in 16 races last year, earned the winners share of $36,650.

"I knew we had the early speed but I rated him along even though he was crying to run," Blum said. "I hit him a couple of times entering the stretch just to keep him moving steadily."

Knapp said it wasn't planned to keep Temper so close to the early pace, "but nobody else seemed to be forcing it."

Willie Shoemaker, who rode Candy Spots, said "We knew Blum would set as slow a pace as possible but there was just nothing we could do about it."

Tommy Barrow said Lt. Stevens "ran a real good race but that one in front (Gun Bow) was too much horse."

"It certainly wasn't an impressive performance but I'm satisfied," said trainer Eddie Neloy of Gun Bow.

Temper earned $10,000 while Lt. Stevens picked up $5,000, with $3,500 going to the owner of Hot Dust and $1,500 to Rex Ellsworth, owner of Candy Spots. St. Raphael, the sixth horse, got nothing.

Junior Tourney Begins Tuesday

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — Dodge City College, ranked No. 1 nationally, begins defense of its championship here Tuesday night at the 18th annual National Junior College Basketball Tournament.

The Western Kansas school, undefeated this season by a junior college team, plays Burlington, Iowa, in the first round.

The 16-team double elimination tournament will end Saturday night, March 20.

Spence Wins Auto Race In England

BRANDS HATCH, England (AP) — Mike Spence of Britain, driving a Lotus, won the international formula one Race of the Champions Saturday.

He covered the two 40-lap heats in 2 hours, 11 minutes, 42 seconds, an average speed of 96.58 miles per hour for the 212 miles.

The race included four world champions in the 10-nation lineup. None of the aces finished.

Second was Scotland's Jackie Stewart, in a DRM, in 2:12:41.6. Sweden's Jo Bonnier, driving a Brabham, was third in 2:11:00.6.

The 1963 world champion, Jim Clark of Scotland, smashed his Lotus into a bank during the second heat but escaped with a strained knee.

He won the first heat by a 20-second margin and looked a certain winner until the smash.

Neither Dan Gurney of Riverside, Calif., nor Musten Gregory of Kansas City finished, Gregory's BRM going out in the very first lap with a broken shaft.

Players Reject NFL Offer

BALTIMORE (AP) — The president of the National Football Lague Players Association said Saturday his group had rejected a bid to meet with club owners next month because of the conference terms.

Ordell Braase, Baltimore Colts defensive end and association head, said he had discussed the proposed meeting with player representatives and "the consensus is that such a meeting . . . is desirable but not under the present terms."

The owners had proposed the meeting for April 10 in Cleveland, Ohio.

Braase said the conference would "be unrealistic and serve no useful purpose" because "officers and legal counsel of the players association were not invited."

Braase added that each owner had invited his team's player representative but the association had not been invited as a unit.

Braase said that NFL Commission Peter Rozelle had invited him, as association president, but other officers were not asked to attend.

"Meeitng the owners as individuals and without legal counsel places the association at a disadvantage," Braase said. "Problems confronting both owners and players directly involve the association.

"To exclude the association as a unit from the April meeting would make solution of the problems impossible."

Braase urged that the owners invite the association "as a group with no restrictions."

The players association has sought unsuccessfully player representation on the league's pension committee. This matter and other player proposals apparently were to be discussed at the April meeting.

Austrian Skiers Take Lead in American International at Vail

By FRANK PITMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — Austrian men swept the first four places and Austrian women took first and third in the downhill events Saturday to push their nation far ahead in the opening competions of the American International Ski Races.

The Austrians led the men's division with 55 points to 16 for France and 13 for the United States. The Austrian women were ahead with 19 points followed by France with 16 and the United States with seven.

Heini Messner, 23, sailed down the two-mile men's course, dropping 2,600 feet, in the slow time of 2 minutes, 21.53 seconds.

An overnight snowfall of more than four inches was swept from the 30-gate course before the races but a warm sun, breaking out of clouds intermittently, softened the surface and slowed the racers.

Traudl Hecher, 22, captured the 1½-mile women's race in 1:52.86. The course, with 33 gates, drops 2,000 feet.

The other three Austrians immediately behind Messner were Franz Digruber in 2:21.93, Karl Schranz in 2:22.10 and Gerhardt Nenning in 2:22.25.

Annie Famose of France surprised by finishing second in women's downhill in 1:57.93. Christl Haas of Austria, the prerace favorite, ran third in 1:58.04.

Jean Saubert of McCall, Idaho gave the United States its highest finish in either race by taking fifth in the women's in 1:59.16.

Bill Marolt of Aspen, Colo. finished highest for the American men with No. 6 placing in 2:25.71. Ni Orsi of Stockton, Calif., was the only other American to break into the first 10, taking ninth in 2:26.73.

OPENING OF RACES — A parade through the center of the Vail ski area officially opened the first American International Ski Races. The races have drawn the top teams from Austria, France and the United States. They are a memorial to the late Buddy Werner. All three competing countries have been in the area training since the middle of last week. (Associated Press Wirephoto)

Lopopolo Wins Italian Crown

GENOA, Italy (AP) — Sandro Lopopolo stopped Piero Brandi in the eighth round of a scheduled 12-round bout for the Italian junior middleweight boxing title Saturday night.

Lopopolo weighed 140 pounds and Brandi, the defending champion, scaled 160.

Gaetano Dos Santos, 125, of Brazil, drew with Primo Zamparini, 126, of Italy in an eight round preliminary bout.

When TCU won its first Southwest Conference football title in 1929, coach Abe Martin was first-team end.

Wall Ties for Tourney Lead

DORADO, Puerto Rico (AP) — Defending champion Art Wall Jr. wiped out a seven-stroke deficit and caught Al Besselink, creating a two-way deadlock for the top spot in the third round of the Puerto Rico Open Golf Tournament Saturday.

With a 25-foot birdie on the final hole, Wall uncorked a four-under par 68 for 214 while Besselink, complaining about his putting, went three over.

Besselink had been in the lead since this final tournament on the Caribbean circuit got underway Thursday.

Wall's short irons accounted for his improvement after carding previous rounds of 72-74.

Pastrano Says It's Great Life

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "When you have the title you're somebody," said light heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano. "Without it, you're nothing."

Pastrano should know. He flitted around the rings of the world for more than 11 years without making much money. Then he got lucky as a sub and won the light heavyweight crown from Harold Johnson at Las Vegas June 1, 1963.

The curly-haired boxing master earned two good purses in winning title defenses against Argentina's Gregorio Peralta and Britain's Terry Downes last year.

Now, he has been guaranteed $100,000 for a title bout with Jose Torres at Madison Square Garden March 30. It's one-half of the unique, but not unprecedented, double championship show at the Garden. In the other, bout, welterweight champion Emile Griffith will receive $70,000 for risking his crown against Joe Stable.

It's the first double title card at the Garden, but other multiple championship cards have been held before.

Without the title and without the subsidies provided previously by weekly network television, Pastrano would be lucky to earn $5,000 a fight. Even in the television era, Pastrano seldom collected more than $5,000.

Television — the closed circuit variety — still carries the big bundle of money for the fighters. Without it, there wouldn't be purses of $50,000 and up.

For the Garden show, Torres and Stable will receive a flat $10,000 each, plus the chance to win championships.

Torres' backer, Cain Young, actually had to guarantee Pastrano the difference, if any, between 30 per cent of the net and $100,000. Griffith has the option of $70,000 or 20 per cent, which ever is greater.

Golden Gloves Set For Monday

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The 38th National Golden Gloves boxing tournament will be held in Kansas City for the first time, starting Monday. It will draw 240 fighters from 30 centers across the country.

The tournament was held in Chicago for 36 years, then switched to Louisville a year ago. It's possible the meet will be moved around the country from year to year.

This is the first time a Chicago team will be competing in the tourney away from home, and the city is certain to have one of the strongest teams here.

Fort Worth, drawing its team from all of Texas, also will be strong, as will Detroit, Buffalo, Denver and Kansas City.

Kansas City has had a team in the tourney the past 28 years, with Bubbles Klice the coach every year, and has won 17 national individual titles.

The turnover in championships will be almost complete this year. John Cobb of St. Louis will be back to defend his welterweight crown but Hedgeman Lewis of Detroit, who won the lightweight title last year, has moved up to welterweight. No other 1964 champions are back.

Stan Musial to Appear Here for Fitness Clinic

One of America's most popular sports starts, baseball great Stan Musial, and one of its prettiest, Olympic gymnast Muriel Grossfeld, will participate in the Western Regional Physical Fitness Clinic at Colorado Springs, April 9-10.

Mrs. Grossfeld, former National AAU champion and a member of the last three U.S. Olympic teams, will perform the routines she did in the 1964 Tokyo Games and demonstrate the latest gymnastics teaching techniques.

The U.S. Air Force Academy and Palmer High School in Colorado Springs will be the sites of the clinic meetings.

Amateur Jockey On Spot

BY JOHN FARROW
Associated Press Sports Writer

LONDON (AP) American jockey Tommy Smith is the man with history in his hand — in the Grand National Steeplechase on March 27 at Aintree.

He's an amateur rider, age 27, riding an American-bred horse owned by an American.

Such a triple for the Americans never has been known in the National, first run in 1837.

Smith, of Middleburg, Va., will be aboard Jay Trump, owned by Mrs. Mary C. Stephenson of Meshewa Farm, Ohio.

Jay Trump and Freddi are currently joint favorites at 12-1 for the big race, the toughest steeplechase in the world. There will be 30 or more horses in the field.

Jay Trump and Smith are big buddies. Together they've been over many courses 15 times — and 12 times Jay Trump has won. The other three times he finished second.

Smith, fair-haired with a college look about his baby face, has a couple of scars on his handsome face — not from horse racing.

He got those when a jeep crashed into a tree at a time when Smith was only 15 years old.

Since that little exercise he's run into more trouble riding horses. He's broken an arm, busted both collarbones, dislocated both shoulder bones, displaced a bone in his back, broken both legs and both ankles.

"Explain the love of racing when you're reaking bones," Smith was asked.

"Simple. My father (Crompton Smith) and grandfather (Harry Worcester Smith) were amateur riders. As a result, so am I," he replied.

Wives, Electric Blankets Change Dodgers Camp Site

Editors: Life isn't quite the same in the Los Angeles Dodgers training camp now that the gals have arrived. The wives of baseball players set up a camp of their own in the clubs barracks. They spend their days sunning in empty swimming pools and nights warming up the camp's delicate power system with their electric blankets. Here is Ginger Drysdale, wife of star pitcher Don Drysdale, with a report of barrack life with her husband.

By GINGER DRYSDALE
Written for the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — One night, Don — that's my husband — came up with an idea:

"Let's find out if it's okay if we stay on the base at Dodgertown."

"Oh, joy," I thought, quietly, remember some of the newspaper yarns that have been written about life in the barracks.

I have been sort of agreeably pleased by my stay in the barracks. But there have been a few inconveniences.

For instance, the electric system doesn't stand too many demands. If you put on your bed lamp, you've got to turn off the electric blanket or take a chance on blowing a fuse.

The other night, in the interest of warmth, I flicked off the lamp just when Don reached the "who dunit" part of the book he was reading. Don blew a fuse.

When the boys are on the diamonds, we girls — that's my neighbor, Sue, (wife of Dodger pitcher Bob Miller) and I, do our best to fix ourselves to look fetching for the dinner hour.

Widefield High Windup

LUCY PERKINS

Gary Richardson has been selected as the Will Rogers League Coach of the Year. A special assembly was held Monday, March 1, to honor Coach Richardson. After Principal Compton made the announcement of Richardson's success the Widefield student body gave their Coach of the Year a standing ovation.

In the voting for the all-conference teams, Widefield didn't place anyone on the first five, but Eldon Lee and Dave Smedsrud made the second team. John Henke and Dick Stevenson received honorable mention.

On February 13, a busload of Widefield speech students journeyed to South High School in Pueblo to participate in the District Forensics Qualifying Contest. Those students participating were: Dan Dailey, Archie Meredith, Norman Durkee, and Sam Larsen in original oratory; Nicky Stevens, Dave Manning, and Mike Miller in interpretation of oratory; Beth Whittle, Pat Hearne, and Toni Young in interpretation of dramatic literature; Charlie Ammen, Claudia Payne, Cande Korbelik, and Jim Brown in interpretation of humorous literature; Carol Leudecke and Vicki Wilkowski in interpretation of poetry; Sam Larsen, Pete Meese, Eugene Apodaca and Dave Larsen in debate. Those students who qualified from the above list to attend the state contest on the C. U. campus on March 19 and 20 are Nicky Stevens, Mike Miller, Claudia Payne, Cande Korbelik, Pete Meese, and Sam Larsen.

The contest lasted the entire day and the contestants were served lunch in the school cafeteria. Miss Czarnecki and Mr. Kinner, Widefield speech instructors, accompanied the group.

On February 20, Pete Meese, Sam Larsen, Starr Coakley, and Dave Larsen represented Widefield in devate at Colorado College. Dan Dailey was entered in original oratory. The play "Onions in the Stew," took first place. The cast consisted of Pat Street, Margo Luedecke Beth Whittle, Doug Allen, Tom Brown, Meg Hulsey, Sandra Brody, and Charlie Ammen who was also chosen as best actor. The play was directed by Mr. Donald Dieter.

Widefield won their debate with Cheyenne Mountain High School on March 2. Participants were Doug Werner, Mike Miller, Sam Larsen, Pete Meese, Gene Apodaca, and Dave Larsen. Starr Coakley was one of the judges.

The debators were treated to dinner at Miss Czarnecki's apartment before they departed to the contest.

On a recent American Legion Essay Contest at Widefield, Sam Larsen placed first and Sheryl Hamilton was chosen runner-up. Sam also placed first in the district contest for which he received $50 a medal, and a certificate.

Under the coaching of Mr. Don Jorgensen, the 1965 WHS baseball season got underway with the first practice Tuesday March 2. At the preliminary meeting, approximately 40 boys went out for the team. With a fairly large number of returning lettermen, the baseball team is abundant with juniors and sophomores. Approximately twelve seniors went out. Mr. Jorgensen said that there would be a junior varsity squad this year. Those sophomores and juniors cut from the varsity might not be able to gain a berth on the JV squad. Seniors, however, probably would not be able to play on the Junior Varsity squad if cut.

Practice sessions last approximately two hours and are held after school each day and on Saturdays.

A lot of hard work will be the agenda for those out for baseball as the first game of the season is a non-league encounter with Pueblo Centennial a week from today.

This week's menus is as follows:

MONDAY
Chicken & Noodles
Cranberry Sauce.
Candied Carrots.
Hot Cross Buns
Italian Prunes.
Milk

TUESDAY
Steak
Buttered potatoes.
Peas
Hot Rolls

WEDNESDAY

Goodwill Industries Often Helps Similar Agencies

Goodwill Industries of Colorado Springs has received 74 referrals of handicapped persons from community health agencies, and has referred six persons to other agencies for medical and specialized treatment within the past 12 months.

"These referrals to Goodwill were handicapped men and women who were believed ready for the final step in rehabilitation - vocational rehabilitation," Kenneth Olson, Executive Director of Goodwill Industries, said. "Goodwill will do its best to see to it that the final step is completed successfully," he added.

Doctors and psychiatric hospitals direct some of their patients to Goodwill Industries for service and training but most referrals come from the Department of Vocational Rehabilitation.

The department offers rehabilitation planning and assistance for individuals within employable age groups who are vocationally handicapped by physical disability, emotional disturbance, or residual mental illness. This department, through cooperation with Goodwill Industries, helps handicapped people into gainful employment whereby they can be self-supporting.

Goodwill refers some of its own workers and trainees to other agencies for specific help. Help in the form of visitation and counseling is frequently offered by the El Paso County Visiting Nurses and by the Family Counseling Service of Colorado Springs.

"Through this mutual cooperation, Goodwill and community and state health agencies can provide the best possible service to the handicapped person whatever his problem may be," Olson remarked.

Other agencies making referrals and helping to round out Goodwill Industries' rehabilitation program are the El Paso County Dept. of Public Welfare, the Special Education Department of School District 11, and the Colorado State Employment Office.

"With cooperation from these agencies and general community support from the public," Olson said, "Goodwill Industries is growing stronger and more efficient each year, and with Goodwill grows the strength and usefulness of the handicapped."

Widefield High Windup

LUCY PERKINS

Gary Richardson has been selected as the Will Rogers League Coach of the Year. A special assembly was held Monday, March 1, to honor Coach Richardson. After Principal Compton made the announcement of Richardson's success the Widefield student body gave their Coach of the Year a standing ovation.

In the voting for the all-conference teams, Widefield didn't place anyone on the first five, but Eldon Lee and Dave Smedsrud made the second team. John Henke and Dick Stevenson received honorable mention.

On February 13, a busload of Widefield speech students journeyed to South High School in Pueblo to participate in the District Forensics Qualifying Contest. Those students participating were: Dan Dailey, Archie Meredith, Norman Durkee, and Sam Larsen in original oratory; Nicky Stevens, Dave Manning, and Mike Miller in interpretation of oratory; Beth Whittle, Pat Hearne, and Toni Young in interpretation of dramatic literature; Charlie Ammen, Claudia Payne, Cande Korbelik, and Jim Brown in interpretation of humorous literature; Carol Leudecke and Vicki Wilkowski in interpretation of poetry; Sam Larsen, Pete Meese, Eugene Apodaca and Dave Larsen in debate. Those students who qualified from the above list to attend the state contest on the C. U. campus on March 19 and 20 are Nicky Stevens, Mike Miller, Claudia Payne, Cande Korbelik, Pete Meese, and Sam Larsen.

The contest lasted the entire day and the contestants were served lunch in the school cafeteria. Miss Czarnecki and Mr. Kinner, Widefield speech instructors, accompanied the group.

On February 20, Pete Meese, Sam Larsen, Starr Coakley, and Dave Larsen represented Widefield in devate at Colorado College. Dan Dailey was entered in original oratory. The play "Onions in the Stew," took first place. The cast consisted of Pat Street, Margo Luedecke Beth Whittle, Doug Allen, Tom Brown, Meg Hulsey, Sandra Brody, and Charlie Ammen who was also chosen as best actor. The play was directed by Mr. Donald Dieter.

Widefield won their debate with Cheyenne Mountain High School on March 2. Participants were Doug Werner, Mike Miller, Sam Larsen, Pete Meese, Gene Apodaca, and Dave Larsen. Starr Coakley was one of the judges.

The debators were treated to dinner at Miss Czarnecki's apartment before they departed to the contest.

On a recent American Legion Essay Contest at Widefield, Sam Larsen placed first and Sheryl Hamilton was chosen runner-up. Sam also placed first in the district contest for which he received $50 a medal, and a certificate.

Under the coaching of Mr. Don Jorgensen, the 1965 WHS baseball season got underway with the first practice Tuesday March 2. At the preliminary meeting, approximately 40 boys went out for the team. With a fairly large number of returning lettermen, the baseball team is abundant with juniors and sophomores. Approximately twelve seniors went out. Mr. Jorgensen said that there would be a junior varsity squad this year. Those sophomores and juniors cut from the varsity might not be able to gain a berth on the JV squad. Seniors, however, probably would not be able to play on the Junior Varsity squad if cut.

Practice sessions last approximately two hours and are held after school each day and on Saturdays.

A lot of hard work will be the agenda for those out for baseball as the first game of the season is a non-league encounter with Pueblo Centennial a week from today.

"With cooperation from these agencies and general community support from the public," Olson said, "Goodwill Industries is growing stronger and more efficient each year, and with Goodwill grows the strength and usefulness of the handicapped."

Foreign Banks May Get to New York City

By JESSE BOGUE

NEW YORK (UPI) — In a city where five of the world's 10 largest banks made their headquarters, and multiply their branches, prospects for profitable operation of a branch of a foreign bank might seem remote.

But, under a law passed in 1961, foreign banks may establish branches in New York state, and today there are 15 of them doing business here.

There is, they believe, opportunity for all in the varied and complex commercial pattern of New York, with its constant needs for funds.

Raphael Recanati, managing director of the Israel Discount Bank, Ltd., discussed the decision to open a New York branch in a recent interview at his offices here.

The branch which Recanati heads was among the first to obtain a license after enabling legislation was passed over three years ago.

Foreign banks here can render all banking services except trust business. Recanti said that naturally they may devote more attention to business enterprises involving international trade, although not necessarily all with the nations in which their home offices are located.

"We are available to those businessmen who wish to do business overseas," he explained. "In effect, we act as a bridge. Thus a man here might want to set up an outlet in Israel which would do business with the parent bank while the principal worked with us here."

Inquiries to the branch here, Recanati contiued, range from those from tourists and tourist industries to those from entrepreneurs desiring to make an investment in Israel.

One of the reasons which led the parent bank to set up a full fledged branch here was a steady rise in interest not only in tourism but in doing business with Israel, Recanati said.

Australia's highest point is Mount Kosciusko, in New South Wales, with an elevation of 7,770 feet.

Disappearance Of Man Said To Be Puzzle

TROY, N.Y. (AP)—Dist. Atty. M. Andrew Dwyer said Friday he would "desperately like to talk" with the ex-wife of Norman H. Briggs, given up for dead five years ago after disappearing while diving in a reservoir.

Briggs, formerly of Troy, turned up this week as a cowboy in Wyoming. He left his family and a gross estate of $138,859 in 1960.

After a closed hearing during which Dwyer questioned various witnesses, the district attorney disclosed that:

—In applying for a marriage license last Dec. 7, Briggs' ex-wife stated she knew he was still alive.

—In a visit to his son Wyoming last August, Briggs' father did not ask his son the reason for disappearance; in addition the elder Briggs gave "unusual" answers to questions.

—"This is not just a question of disappearance. There are many facets I am not at liberty to discuss now," Dwyer said.

Briggs' ex - wife, Mrs. Earl Koenig, 27, of Wynantskill, N.Y., received nearly $120,000 in insurance benefits after her husband's purported death. She has said she will return the money to the insurance companies.

Dwyer said Mrs. Koenig and her husband had gone on vacation since public disclosure last Monday that Briggs, 33, had been found.

Foreign Banks May Get to New York City

By JESSE BOGUE

NEW YORK (UPI) — In a city where five of the world's 10 largest banks made their headquarters, and multiply their branches, prospects for profitable operation of a branch of a foreign bank might seem remote.

But, under a law passed in 1961, foreign banks may establish branches in New York state, and today there are 15 of them doing business here.

There is, they believe, opportunity for all in the varied and complex commercial pattern of New York, with its constant needs for funds.

Raphael Recanati, managing director of the Israel Discount Bank, Ltd., discussed the decision to open a New York branch in a recent interview at his offices here.

The branch which Recanati heads was among the first to obtain a license after enabling legislation was passed over three years ago.

Foreign banks here can render all banking services except trust business. Recanti said that naturally they may devote more attention to business enterprises involving international trade, although not necessarily all with the nations in which their home offices are located.

"We are available to those businessmen who wish to do business overseas," he explained. "In effect, we act as a bridge. Thus a man here might want to set up an outlet in Israel which would do business with the parent bank while the principal worked with us here."

Inquiries to the branch here, Recanati contiued, range from those from tourists and tourist industries to those from entrepreneurs desiring to make an investment in Israel.

One of the reasons which led the parent bank to set up a full fledged branch here was a steady rise in interest not only in tourism but in doing business with Israel, Recanati said.

Australia's highest point is Mount Kosciusko, in New South Wales, with an elevation of 7,770 feet.

Disappearance Of Man Said To Be Puzzle

TROY, N.Y. (AP)—Dist. Atty. M. Andrew Dwyer said Friday he would "desperately like to talk" with the ex-wife of Norman H. Briggs, given up for dead five years ago after disappearing while diving in a reservoir.

Briggs, formerly of Troy, turned up this week as a cowboy in Wyoming. He left his family and a gross estate of $138.859 in 1960.

After a closed hearing during which Dwyer questioned various witnesses, the district attorney disclosed that:

—In applying for a marriage license last Dec. 7, Briggs' ex-wife stated she knew he was still alive.

—In a visit to his son Wyoming last August, Briggs' father did not ask his son the reason for disappearance; in addition the elder Briggs gave "unusual" answers to questions.

—"This is not just a question of disappearance. There are many facets I am not at liberty to discuss now," Dwyer said.

Briggs' ex - wife, Mrs. Earl Koenig, 27, of Wynantskill, N.Y., received nearly $120,000 in insurance benefits after her husband's purported death. She has said she will return the money to the insurance companies.

Dwyer said Mrs. Koenig and her husband had gone on vacation since public disclosure last Monday that Briggs, 33, had been found.

Lost Dog Finally Returns to Home

PARMA, Italy (AP) — Giovanni Tanzi took his dog hunting on Feb. 24. They were caught in a blinding snow storm and the dog was lost. After a day's search, Tanzi returned home, 31 miles away. On March 11, 16 days later, the dog — weak, dirty and emaciated — was found outside Tanzi's house sniffing at his master's car.

Ft. Carson Soldiers Help Boys at Brockhurst Ranch

Ft. Carson soldiers and veterans are sharing their professional skills with the civilian community at Brockhurst Boys Ranch where 20 boys, unable to live at home, are growing up on a mountain site.

Robert L. Beckler, formerly of Carson's U.S. Army Hospital, now manager of the ranch near Green Mountain Falls, interested Spec. 4. Martin Ohlert of the hospital pharmacy in working with the boys as a counselor.

Pvt. James J. Lunetta of the Carson Mental Hygiene Service learned of Brockhurst through newspaper publicity and found an outlet for his professional experience.

In their off - duty hours, these two Mountaineers are part-time staff workers at the ranch which is just off U.S. 24 in Ute Pass.

Lunetta prepares case histories on boys who need special counseling. Ohlert functions as an older brother and has decided after two months at the ranch that he will study toward a degree in psychology and social work.

Both men have brought Brockhurst boys to Ft. Carson for athletic events and to plays at the Little Theater to broaden their experience and education. Lunetta calls the Brockhurst program "outstanding" from the basis of his experience with various institutions in his native New Jersey.

He worked as a house parent in boys schools while earning his degree at Rutgers University.

Frank Van Arsdale, a retired sergeant - major, joined the Brockhurst staff after leaving Ft. Carson where he was known as an active Boy Scout leader.

Latest contact between Ft. Carson and the boys ranch was a visit by Major David Layman, preventive dentistry officer, and Dr. James Ryan, a Colorado Springs dentist. They checked the boys' teeth and the major gave an illustrated lecture on dental health and its importance.

In the dental area, Mrs. Lucille Peterson who is a Brockhurst neighbor and a Carson dental assistant has purchased 30 dental health kits and given them to the ranch.

This gift is typical of many from throughout Colorado, according to Mrs. Rita Powers of Manitou Springs, an Air Force wife who is the Brockhurst secretary and the "mother" whom the boys see most.

She says the boys are making Clear View glass cleaner which they are selling through service station outlets in an effort to supplement the uncertain finances which keep their family going.

Persons may become "Brockboys' warm clothing, except hurst Boosters" and make regular contributions.

Other acceptable gifts are used shoes, in good condition; recreational materials such as leather, paints, crayons or anything of a creative nature, she suggested.

The ranch could use an encyclopedia only a few years old since the students live a long way from Manitou Springs where most of them attend school, Mrs. Powers added. Trading stamps are always welcome too, she said.

Britain, Gromyko to Discuss Viet Nam

LONDON (AP) — High sources said today the British government will dig deeply into the complex Viet Nam problem with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko next week.

The Soviet diplomat arrives Tuesday on a four-day official visit. He will meet with Prime Minister Harold Wilson, Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart and other government leaders.

There was no great British hope that the Soviets will agree quickly to cooperate in a peace initiative that might lead to a cease-fire and political settlement.

Diplomatic reports reaching London suggest the Soviets are under tremendous Red Chinese pressure not to concede anything in the face of toughening U.S. military responses to Communist assaults in South Viet Nam.

Qualified British sources said the talks will be dominated by the Viet Nam crisis, the problem of Laos and the unsettled Southeast Asian scene generally.

Leprechauns Almost Succeed With Stripe

NEW YORK (AP) — A pair of leprechauns' helpers got an early start this year and managed to paint a green line two blocks long up the center of Fifth Ave. today before police curbed their venture.

John Heaney, 23, and George C. Gallagher, 36, both laborers from Staten Island told police it got their Irish up to think that painting of the once traditional green line for St. Patrick's day wasn't started and the big parade less than five days away.

Painting of a different colored line for each nationality parade was banned last year.

FEDERAL TAX TIPS

BY ROGER E. WARD
Administrative Representative
Internal Revenue Service

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q — I find I need a copy of Schedule D to file with my 1040. Where can I get one?

A — These are available at Internal Revenue Service offices. You also may find the form you need at your local post office or bank.

Q — I am a widow. My husband died in 1964 leaving me to take care of our 16 year old son. What do I do about an income tax return?

A — A return must be filed for a decedent. You are probably entitled to file a joint return. This will generally yield a lower tax for you compared to what you would owe if a separate return was filed. Since your husband died in 1964, you are entitled to take an exemption for him on your 1964 joint tax return. If an executor or administrator has been appointed, the return must be signed by him, and if it is a joint return you too must sign it. If a refund is due, you must attach Form 1310 to the return.

Q — Where can I find the mailing address of my District Office?

A — The address of each District Office is listed in the 1040 instructions.

Q — Can I deduct the value of my services to a church? I help out part-time in the business office and I'm sure they would have to hire someone if I wasn't able to work with them.

A — No. You cannot deduct the value of your services to a charitable group. In some cases, however, the unreibursed expenses you incur in rendering services to a charitable group may be deductible.

Q — I have revolving credit account at one of the local stores. How much of the carrying charges on this account are deductible as interest for the year? I want to include these charges with my other deductions.

A — When carrying charges are separately stated but the interest portion cannot be determined, you are entitled to a part of the carrying charges as an interest deduction.

To determine the amount you can deduct as interest, add up all your unpaid balances on the first day of each month for the year and divide the total by 12. Six per cent of that amount will generally be your interest deduction. However, the deduction cannot exceed the portion of the total carrying charge allocable to the year, or the actual amount of payments made during the year.

Q — I just moved to this state. Should I file my return here or in the state where my estimated tax payments were made?

A — File your return in the district where you now have your principal place of business or legal residence. If this is not the district where your estimated tax payments were made, be sure to state on your return the district where these payments were made.

Q — Are premiums paid for hospitalization insurance deductible?

A — Yes, the premiums you pay for hospitalization insurance are deductible, as a medical expense.

Q — I am 68. Am I exempt from filing a tax return because I'm over 65?

A — No. The amount of income you have is the determining factor as to whether you have to file a return.

If you have income of $1,200 or more (don't include Social Security or other non-taxable income in this total), you have to file a return.

Q — On the gasoline pump at my local service station there is a sign telling how much of the price per gallon goes for taxes. Can I deduct that amount on my return?

A — No. Part of these taxes are federal excise taxes which are not deductible. State and local taxes on gasoline are deductible on your return.

Q — I recently had a heart attack. Although I'm now able to go back to work, my doctor refuses to let me use public transportation. I have to take a cab each way. Are my cab fares deductible as medical expenses?

A — No, they are not. Transportation expenses to and from work are considered personal expenses and not deductible.

Q — We have a new baby and the doctor has suggested that we use a sanitary diaper service rather than wash the diapers ourselves. Is the cost of the diaper service deductible?

A — No. Diaper services are not considered deductible medical expenses even though they may have some relationship to medical care.

Q — I was assessed last year for the cost of a new sewer for our street. Can I take the amount of my assessment as a tax deduction?

A — Assessments for local benefits that tend to increase the value of property are generally not deductible. However, you may capitalize the assessment, thus, adding it to the cost of your property.

Q — I recently purchased a two family home. We live in half of it and rent out the other half. When we moved in, we had to paint the house and make other minor repairs. How do we handle on our tax return the expenses for the half of the house we are renting?

A — Repairs and maintenance costs, such as painting, which are not permanent improvements and do not appreciably add to the value of the property may be charged against your rental income. Many expenses must be allocated between pesonal and rental use of the property. Expenditures that tend to increase the value of the property should be capitalized and added in when you figure depreciation on your rental property.

Ft. Carson Soldiers Help Boys at Brockhurst Ranch

Ft. Carson soldiers and veterans are sharing their professional skills with the civilian community at Brockhurst Boys Ranch where 20 boys, unable to live at home, are growing up on a mountain site.

Robert L. Beckler, formerly of Carson's U.S. Army Hospital, now manager of the ranch near Green Mountain Falls, interested Spec. 4. Martin Ohlert of the hospital pharmacy in working with the boys as a counselor.

Pvt. James J. Lunetta of the Carson Mental Hygiene Service learned of Brockhurst through newspaper publicity and found an outlet for his professional experience.

In their off - duty hours, these two Mountaineers are part-time staff workers at the ranch which is just off U.S. 24 in Ute Pass.

Lunetta prepares case histories on boys who need special counseling. Ohlert functions as an older brother and has decided after two months at the ranch that he will study toward a degree in psychology and social work.

Both men have brought Brockhurst boys to Ft. Carson for athletic events and to plays at the Little Theater to broaden their experience and education. Lunetta calls the Brockhurst program "outstanding" from the basis of his experience with various institutions in his native New Jersey.

He worked as a house parent in boys schools while earning his degree at Rutgers University.

Frank Van Arsdale, a retired sergeant - major, joined the Brockhurst staff after leaving Ft. Carson where he was known as an active Boy Scout leader.

Latest contact between Ft. Carson and the boys ranch was a visit by Major David Layman, preventive dentistry officer, and Dr. James Ryan, a Colorado Springs dentist. They checked the boys' teeth and the major gave an illustrated lecture on dental health and its importance.

In the dental area, Mrs. Lucille Peterson who is a Brockhurst neighbor and a Carson dental assistant has purchased 30 dental health kits and given them to the ranch.

This gift is typical of many from throughout Colorado, according to Mrs. Rita Powers of Manitou Springs, an Air Force wife who is the Brockhurst secretary and the "mother" whom the boys see most.

She says the boys are making Clear View glass cleaner which they are selling through service station outlets in an effort to supplement the uncertain finances which keep their family going.

Persons may become "Brockboys' warm clothing, except hurst Boosters" and make regular contributions.

Other acceptable gifts are used shoes, in good condition; recreational materials such as leather, paints, crayons or anything of a creative nature, she suggested.

The ranch could use an encyclopedia only a few years old since the students live a long way from Manitou Springs where most of them attend school, Mrs. Powers added. Trading stamps are always welcome too, she said.

Britain, Gromyko to Discuss Viet Nam

LONDON (AP) — High sources said today the British government will dig deeply into the complex Viet Nam problem with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko next week.

The Soviet diplomat arrives Tuesday on a four-day official visit. He will meet with Prime Minister Harold Wilson, Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart and other government leaders.

There was no great British hope that the Soviets will agree quickly to cooperate in a peace initiative that might lead to a cease-fire and political settlement.

Diplomatic reports reaching London suggest the Soviets are under tremendous Red Chinese pressure not to concede anything in the face of toughening U.S. military responses to Communist assaults in South Viet Nam.

Qualified British sources said the talks will be dominated by the Viet Nam crisis, the problem of Laos and the unsettled Southeast Asian scene generally.

Leprechauns Almost Succeed With Stripe

NEW YORK (AP) — A pair of leprechauns' helpers got an early start this year and managed to paint a green line two blocks long up the center of Fifth Ave. today before police curbed their venture.

John Heaney, 23, and George C. Gallagher, 36, both laborers from Staten Island told police it got their Irish up to think that painting of the once traditional green line for St. Patrick's day wasn't started and the big parade less than five days away.

Painting of a different colored line for each nationality parade was banned last year.

FEDERAL TAX TIPS

BY ROGER E. WARD
Administrative Representative
Internal Revenue Service

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q — I find I need a copy of Schedule D to file with my 1040. Where can I get one?

A — These are available at Internal Revenue Service offices. You also may find the form you need at your local post office or bank.

Q — I am a widow. My husband died in 1964 leaving me to take care of our 16 year old son. What do I do about an income tax return?

A — A return must be filed for a decedent. You are probably entitled to file a joint return. This will generally yield a lower tax for you compared to what you would owe if a separate return was filed. Since your husband died in 1964, you are entitled to take an exemption for him on your 1964 joint tax return. If an executor or administrator has been appointed, the return must be signed by him, and if it is a joint return you too must sign it. If a refund is due, you must attach Form 1310 to the return.

Q — Where can I find the mailing address of my District Office?

A — The address of each District Office is listed in the 1040 instructions.

Q — Can I deduct the value of my services to a church? I help out part-time in the business office and I'm sure they would have to hire someone if I wasn't able to work with them.

A — No. You cannot deduct the value of your services to a charitable group. In some cases, however, the unreibursed expenses you incur in rendering services to a charitable group may be deductible.

Q — I have revolving credit account at one of the local stores. How much of the carrying charges on this account are deductible as interest for the year? I want to include these charges with my other deductions.

A — When carrying charges are separately stated but the interest portion cannot be determined, you are entitled to a part of the carrying charges as an interest deduction.

To determine the amount you can deduct as interest, add up all your unpaid balances on the first day of each month for the year and divide the total by 12. Six per cent of that amount will generally be your interest deduction. However, the deduction cannot exceed the portion of the total carrying charge allocable to the year, or the actual amount of payments made during the year.

Q — I just moved to this state. Should I file my return here or in the state where my estimated tax payments were made?

A — File your return in the district where you now have your principal place of business or legal residence. If this is not the district where your estimated tax payments were made, be sure to state on your return the district where these payments were made.

Q — Are premiums paid for hospitalization insurance deductible?

A — Yes, the premiums you pay for hospitalization insurance are deductible, as a medical expense.

Q — I am 68. Am I exempt from filing a tax return because I'm over 65?

A — No. The amount of income you have is the determining factor as to whether you have to file a return.

If you have income of $1,200 or more (don't include Social Security or other non-taxable income in this total), you have to file a return.

Q — On the gasoline pump at my local service station there is a sign telling how much of the price per gallon goes for taxes. Can I deduct that amount on my return?

A — No. Part of these taxes are federal excise taxes which are not deductible. State and local taxes on gasoline are deductible on your return.

Q — I recently purchased a two family home. We live in half of it and rent out the other half. When we moved in, we had to paint the house and make other minor repairs. How do we handle on our tax return the expenses for the half of the house we are renting?

A — Repairs and maintenance costs, such as painting, which are not permanent improvements and do not appreriably add to the value of the property may be charged against your rental income.
